Four Killed As Soldiers Battle Reds In Cuban City

U. S. Citizen Among 25 Wounded in Havana Street Fighting.

Correspondents Under Heavy Fire

Citizens Run to Cover as Communists Begin Sniping Troops.

Havana, Sept. 29 (AP).—Soldiers and Communists turned Havana's broadest avenues into battle grounds late today, sending to morgues and hospitals 4 dead and 25 wounded. Among the wounded was Joe Gibson, 46, an American newsreel photographer.

Six of the wounded, including Capt. Hernandez Ruda, of the army, may die. Gibson was one of several photographers taking pictures from the roof of a hotel. Five shots struck him in the leg. None of the other photographers was injured.

Scattered shooting still resounded through empty streets tonight and students said unknown persons were firing haphazard from speeding automobiles.

Machine Guns Clatter.

The clatter of machine guns and the firing of rifles and pistols reduced uptown Havana to a scene of the wildest disorder as students and A. B. C. radical members joined the heaviest army forces ever to patrol the streets here.

The early outbreaks of shooting centered along Reina street, where Communists were reported to have sniped at the soldiers from the top of the Anti-Imperialist League headquarters.

The Communist demonstration was in honor of Julio Antonio Mella, a student leader killed in Mexico in 1929, whose ashes were brought here this week in tin boxes.

Reports indicated one army captain and four soldiers, including one machine gunner, were among the wounded. The captain, Hernandez Ruda, was in a critical condition. The dead included a 15-year-old boy.

Lost-Family Search Starts

Shipman Offers $25,000 Reward for Wife, Son and Others.

New Orleans, Sept. 29 (AP).—George M. Cox, 56-year-old ship builder, of New Orleans and Chicago, returning from a five weeks' vacation in Cooperstown, Ill., found his Lakeside home here deserted and his 27-year-old wife, their 2-year-old son, George, jr., and Mrs. Cox's parents missing.

Disclosing their disappearance, Cox today offered $25,000 reward for their safe return. He expressed fears that they had been kidnaped. Friends said they believed the quartet were on a vacation.

A watchman on the Cox property, on Lake Ponchartrain, said Mrs. Cox and her son and parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Goertz, left in the family car late Saturday. They told the watchman they were going to spend the week-end on the Mississippi Coast.

Cox said he had been unable to find any trace of them. He said Mrs. Cox had drawn $9,000 from their joint bank account on the day before she left, and that she also wore jewelry worth $10,000.

Howard Gaining Against Illness

Congressman's Wife Due to Arrive Today.

Improvement was reported yesterday in the condition of Representative Edgar Howard (Democrat), of Nebraska, suffering with shingles, a nerve disorder, at George Washington Inn.

Friends reported Howard disregarded poor health and made the long trip to Washington from Columbus, Nebr., a week ago. He thought his presence here was necessary in connection with speeding work on a Western waterways project. He has been confined to his hotel ever since arriving here.

Mrs. Howard, summoned to his bedside, is expected to arrive today from Columbus.

Patman Takes Bonus Demand To Legion Meet

News Is Like Bombshell to Leaders, Hoping to Avoid Issue.

Waning issue of immediate cash bonus repayment was revived last night by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, on the eve of the American Legion's Chicago convention.

The congressional bonus champion announced a program including the bonus and calling for payment of the $22,000,000,000 national debt in currency to save $725,000,000 annually in interest on tax-exempt bonds.

The Patman statement fell as a bombshell in legion circles. Although hitherto indefatigable in his efforts for the cash bonus, the Texan apparently had just switched his [illegible] letter to the disabled American veterans he recently expressed hearty accord with that organization's plan to defer the cash bonus in favor of adequate relief for service-connected cases.

Veterans Leave Today.

Meanwhile, Washington's delegation of 500 legionnaires, led by former Senator Rice W. Means, prepared to entrain this afternoon for Chicago. The convention, apparently predisposed against the bonus, will open Monday.

Despite the drive for inflation and revived arguments that cash bonus payments would start inflation from the needy bottom, leaders were willing to sidetrack immediate payment in favor of a vigorous stand in favor of full payment of service-connected disability pensions.

In a formal statement last night, however, Representative Patman said that by giving currency to veterans for equities in the certificates the Government would save $112,000,000 a year. Plus the interest in bonds covering the national debt, this would amount to saving $837,000,000 annually, he said.

Convention Fight Seen.

A delegate to the convention, he said he would ask that the sum saved be used to restore to veterans benefits lost through the economy bill. He proposed in addition to provide old age pensions and allotments to widows and orphans, without reference to military service.

The Patman program may precipitate a convention battle over the bonus the legion leaders had hoped to avoid. It had been confidently expected there would be no bonus action at Chicago unless the convention got entirely out of hand.

Prior to the Texan's statement, Henry H. Curran, director of the National Economy League, had asked National Commander Louis A. Johnson to clarify his attitude on the whole subject of veterans' pensions in a latter made public yesterday. He said the league distinguishes between war service disabilities and injuries incurred in civil life.

Services Halted To Kill Moccasin Discovered in Pew

Winchester, Va., Sept. 29 (Spl.). Excitement reigned at Wood Chapel last night when Miss Minnie Rutherford took her usual pew. She found a spreadhead moccasin had sought rest and relaxation there first.

Miss Rutherford was about to be seated when she spied the snake and quickly sounded an alarm. Masculine members of the congregation rushed to her assistance.

It was believed the snake has been captured and held prisoner on the pew by a spider which ensnared it in its web. The snake was about 18 inches long.

Illinois Bus Speed Cut Will Be Reconsidered

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Illinois commerce commission will meet next Tuesday to consider modification of a new rule limiting to 25 miles an hour the speed of buses on highways.

Bus companies have made serious complaint that a reduction from 40 to 25 miles an hour would ruin their business.

Taxicab Fares Given Boost In "Out" Zones

Schedule of 20-30-50-70 Going Into Effect Tomorrow.

Culminating three years of activity aimed at effecting uniform taxicab rates and zones in Washington, People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech yesterday announced a new flat rate schedule which has been accepted by all large operators of cabs and most of the independents.

The schedule filed with the Public Utilities Commission sets up a higher fare for a large part of the city outside of the most congested area to increase the meager profits of the drivers.

Rates, effective after Saturday midnight, are 20, 30, 50, 70 cents with a four-zone system in place of the three zones now used by a majority of the cab operators. Its chief difference with the present zones is that the primary zone has been cut practically into two zones with a 30-cent charge for the second area.

Maps to Be Posted.

There are now a half dozen different zone systems with varying rates charged, thus making it extremely difficult for the average patron to determine whether he is being overcharged. Miniature maps showing the new rates and boundaries will be posted in all cabs so that the patron may know in advance how much he must pay.

In some instances the outlying areas will get a lower rate, as some rates now have a top of from 80 cents to $1.30. Most cabs, however, charged 20, 40 and 60 cents.

The first zone of the new plan is bounded by Florida avenue on the northwest, Eighth street, D street, the north side of the Tidal Basin, Constitution avenue and Twenty-second street. The remainder of the city is divided into three proportional zones.

20 Cents in Any One Zone.

As heretofore, the fare is only 20 cents so long as a cab remains in one zone, whether it be the first, second, third or fourth. When a cab comes in from the fourth zone, the fare jumps 20 cents with each zone, thus making the scale 20, 40, 60 and 70 cents.

A personal service charge of 25 cents extra whenever a cab is called upon to run errands and a charge of

McKee's Entry Held Clearing Political Air

New York Race in Open; "Wise" Observers Say Tammany Beaten.

By Elliott Thurston.

With the tacit blessing of Postmaster General Farley, President Roosevelt's political general, Joseph V. McKee plunged into the New York mayoralty race yesterday with a bang that echoed around the White House.

Besides relieving a week's political suspense, the one-time acting mayor thereupon became the favorite to expunge Tammany's Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany's Boss John F. Curry, Brooklyn's Boss John H. McCooey and various other political veterans, including Fusion Candidate Fiorello H. LaGuardia, erstwhile Socialist and insurgent Republican, all of whom are in the bad graces of what Mr. McKee called the "solid element" of the Republican and Democratic citizenry.

However, if the former professor of Greek should disappoint his backers, including ostensibly the Roosevelt administration, his downfall would badly blur the hopes of Mr. Farley and his associate strategists who see in McKee the instrument of deliverance, not merely from the Messrs. Curry, McCooey, O'Brien, &c., but other serious impediments in the pivotal New York vote in the next governorship and presidential elections.

Victory Seen by "Wise."

That McKee will vanquish O'Brien and LaGuardia, despite the anguish of the Progressives who dote on LaGuardia, is generally assumed by the political wise men. Some of LaGuardia's former congressional colleagues will mutter about the Roosevelt administration's alleged desertion of their favorite. But otherwise all will be well from the administration standpoint, portending an unprecedented grip upon the New York political situation, State and municipal.

Aside from Mr. Farley's reputed

Higher Food Prices Fixed In New Code

Consumer to Pay More if Provision Stands on Mark-Up.

Dr. Howe Opposes Plan; Public Hearing Set for October 9.

Minimum price fixing on foodstuffs, which Agricultural Department economists assert will boost food costs, has been included in the proposed master food and grocery code, George N. Peek, agricultural administrator, announced yesterday.

The code will go to public hearing October 9 providing that wholesale grocers can not cut their prices to less than 2½ per cent above cost and retailers can not set prices at less than 7½ per cent above cost. The per cent increase above cost made by a merchant is known as the mark-up, from which he gets his profit.

Although at his press conference Peek declined to reveal the farm administration's attitude on the minimum mark-up proposals, the Associated Press last night said it had learned from an authoritative source that price-fixing in the form of minimum mark-ups is slated for definite rejection by the adjustment administration.

Peek, according to the Associated Press, has determined that no price-fixing would be authorized for distributors by the administration except where codes or marketing agreements dealing with agriculture assured parity prices for farm products.

The administrator's announcement said economists and food distribution specialists in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration believe the provisions may crowd out many "small independent merchants" and will boost prices on staples. The provisions would hit lower income brackets hardest, the economists stated.

Bars Use of Leaders.

Besides setting minimum mark-ups, the code forbids the use of cut-price "leaders." "No grocery manufacturer shall engage in destructive price cutting," it states.

Bread prices in Washington already have increased eight-tenths of a cent since February, Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, announced, while for the Nation, the average increase was 1.2 cents.

Mr. Peek also announced negotiations are under way to get meat, dairy and food industries to process their products without profit for emergency relief administration distribution to the needy. He stated the relief administration could use "very substantial" amounts of profitless products, and that it appeared the dairy and meat industries would "cooperate to the fullest." Negotiations with the food industry have not been pushed.

Dr. Howe Disapproves.

Disapproval of the minimum price fixing was expressed by Dr. Howe, and the question arose whether the provisions might not run contrary to the master retail code, now in NRA hearings. Peek would not comment on possible conflict with the NRA retail code, indicating he would wait and see what provisions that code contains on prices.

6 Scared Robbers Shoot Bank Head

Bandits Fire, Flee When Burglar Alarm Rings.

Debuque, Iowa, Sept. 29 (AP). Six men who attempted to hold up the First National Bank of Oelwein, Iowa, today and wounded two persons, were being pursued by Dubuque police on Davenport highway tonight.

Dubuque police armed with machine guns traced the automobile in which the men were traveling to Center Grove, Iowa. Police said the bandits entered a side road and their trail was lost temporarily.

C. B. Chambers, 48, bank president, was shot in the shoulder when a burglar alarm scared the robbers. One of their bullets struck Ernest Klatt, outside the bank.

Jury, Like Woman, Changes Its Mind; Revokes Alimony

Woman's prerogative to change her mind was usurped yesterday by a jury in Fairfax County, Va.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy instructed the jury. After being out for some time, they returned with the following verdict: "We, the jury find the accused guilty and recommend he pay $30 a month."

The judge sent them back to fix a lump sum amount. When they returned their verdict was: "We, the jury, find the accused not guilty."

Latest Economic Developments

Developments yesterday in the administration's economic recovery program included:

1. President Roosevelt plans to release immediately $6,000,000,000 in depositors' funds tied up in closed banks. At Hyde Park it was said he would announce shortly a plan of Federal financial support to those institutions which have good assets to offer.

2. Minimum price-fixing provisions were inserted in the master food and grocery trade covenant, which administration officials asserted would boost retail food costs. October 9 was set for public hearing.

3. An agreement was reached bringing bituminous mines of the steel companies under the terms of the coal code. The agreement was rushed to Hyde Park where President Roosevelt signed it.

4. Administrator Hugh S. Johnson received the retail code for his signature. This agreement is nationwide in scope and contains proposals for price stabilization. Officials said the retail drug code was not completed.

5. A special advisory committee is planned to work out legislation by which the administration hopes to curb violent price fluctuations on the New York Stock Exchange.

6. Recovery officials are considering a proposal to rewrite the construction industries' code so wage minimums may be lowered and new construction costs reduced to stimulate building.

Accord Signed By Roosevelt In Coal Strike

By Staff Correspondent.

Hyde Park, N. Y. (Saturday), Oct. 1.—President Roosevelt early this morning signed an agreement between Pennsylvania coal operators and striking miners, brought to him by Donald Richberg, NRA counsel, after a swift trip from Washington by plane and motor.

The agreement places the so-called "captive mines" of the steel corporations on the same basis as the commercial mines which have signed the general bituminous coal code, affecting hours, wages and general working conditions.

He smiled broadly when he put his name to the agreement, and turned in after 1 o'clock for a "long sleep."

Richberg flew from Washington to Albany and then motored to Hyde Park. His pilot planned to land at Hyde Park, but missed the field at night.

He expected the agreement to bring about return of 75,000 miners and 25,000 steel workers in the warring western Pennsylvania fields to the pits and plants by Monday.

Pinchot Sees President.

News of the agreement followed closely the arrival here of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who had indicated prior to a conference with the President that it might be necessary to seek Federal intervention to bring peace between operators and miners in the Pennsylvania coal fields.

Pinchot, apparently unaware of the developments in Washington, where NRA officials already had arrived at an agreement, had little to say after his conference with the President.

The governor came by airplane from Harrisburg. He was accompanied by Mrs. Pinchot. Immediately following his conference with the Chief Executive, Gov. Pinchot boarded the plane to return to the Pennsylvania capital.

Price Boost Averted.

A continuance of the shutdown of the Pennsylvania mines undoubtedly would have led to higher prices of that fuel in certain regions, above the anticipated increase resulting from adoption of the coal code by miners and operators in other sections.

There is no surplus of coal above the ground, and, according to governmental estimates, there is only about a month's supply available.

Harry Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, is expected to call on the President today. The subjects to be taken up were not made known, but it was believed his visit is connected with the President's program to expend at least $75,000,000 in the purchase of food and cotton surpluses to aid the destitute during the winter.

Plan to Curb "Wild" Market To Be Sought

Advisory Committee Will Work Out Bill for Congress.

(Associated Press.)

A special advisory committee is being planned by the Roosevelt administration to work out legislation by which it hopes to put a curb upon violent price fluctuations on the New York Stock Exchange.

Plans for establishing the committee were being formulated quietly yesterday by Roosevelt aids in several Federal agencies. They said congressional action would be necessary for the step.

Control of the exchange was described by several administration key men as necessary to prevent speculative excesses which, they said, wrought havoc with commodity values and shattered public confidence.

Would Work Out Remedy.

Under the tentative proposals now being combed over, the committee would study stock market practices, and its membership would work out a legislative remedy for presentation to the next Congress.

No names have been chosen for the committee places as yet, it was said, but thought is being given to the selection of a group representative of the Government, business and finance, and investors.

Several administration legal experts said a bill to control the exchange could be based upon the Government's power over interstate commerce.

Would Curb "Rigging."

They emphasized that the basic aim of regulation would be to prevent wild fluctuations and to guard against market rigging and pool trading.

Just how this would be done was described as a matter for the committee to work on.

Opinion was divided as to whether the Federal Trade Commission would be charged with administering proposed regulatory laws, or the duty be assigned to a board or an individual.

He had been shot in the mouth and police said he had committed suicide. No reason was advanced for his act.

Urschel Kidnap Verdict Ready

Action of Jury Indicates Decision 2½ Hours After Retirement.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Charles F. Urschel kidnaping trial jury was reported unofficially tonight to have reached a verdict after less than two and one-half hours of deliberation.

The verdict will not be announced before 10 a. m. tomorrow, however, as Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught asked that he not be disturbed.

The jury at 7:45 p. m. had returned from the Federal Building to its hotel. The members lounged in several groups in a half dozen rooms. The bailiffs said they had been given strict orders to keep their information secret and no official confirmation of the verdict report was obtainable elsewhere.

The jurors' informal appearance lent credence to the report of a verdict because Judge Vaught had instructed them to deliberate until 10 p. m. tonight unless they agreed before that hour.

The jury received the case at 4:10 p. m., for the first test of the new "Lindbergh law" providing a maximum penalty of life imprisonment on conviction of kidnaping.

The fate of the 10 defendants was placed in the hands of the 12 farmers and business men, after Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught had delivered a lengthy charge and district Attorney Herbert K. Hyde had

Federal Help To Be Given Under Plans Of Roosevelt

Depositors Will Be Paid Cash in Proportion to Liquid Assets.

Solvency to Rule Government Aid

Attention to Be Centered on Those in Position to Reorganize.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The release of $6,000,000,000 tied up in closed banks is expected immediately with announcement of a plan by President Roosevelt whereby payments to depositors may be made on a basis proportional to the liquid assets of the closed banks.

The return of depositors' money is part of the President's program to support the banking structure in the confidence that it will circulate the billions of idle cash now needed for credit in the recovery drive.

Particular attention, it is understood, will be aimed at institutions which ultimately might be reorganized, since their reopening would have a powerful effect upon restoration of business.

Plan Government Aid.

Government aid under the plan being formulated by the administration will not be extended to banking institutions that have long been closed, but the President's idea is to expedite the thawing out of frozen deposits in banks that failed to open immediately following his inauguration into office, when the banking holiday was in effect.

Solvency will be the criterion which the administration will be guided in its offer of Federal aid to the closed banks. Of course, liquidity of closed banks enters the picture, but it was emphasized here that this is of secondary importance.

The President has been advised that his financial advisers are making progress on the broad front of credit expansion, but it was admitted here that details still remain to be worked out.

With regard to the administration's policy for closed banks, it has been intimated that when the

Sheriff Flees From Convicts

One of His Abductors, Who Took Him to Gary, Captured.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 29 (AP). — Haggard, hungry and weak, Sheriff Charles Neel, of Harrison County, a captive of 4 of the 10 convicts who escaped from the Indiana State Prison Tuesday, was freed near here today, and several hours later James Clark, one of his abductors, was captured here.

Neel was forced to hide by day and stumble through woods by night for three days as his captors sought to elude the hundreds of police, militiamen and deputies.

He was released at 3 a. m. near Hobart and made his way to Gary, where he identified pictures of Clark, a bank robber; Walter Diestrich, participant in the same robbery; Joseph Fox, serving a life term for bank robbery, and John Burns, serving a life term for murder, as the men who held him prisoner.

Neel revealed late tonight that Clark was with him when he was freed and that Clark accompanied him into Hobart and Gary.

"If you tell that I'm on this car, I'll kill you," Neel quoted Clark's last words to him.

Clark stayed on the car, arriving in Hammond. There he obtained a taxi from a motor company. It was through the taxi company Clark was traced and captured.

Neel told a story of hardship, but added that the four convicts treated him with as much consideration as possible. He had not eaten from the time he was abducted until he arrived at Gary late tonight.

Building Code Revision Asked With Wage Cut

NRA Requested to Reduce Minimum Scales to Spur Industry.

NRA officials disclosed yesterday they have under consideration a proposal to rewrite the construction industries' code and its nine subsidiary codes, so wage minimums may be lowered and the cost of new construction thereby reduced to stimulate building now lagging because of high costs.

While the rewriting is not actually planned, it is under review as a possible device to further NRA aims.

To write down the wages already set in codes would constitute such a reversal of policy that NRA authorities doubt if labor's consent could be obtained.

However, the pending suggestion calls for only a one-year wage reduction to be followed, automatically, by a 20 per cent increase and then such further wage increases as would, in theory, put the construction labor wages at parity with wages in other lines.

If the plan gets beyond the merely tentative stage, labor would be asked to consent on the ground that the resultant stimulation would increase employment and that the sacrifice would be offset by later increases.

Memorial Destroyed

The demonstration was to have been climaxed at a brick obelisk in the park, where Mella's ashes were to have been buried. The soldiers, however, stopped men working on the memorial, destroyed it and then posted guards to see that no one approached.

As rifle, pistol and machine-gun fire began popping from a number of points, the thousands in the street, including throngs of curious, rushed for cover, but a general strike had closed virtually all doors against them. Frightened householders scurried into their doorways, blocking and bolting all doors tightly behind them.

The firing started soon after the Communists, carrying banners attacking the Ramon Grau San Martin government, United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, "Yankee imperialism" and Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, left the headquarters of the Anti-Imperialist League. The original 1,000 marchers were augmented by other hundreds as the procession moved along Reina street.

Ambassador Welles reached his embassy, about a mile from the center of the disturbance, during the height of the confusion. Considerable shooting also was reported from the Vedado residential section, where a number of Americans make their homes.

Palace Under Guard.

An extra guard was placed at the presidential palace, cavalry galloped wildly through the streets and an army tank bearing machine guns rumbled into position.

A heavy rain was falling.

A sniper firing from the Anti-imperialist League headquarters wounded one soldier. Troops rushed into the building and ousted all occupants.

Heavy firing later broke out near the plant of the newspaper Diario De La Marina. There also was shooting all along the length of the famed Prado boulevard, which splits the heart of uptown Havana.

The Diario building was locked and barred and elevator service stopped. Associated Press employes in the building were virtual prisoners. The correspondents stretched out on the floor to write their dispatches as bullets whined ricocheting off the stone columns, sidewalks and brick sides of the building.

Eyewitnesses said the trouble started when automobiles carrying unidentified persons roared by with the occupants firing at the soldiers.

Soldiers also cleared the Communists and the workers out of the Nationl Labor Federation building on Zulueta street and machine guns were mounted inside.

Debt Repudiated.

Havana, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The Grau government took its first step toward repudiation of foreign debts today with a presidential decree annulling the contract entered into August 2 by the Machado congress with the First National Bank of Boston.

This provided for payment of $2,950,000 interest due last June 30 on $20,000,000 of 5½ per cent short term Treasury obligations. The sum was to be paid from profits of 6,000,000 silver pesos coined at the Philadelphia mint.

The Boston bank already has been paid $1,400,000 as trustee for the bondholders, but today's decree made no provision for payment of the balance of $1,550,000 still due.

Frostburg Bankers Get Term in Prison

Convicted on Applying of Funds Charge.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Three former officials of the closed Citizens National Bank, of Frostburg, Md., were sentenced to the Maryland Penitentiary today when a jury found them guilty of making false banking reports and misapplication of funds.

Emery G. Hitchins, 61, former president of the bank, was sentenced to two years. Paul L. Hitchins, secretary to the board of directors, and Frank Watts, former cashier, who had previously plead guilty to misappropriations, also were sentenced to three years.

The jury was out seven hours.

New York, Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Gen. de Chambrun, direct descendant of Lafayette, arrived today on the Berengaria, accompanied by his wife, the Countess de Chambrun, and Maj. de Line.

Gen. de Chambrun is here on an official mission to represent the French government at the American Legion convention in Chicago, October 2. He was greeted at the pier by a delegation of the American Legion, while the band of the Sixteenth Infantry played the stirring "Sambre et Meuse."

Born in Washington.

Gen. de Chambrun was chosen by the French government because of his ties with America. Born in Washington, where he had his early education, he returned both as military attache and professor at the American War College.

Through his marriage he became brother-in-law of Nicholas Longworth, late Speaker of the House, whose family had been directly identified with the foundation and growth of the city of Cincinnati, where in 1825 Lafayette visited his old associates. Nicholas Longworth's great-granduncle, with Richard Clough Anderson, had been his staff officer during the Revolution.

Countess de Chambrun always has been connected with her husband's work. When he commanded in northern Morocco, she made herself so popular with the soldiers she was incorporated regularly into the Third Regiment of the Foreign Legion, to which she still beelongs.

Book Pictures Morocco.

Her book, "His Wife's Romance," gives a vivid picture of the Morocco of those days. Naturally, as the sister of Nicholas Longworth, and by right of her own charm and attainments, she is well known in Washington. She writes equally well in French or English. She holds an LL. D. from the Sorbonne and is an eminent Shakespearean. Her latest work is a biography of her brother.

Gen. de Chambrun is a technical expert in the artillery and a historian, author of "The American Army in the European Conflict."

Asked today whether the situation in Europe caused him anxiety, he answered:

"Not too much, or I wouldn't be here."

50 cents for trunks is included in the new schedule. There is no charge for hand baggage.

Waiting time is 10 cents for each five minutes, and a charge of 20 cents is made for stops made over five blocks off the direct route.

The new schedule is the outgrowth of several weeks of intensive discussion among the cab operators, under the leadership of People's Counsel Keech.

More than 3,000 cab operators have definitely agreed to adhere to the new rates, and other independents are expected to comply soon. Records of the Public Utilities Commission now show 3,580 licenses have been issued for this year, more than 800 less than last year.

The larger cab companies which have adopted the new rate schedule are:

Graylon Cab Association, White Cab Corporation, Security Cab Company, Minute Cab Company, Capitol-Yellow Cab Company, Bell Cab Association, Blue-Light Cab Corporation, City Cab Corporation, Premier Cab Association, Diamond Cabs, General Cab Corporation, and Prudom Cab Corporation.

Luer Kidnaping Jury Deadlocked on Verdict

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 29 (U.P.).—A jury weighing evidence against five men and a woman charged with abducting August Luer, 77-year-old Alton (Ill.) banker and meat packer, remained locked up tonight in a jury room, seeking to decide the fate of the defendants.

More than 100 persons, hopeful of being present when the jury reached its verdict, remained in the Madison County Circuit Court room throughout the day.

Scrapping Low Bids Is Charged To Ship Board

Probers Told Shipyard Got Job on Guarantee of Loan Payment.

After lending the Export Steamship Co. $7,000,000 to build new ships, the Shipping Board scrapped low construction bids and ordered the money spent with a shipyard which guaranteed payment of part of the Export's debt, a Senate committee heard yesterday.

E. H. Nevin, of New York, treasurer of the Export line, caused a ripple of excitement in the rooms where the Black committee was investigating ship subsidies when he presented that testimony.

The board, then headed by Chairman T. V. O'Connor, he said, threw out the bid of the Spears Engineering Co. and placed the ship order with the New York Shipbuilding Co. for $800,000 more.

The latter company, he said, had guaranteed payment of $400,000 of the Export Steamship Co.'s debt. It previously had been testified that O'Connor and Henry Heberman, the Export president, were friends of 25 years standing, played poker together and lived in the same hotels.

Nevin said he could not explain disposition of sums drawn out in currency and spent by Heberman in 1926, 1927 and 1928 on his visits to Washington during negotiations with the Shipping Board.

However, he did identify a cash book entry when Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, the committee chairman, sought to substantiate previous testimony that Heberman had ordered payment of a $510 tailor's bill for O'Connor.

Black inserted into the record figures which he said showed the Export line had received subsidies of $45,230,151 during the Coolidge and Hoover administrations.

He also produced data to show the company, for $1,351,307, had obtained 23 ships from the Shipping Board which had cost the Government $42,114,117.

Naming some of the subsidies, Black declared that under its 10-year mail contract awarded in 1928 the line would receive $18,397,000 in ocean mail subsidies, that vessels were sold to it at $3,564,694 less than world market value, that the Shipping Board even paid $467,457 insurance on the company's craft, and that $7,000,000 was loaned for construction of the four new ships.

Additionally, he asserted, the board spent $1,351,000 to repair ships it sold to Export for only $1,351,307.

The hearing completed collection of evidence concerning the first of 50 steamship companies which are to come under the investigation. Monday the committee plans to hear R. J. Baker, secretary and treasurer of the American Steamship Owners Association, on publicity efforts of the organization.

Governor Halts State's Affairs To Save 3 Orphans' Pet Dog

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 29 (A.P.).—Matters of State were shunted aside for a time today while Gov. White moved to save a pet dog for three orphan children of Delphos, Ohio.

Appealed to by the orphans to save their pet from death at the hands of a dog warden, the governor telephoned Carl Neville, Allen County Democratic chairman, and instructed him to rescue the dog and buy a license. "Send me the bill," said the Governor.

The letter to the executive came from Walter, James and Bobby Doan, brothers. They wrote:

"Gov. White:

"We are three little orphan boys. We live with our grandmother who is a widow. Our grandfather died the third of July. He had been sick a long time. He was a very good man. We are very poor, Mr. White, and we don't have playthings or wagons or bicycles like other boys.

"Our grandmother is good and kind, but she hasn't money. All we had was a little fox terrier pup and the dog catcher from Lima took her away because grandmother couldn't by her a license. I am afraid he will kill her. She is very wise, sir, and loves us. I know you have the power to give her back to us or give her a good home. Please don't let the dog catcher kill her. I miss her so much.

"Yours Truly,

"WALTER DOAN, JAMES DOAN, BOBBY DOAN."

Johnson Gets Retail Code To Fix Prices

Approval Expected Today With Quick Dispatch to President.

The retail code, with its proposals for price regulation to stabilize trade throughout the Nation, last night was placed in the hands of Hugh S. Johnson for signature.

Officials expected him to give his approval early today and dispatch to President Roosevelt for promulgation the charter that affects more workers than any other yet to pass through the NRA machinery.

Arthur D. Whiteside, deputy administrator, who has handled the long negotiations, said there had been no important change in the provision designed to stop price cutting by requiring retailers to sell at not less than wholesale cost plus 10 per cent.

Drug Code Near Ready.

The deputy added that the drug code, which has worked through the mill side by side with the master retail charter, might not be ready to go to Hyde Park at the same time, but that it would follow quickly.

Both Johnson and Mr. Roosevelt are fully conversant with the provisions of the retail code and informed sources expected the President to sign it so that it could become effective by October 16—the second Monday after signing.

Johnson was reported much improved today at Walter Reed Hospital, with his fever almost gone. He was expected to return to his desk on Monday at the latest, and soon thereafter to announce a general reorganization of the NRA.

This would involve a general consolidation of work that would bring four deputy administrators into key positions, with 15 others working under them.

Key Men Selected.

Whiteside, C. C. Williams, Kenneth M. Simpson, and Malcolm Muir were understood to have been chosen for the key positions.

The retail code was completed for presentation to Johnson at about the same time that the Farm Administration made public codes for retail and wholesale grocers, both of which carry price regulation provisions. It was disclosed, however, that the Farm Administration would not countenance the form of price mark-up carried in these codes.

U. S. Plans to Free Shut Bank Billions question of solvency has been determined governmental aid will be available to bring about liquidity.

One proposal that obviously has attracted interest of the administration is to exchange obligations of closed banks for Government securities. In this connection it was pointed out that the Farm Credit administrator would take over banks' farm mortgages in exchange for its bonds.

There would be a similar exchange of home mortgage bonds for city mortgages held by the banks. Of course, the offer of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy the preferred stocks of banks and exchange its own debentures for bank assets still stands.

The action of the Government in sponsoring a program that will make frozen deposits available is calculated to restore general confidence in the whole banking set-up.

375 Banks Plan Opening.

(Associated Press.)

Carrying out the administration's program, the Treasury announced yesterday it had approved plans for reorganizing 375 banks, but said their opening depends on fulfillment of programs submitted by the various institutions.

In most cases these institutions, all closed national banks, must sell additional preferred stock to rehabilitate their capital structure.

The administration has said it will do all in its power to prevent permanent closing of any bank not hopelessly insolvent.

But it is stipulated the people of the community affected by a closed bank first must do their share in subscribing to a new issue of prefererd stock.

No inference was to be drawn, it was said at the Treasury, from the list published yesterday that banks not contained in it would be prohibited from opening. It was explained others had not submitted reorganization plans acceptable to the Treasury.

In all cases of closed banks, the Comptroller of the Currency has followed a policy of permitting closed banks to work out their own salvation.

Sorry

Son's "Mercy Slayer" Tells Court of Remorse.

Beaver, Pa., Sept. 29 (A.P.).—Pleading guilty to slaying his 13-year-old invalid son to save him from suffering, Robert I. Simington says he now regrets what he regarded at first as an "act of mercy."

There might have been "some other way out," he told the court.

Previously Simington told police he wasn't sorry. He said he felt the boy, Burton, faced a hopeless future because of illness, poverty and homelessness. The child's mother is dead.

16 Operators For Coal Code Rule Suggested

Bituminous Area Group List Submitted to President.

Names of 16 coal operators, recommended to administer the code in the Nation's largest bituminous coal producing area, have been submitted to President Roosevelt for confirmation.

Selection of the administrators was made by Irvin Davis, president of the Hatfield-Campbell Creek Coal Co., chairman of the group. The names were sent National Recovery Administrator Johnson for transmission to the White House.

The group will administer the code in the Appalachian bituminous coal area of West Virginia, exclusive of northern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia.

This area, Davis said, produces 100,000,000 tons annually, more than 70 per cent of the output of the Nation's bituminous coal mines.

Those named, subject to Presidential confirmation, are:

the grocery code will be determined by the NRA.

Opportunty for opponents of minimum price fixing to voice their sentiments will be given in the October 9 hearing, Peek said.

The minimum mark-up provisions, Dr. Howe said, "obviously makes an additional burden to the consumer. It makes an additional burden to the farmer, for the farmer also is a consummer."

"Quite obviously this mark-up means an additional burden to the 80,000,000 other consumers," he said.

Dr. Howe said Congress had refused price-fixing protection for farmers and it would be "the height of absurdity" for the Agricultural Administration to guarantee mark-ups for processers.

Profits Not Guaranteed.

Peek said the agricultural adjustment act was designed to obtain parity prices for farmers and that it "does not provide guarantee of profits to any distributing agency."

The code as written states that a wholesale grocer must mark up his goods at least 2½ per cent, but permits "clear out" and "accommodation" sales. Retail grocers must sell their goods on at least a 7½ per cent mark-up.

This, the food economists declare, will mean prices on fast moving staples, on which small profits are realized for quick turnover, will be boosted.

The code provides for open price competition, prohibits secret rebates, forbids "free deals" and false invoicing and other unfair practices.

Three Indicted In Church Plot

Jury Charges Conspiracy to Bilk Priest.

Miss Elsie Cannon and two brothers, Richard J. and Charles Karl Brinker, were indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on charges of conspiring to extort $37,871 from Father Charles O. Rosensteel, pastor of the St. John's Catholic Church, Forest Glen, Md.

The three were arrested 10 days ago after detectives had allegedly listened to a conversation between them and Father Rosensteel in the church rectory. They were accused of telling the priest that if he did not pay them they would report him to superior church officers.

Work, described as being of a minor character, had been done on the church by the brothers, who had been paid approximately $20,000. Estimates placed the cost of this work at $1,600.

Spiritual Need Of Nation Told By Roosevelt

President Speaks From Pulpit; Stresses Church Aid.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 29 (A.P.).—The Nation was told tonight by President Roosevelt that spiritual values must be held as high as economic values "if the task we all face" is to succeed.

From the pulpit of the Hyde Park Methodist Episcopal Church the President related the history of religion and praised the churches for doing thteir part in relief work.

He called upon local communities and the churches to continue relief work.

"Last winter when I first went to Washington," he said, "I heard a lot of people say we could just let the Government take over the problems of the Nation. But that is not the American way of doing things.

"The churches are doing their share. It is worthy of note that the receipts of churches have fallen off less in this period than receipts of business.

"In the task we all face—the problems of so-called economics, we shall not succeed unless the people hold the spiritual values as high as we do the economic values."

Mrs. Roosevelt and the President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, sr., accompanied him. Mr. Roosevelt joined in the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Wife Disappears From Parked Car

Brooklynite Here to Race Boat Asks Police Aid.

A city-wide search started last night for the wife of a contestant in the President's Cup Regatta.

John Plunkitt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., pilot and owner of the outboard speedboat Wow II, told District police his wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Plunkitt, 33, disappeared about noon from their automobile parked near Key Bridge.

They arrived here yesterday from Brooklyn and registered at the Willard Hotel. Plunkitt's boat, en route here with a mechanic, is expected to race this afternoon. The Plunkitts, it was said, were at Key Bridge awaiting the arrival of the craft, which was to be unloaded from a railroad car under Plunkitt's supervision.

"I was not away from the car five minutes," Plunkitt declared. "I left her sitting in the front seat, and when I returned she was gone."

He informed police Mrs. Plunkitt has been in poor health. Twins were born to them recently, he said.

$200,000 Trial Plans Guarded In Kelly Case

Cost Will Exceed Ransom Obtained by Gang From Urschel.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 29 (AP).—The Government, prepared to spend more money for George "Machine Gun" Kelly's conviction than the $200,000 ransom he and associates allegedly obtained for the release of Charles F. Urschel, began preparations for his removal to Oklahoma City.

Closely guarding their plans for the dash to Oklahoma the agents disclosed that as much money will have been spent in trapping and convicting Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, as was obtained for the oil man's freedom.

Langford Ramsey, Kelly's former brother-in-law, quoted as confessing he made a trip to Coleman in a futile effort to obtain the money for Kelly, entered a plea of "not guilty" when arraigned before United States Commissioner Lester Brenner today on a charge of harboring a fugitive. He was returned to jail in default of $250,000 bond.

Taking advantage of the situation, four aviators staged a hoax at the airport and were responsible for a report Kelly had been whisked away in a plane.

The airmen rushed a handcuffed man into a plane and sped away. The plane circled the city and returned. The "prisoner," it developed, was just another aviator.

McKee Race Entry Clears Party Air

ambitions to be the next New York governor, the set-up will give the Roosevelt administration the greatest advantage in the State ever enjoyed by a Democratic President since Tammany long ago became a chronic menace to Democratic Presidents. More than that, the administration, in spite of its advertised "hands-off" attitude, might glean some of the credit for the promised reform of Tammany.

Assumption of Victory.

All of this assumes that McKee will win, now that he has made it a three-cornered race in which he projected himself yesterday by issuing a prepared statement excoriating "bossism," and promising reformation of the Tiger. The analysists who think, as does Farley, that McKee will triumph, hold that he will get most of the Republican vote save that minority of Progressives who admire LaGuardia, all of the "respectable" Democratic vote, and a large section of the Tammanyites, who, allegedly petrified with fear, will not hesitate to desert Bosses Curry, McCooey, &c., to be with a winner—especially a winner who would, unlike Mr. LaGuardia, be close to the administration in Washington. As Bronx Boss Edward J. Flynn is a chief promoter of the McKee boom, the youthful candidate already is conceded that populous borough.

On this analysis, Mayor O'Brien would get only the votes of the Tammany bosses and diehards, while Mr. LaGuardia would command only the support of disgruntled Progressives in the Republican camp.

Another Picture Seen.

Yet if something should go amiss, if Samuel Seabury and other fusionists behind LaGuardia should continue their uproar to the effect that McKee is only a respectable cloak for the ambitions of Flynn or for the entrenchment of Farley's cohorts, if, in short, McKee should lose, quite a different picture would be presented.

Then Mayor O'Brien would squeak by, Tammany would be proclaimed the victor. Not merely Mr. McKee, but Farley and doubtless the President, would be accused of causing, if not plotting, this thwarting of the better element. More practically, the administration would be in for devastating warfare against a vengeful Tammany. The outlook for 1936 would not be so rosy. In other words, McKee's entry into the field is momentous, not merely locally, but nationally.

Spoke From City Hall.

McKee chose City Hall steps in New York as the setting for his announcement. There were three typed pages of McKee's manifesto, which summoned the righteous to war upon the wicked. It had some clarion phrases in it, as for instance, an allusion to Tammany as "an arrogant leadership of stupidity and corruption, unmatched since the days of Tweed," and to the Tammany bosses as "marked by incompetency, stupidity and utter callousness" plus a "total disregard of decent standards of political life."

These bosses, it said, had brought New York to the "threshhold of bankruptcy," and its obligations "to the point of default and dishonor."

It scoffed at Fusion Candidate LaGuardia by remarking that he "is as objectionable to the solid element of our Republican citizenry as he is to the vast army of Democrats who are disgusted with machine politics," and it added that he "is a poor compromise by a faction of would-be bosses."

Farley Keeps Silent.

To reporters who wondered how prominently Mr. Farley had been in the behind-the-scenes activity which finally decided McKee to run, the candidate replied that he had not seen the general for more than a week. The general, in fact, has been almost invisible to the press for nearly a week, and he dashed back to Washington yesterday and then out again, to make a speech, without uttering a word about the important developments in the regions where he is still Democratic State chairman. And yet it would seem to be superfluous to ask Gen. Farley if he is for Independent Democratic Candidate McKee.

Camera View of Principals in Dramatic Urschel Kidnap Trial at Oklahoma City

Demand Seen For U. S. Home Loan Bonds

$2,000,000 Negotiated by Various State Agencies.

Growing response to the bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation was evidenced yesterday when $2,000,000 of interim certificates—temporary substitutes for the bonds—were shipped to a dozen States by Patrick J. Maloney, treasurer of the corporation.

The Virginia Home Loan office received $50,000 of the certificates and stated $150,000 more would be needed in the next week.

Paul J. Frizzell, newly appointed manager of the local office, said he would need approximately $250,000 to cover the 30 loans he is ready to close. He can not handle the certificates until a deed of trust form is approved by the corporation board.

This technicality will be settled by next week, it is expected. Meanwhile, distressed home owners receiving the loans are continuing to live in their homes and run no risk of foreclosure, Frizzell pointed out.

Stimson "Tells One" On Ramsay MacDonald.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Henry L. Stimson returned to the United States today from Scotland with a joke on Ramsay MacDonald.

He and Mr. MacDonald eluded a bodyguard and went game shooting. "I'll have to be your bodyguard," Mr. Stimson said.

"Suddenly we saw a man coming toward us over the rugged heather patches, and he was carrying something black," Mr. Stimson related. 'This doesn't look very good,' I said, 'but I'm your bodyguard.'

"We laughed, then, when we found it was a photographer and he was carrying a camera."

Creel Resigns Post in NRA

Director for California Said to Clash With Compliance Board.

George N. Creel, war-time director of public information and ardent supporter of President Roosevelt in the primary campaign last year, submitted his resignation yesterday as director of the California State Recovery Board.

The resignation was submitted to Secretary of Commerce Roper, Chairman of the Cabinet committee supervising the NRA program. Because of Roper's absence on a Buffalo speaking engagement, Commerce Department officials declined to comment. NRA officials confirmed that Creel had relinquished his post.

A misunderstanding between Creel and officers of the California NRA Compliance Board is understood to have led to the resignation, which was reported to have been telegraphed to Washington yesterday from Los Angeles.

Two Quakes in Week Shake Portion of Italy

Sulmona, Italy, Sept. 29 (AP).—Another strong earth shock was felt late today in this district, severely shaken earlier this week. Houses, weakened by the first disturbance, tumbled, but no other damage was done.

Dispatches from Chieti and other towns said the shock was felt only slightly.

New 'Lindbergh Kidnaping Act' To Rule Verdict in Urschel Case

The so-called "Lindbergh kidnaping law" under which the Urschel defendants were tried, was introduced by Senator Roscoe C. Patterson, Missouri. Passed by the Senate June 8, last and by the House, June 17, it was signed by the President June 22. The text:

"An act forbidding the transportation of any person in interstate or foreign commerce, kidnaped, or otherwise unlawfully detained, and making such act a felony.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That whoever shall knowingly transport or cause to be transported, or aid or abet in transporting, in interstate or foreign commerce, any person who shall have been unlawfully seized, confined, inveigled, decoyed, kidnaped, abducted, or carried away by any means whatsoever and held for ransom or reward shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the penintentiary for such term of years as the court, in its discretion, shall determine: Provided, That the term 'interstate or foreign commerce' shall include transportation from one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia to another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or to a foreign country; or from a foreign country to any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia: Provided further, That if two or more persons enter into an agreement, confederation, or conspiracy to violate the provisions of the foregoing act and do any overt act toward carrying out such unlawful agreement, confederation, or conspiracy such person or persons shall be punished in like manner as hereinbefore provided by this act."

Verdict Indicated In Urschel Case

When the jurors had not reached a verdict at 5:30 p. m., Judge Vaught told them he would not return tonight and left the building. The Jury was ordered to deliberate until 10 p. m., and, if necessary, to resume at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

If a verdict is returned tonight, it will be sealed until morning.

Judge Vaught instructed the jury that "not all the parties need to have unlawfully planned together originally in order to constitute a conspiracy."

"The acts of one conspirator," he said, "bind another, even though the others are passive in accomplishment of the overt acts.

"You are instructed that so long as any of the ransom was in the hands of the alleged conspirators and they were continuing their efforts to exchange same, the conspiracy was in full force and effect as to such consirators."

"It is necessary that you find, however, that each said defendant was actually part of the conspiracy before you find him guilty; that he entered the original form or entered later with knowledge of the conspiracy's existence."

Judge Vaught passed over the cases of Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates with little discussion, but devoted some time to the cases of the Shannons—the father, R. G. Shannon, his wife, Ora, and his son, Armon.

"You are instructed," he told the jury, "that the reasons and excuses that they gave—fear and intimidation—for holding Urschel prisoner on their Wise County, Tex., farm, do not constitute a defense at law."

The claim of Bailey that he was but the victim of coincidences when captured, armed with a machine gun, and carrying part of the $200,000 Urschel ransom, was bitterly assailed by prosecutor Hyde.

Farmers Get Most of Rise In Food Prices

Dr. Howe, of Consumers' Counsel, Reports 20 Per Cent Boost.

A 50 per cent increase in payments to farmers already has resulted from 20 per cent increases in the price of food, Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumers counsel of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration, said last night.

"The extra dollars consumers are paying" are going almost entirely to farmers, he stated. The "prewar dollar" goal still is far away, however, he said.

Bureau of Labor statistics show some cities are paying considerably above average prices. Boston is paying most for round steak, and Los Angeles pays more for pork chops than any other community. Peoria, Ill., pays highest for prunes, and Seattle's lard costs most.

Prices received by farmers in mid-September were below those of July and August, but above those of a year ago. Advance in prices paid by farmers has been more rapid in the last three months than in any similar period since 1923, the Farm Administration counsel said.

Wheat reduction agreements affecting 400,000 farmers, curtailing planting by 4,600,000 acres, have been signed for next year. This is slightly more than 50 per cent of the goal set.

Electric Bills Cut $18000 for Month

District electric users will save $18,000 this month as the result of the transfer September 1 of the 3 per cent Federal tax from consumers to utilities.

Figures revealed yesterday by the Potomac Electric Power Co. showed the tax in Washington amounts to about $216,000 a year. Bills being mailed out this month are prorated, as most of them cover part of August and part of September.

Station WIND Faces Inquiry For False News Broadcast

Alleged falsification of a news broadcast by an announcer over Radio Station WIND, Gary, Ind., to add a touch of realism, may bring a Federal Radio Commission investigation, it developed yesterday.

Commission officials said they would not start an inquiry until charges are preferred.

Retraction Refused.

"I understand," Leach said, "that those who broadcast the maliciously and ridiculously false report of the gun battle between police and a group of escaped convicts have failed to keep their promise to broadcast a retraction of that report."

He added the promise was made when he released Steve Trumbull, an employe of the Columbia Broadcasting System, taken to Tremont for questioning.

The broadcast was made from the scene of the man hunt Thursday night and included an interview with Mrs. Thelma Gustafson. She told of seeing several fleeing convicts.

Asked Officers' Aid.

Leach reported Trumbull asked him for several men to help in putting on a gun show, but he replied the suggestion was "ridiculous." Trumbull, however, said the shots were fired by three officers and one civilian without solicitation from the radio operators.

From Ralph Atlass, president of station WIND, came a statement that he saw no reason why there should be a retraction. He insisted action should be taken against all stations on the chain carrying the program if charges were made against his station.

Announcer Dismissed.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Columbia Broadcasting System today announced that the man responsible for the allegedly faked broadcast of a gun fight between Indiana State police and escaped convicts had been dismissed.

A statement issued by Columbia said that its investigation disclosed that the man in charge of the broadcast "did connive at increasing the number of shots, although there were shots of spontaneous origin."

"Because the man was thoroughly aware of Columbia's rigid policy of accuracy, the statement said, "and its answering rule against sensationalism, maintained throughout the company's history, his connection with this organization has been terminated."

End of Tipping Being Pressed In Hotel Code

Practice May Be Stopped Here Six Months After Adoption.

Tipping may be abolished in Washington hotels in six months with adoption of the hotel industry code.

A brief submitted by George M. Tisdale, of the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board, at the hearing just concluded, suggests "that six months' study of the tipping system be provided for in the code, looking forward to ending it at the expiration of that time and to the substitution of established pay scales for all hotel employes."

The proposed code, submitted by Lucius M. Boomer, head of the Waldorf-Astoria Corporation, provided that employes should retain any tips they received, with the employer adding to the gratuities an amount to bring the weekly rates of pay to the average rate obtaining for each individual during 1929.

Pointing out that "the amounts of tips never has been a matter of written hotel record," and that under the proposed provision "the way would be open for an employe to hide the true amount of weekly gratuities in order to increase the margin his employer must meet," and characterizing tips as "degrading and open to abuse," the Consumers' Advisory Board urged abolition of tipping entirely.

The board's suggestion had the approval of organized labor in the hotel industry, represented by Edward Flore, NRA labor adviser, and the hearty support of Miss Lucy Randolph Mason, of the National Consumers' League, who exclaimed: "A great shout of joy would go up if tips were done away with."

Dr. Marlatt, Plant Disease Warrior, Leaves U. S. Bureau

Entomology Chief Served 44 Years; Succeeded by Lee A. Strong.

Dr. Charles L. Marlatt, the man who has been responsible for keeping out of this country many undesirable aliens—destructive insects and plant diseases—is retiring today as chief of the Bureau of Entymology, Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Marlatt will be succeeded by Lee A. Strong, chief of the Bureau of Plant Quarantine, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced yesterday. Mr. Strong will assume his new duties tomorrow.

Entering the service of the Department of Agriculture 44 years ago, Dr. Marlatt, who was 70 last Tuesday, was chief of the Bureau of Entymology since 1927.

From 1909 to 1912 he directed efforts to secure a national law to prevent importation of infested and diseased plants, resulting in the plant-quarantine act of 1912.

Dr. Marlatt, who resides at 1521 Sixteenth street northwest, later became chairman of the Horticultural Board to supervise the quarantine law.

Board of Trade Will Survey Store-Door Idea

Railroad's New Service Expected to Get Good Patronage.

Inquiry into the Pennsylvania Railroad's proposed store-door freight delivery plan by a special committee was decided upon yesterday by the Washington Board of Trade.

The board's committee on traffic and transportation will be reorganized for the study.

Although it will be impossible to appraise advantages of the service until new special rates have been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington traffic experts, meanwhile, expressed belief it would be generously patronized both for incoming and outward freight.

Representatives of standard express companies rejected the suggestion that the new freight service threatened heavy inroads upon their business. Only in rare instances, they emphasized, would express consignments be diverted to the slower freight service. The store-door delivery is offered solely to meet truck freighting competition.

The Board of Trade's traffic committee has been inactive since the death several months ago of Theodore W. Noyes, jr., its chairman. The committee will be reorganized immediately to represent local shipping interests at the projected I. C. C. hearings on the new service and rates.

No date yet has been set for the hearings or for inauguration of the service.

Baltimore & Ohio officials expressed interest in the Pennsylvania experiment, but were unable to predict whether they would attempt store-door service.

Transportation experts of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who have been surveying the store-door delivery problem for several years, believed other Eastern trunk lines would await results of the Pennsylvania experiment before deciding their course.

League's Defense Of Jews Demanded

Swede Insists Upon Stand for Equality of Men.

Geneva, Sept. 29 (AP).—Suggestion that the Jewish question be referred by the League of Nations Assembly to a committee was made today by a Swedish delegate, Richard Sandler, who insisted the league should stand for equality of men.

A resolution asking formation of plans for assisting refugees, but not mentioning Jews by name, was introduced by Dr. A. de Graeff, Dutch foreign minister. The Dutchman, refraining from using the word Jews, said the refugees had become a problem to be solved only by international cooperation.

Germans here declared they were not offended by the Dutch resolution, as they were convinced Holland sincerely was seeking to ameliorate plight of the Jews.

Orphans to See Hunt's Circus As Post Guests

George Washington climbed into his high-wheeled coach and went to Rickett's Circus the night after signing the Proclamation of Neutrality 140 years ago.

He saw almost the same performance that The Washington Post will provide for the District's orphan children during the next six days. Hunt's Three-Ring Circus is the last surviving representative of the "family circus," which was the first stage in the development of circuses in this country.

Children from the Jewish Foster Home and the Georgetown Boys' Club will be guests of The Post at the matinee performance of the Hunt family today at 2:15 p. m. at Wisconsin avenue and S street.

After the evening performance stakes will be pulled and the "big top" packed into motor trucks, will take its place behind "Bob," the largest lion in the world," and will move to Wisconsin and Arizona avenues. Here on Monday at 3:30 p. m., children from Hillcrest, the District of Columbia orphanage, will be furnished free seats by The Post.

Food Prices Here Jump 5 Per Cent

Figures for Year Bases on 45 Products.

Retail food prices in Washington have increased 5 per cent during the last year and are climbing at the rate of one-half per cent monthly, the Labor Department said yesterday.

For the two weeks ended September 12 food prices advanced six-tenths of 1 per cent. The index is based upon 45 commodities on the housewife's marketing list.

For the country as a whole, the food index declined fractionally between August 29 and September 12, but Washington was one of 24 cities reporting a fractional increase.

Broken Saw Fragments Hurt Machine Operator

Timothy M. Miller, 34, 1034 Thirtieth street northwest, narrowly escaped death yesterday when a circular wood saw broke in a garage in the rear of 3037 K street northwest.

Miller, feeding the machine, was cut on the right arm and hand by the flying pieces of the blade. He was taken to Emergency Hospital by the Fire Rescue Squad.

Kelly Hiders Held On $10,000 Bonds

Two Texans Deny Aiding Arch Criminal.

Abilene, Tex., Sept. 29 (AP).—Bond of $10,000 was fixed today in the cases of Cass Coleman and Will Casey, farmers, on charges of harboring a fugitive, George R. Kelly, in the Urschel kidnaping case.

They pleaded not guilty, and waived examining trial, being held in the Taylor County Jail.

Chillum Fights Gas Structure

P. S. C. Continue Hearing After 5-Hour Dispute.

After listening for 5 hours to arguments for and against the erection of a gas holder at Chillum, Md., the Maryland Public Service Commission yesterday postponed the remainder of the hearing until Monday.

The holder, officials of the Prince Georges County Gas Corporation testified, is necessary for continuation of Maryland and Washington gas service. To delay the erection would before long necessitate stopping the gas flow, and would subsequently endanger hundreds of lives, they said.

Fifty citizens of Chillum district protested at the Baltimore offices. Led by John E. Hoover, of Washington, they contended the holder was an opening wedge for further gas plant construction.

"If this project is completed," Hoover declared, "it will destroy all hope of future growth of educational institutions in this section." Father Luke, head of La Salle College, located near the proposed site, also spoke in opposition.

Moose Article Credits Davis With 1930 Ball

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—An article in the Loyal Order of Moose magazine, saying that the charity ball in 1930 "originated in the mind" of Senator James J. Davis, was entered today in his trial on charges of violating Federal lottery laws.

While the indictment against the Pennsylvania senator, the director general of the Moose, was based on the order's 1931 charity ball, Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes allowed the account of the previous year's affair into evidence as a means of showing a motive for the alleged lottery violations in 1931.

Discussing "two of the most important movements in the entire history of the order" and saying they "originated in the mind of our director general," the article said:

"The first of these was the charity ball (of 1930) which simply startled not only our own membership but the whole fraternal world."

New York Ruled From Bedside

Progress Seen in Condition of Governor Lehman.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Although confined to bed with an attack of appendicitis, Gov. Lehman continued today to take an active part in official affairs. His condition was described by his secretary as "satisfactory."

Inquiries regarding the governor's health poured into his home. Joseph Canavan, the secretary, said President Roosevelt sent a message.

Late in the day Canavan issued a statement saying physicians expressed themselves as "satisfied with the progress" their patient had made during the day.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Systolic Heart Murmur.

Hundreds of inquiries have come from persons who have been told they have systolic heart murmurs. They want to know what that means, in several senses of the word.

It has not been many years since physicians were telling their patients a systolic heart murmur means trouble—if not present, then around the corner. In more recent years they have followed a different policy. Perhaps the majority of people who have such murmurs and have asked their physicians about them have been told they were of no importance. We are now in the third stage. The pendulum having swung to both extremes, it now stays for a while in a position about midway between the outer two.

A heart murmur is an unnatural sound made by the blood passing through the gates between the heart cavities. A systolic murmur is a soft blowing sound heard at a certain stage of the heart beat. It is heard best on the left side about the fifth rib, and some four inches from the breastbone.

The murmur is caused by blood leaking back through the closed mitral valve. It is caused by a stiffening, scarring or narrowing of the valve itself, and by an acute inflammation of the valve. When these are the causes of the murmur the warning of trouble is justified. But in addition it is caused by anemia of various kinds, by nervous heart and by tobacco heart. When any one of this group is responsible the possibility of serious trouble is far less. Possibly some people have systolic heart murmur who have nothing wrong with them, who are in good health and who have a good chance of remaining so for many years.

When such a murmur is heard in a person who is apparently well and is free from other symptoms, the case should be studied. Furthermore, there should be periodic health examinations for a few years, at least. In other words, the symptom, systolic murmur, may precede other symptoms by several years.

20 Pounds Underweight.

A and B write: A is 6 feet 1 inch and his weight is 160 pounds. He has small bones. B says A is underweight by 20 pounds; that the weight goes by height and age. A says the weight goes by size of the bones as well as age and height. Has A a good weight or not? He is 28 years old. Also, is A or B right?

Reply.

A is about 20 pounds underweight.

Poison Ivy and Vinegar.

L. A. D. writes: For poison ivy apply vinegar to the affected parts. For head lice saturate head with 1 ounce of sassafras oil. It works like magic. This oil can be bought in the drug store.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

BAKER.

WHILE visiting in Massachusetts recently, Miss Emily S. Steele, (*), I. C. C., noticed a big book her hosts were using for a door stop. Her inquisitive mind took an exploratory trend, resulting in discovery of "Picturesque Washington," published by Joseph West Moore in 1888.

Government clerks of 45 years ago had their trials and tribulations as well as their sons and daughters of today, as indicated by this excerpt:

"People who are unacquainted with department life in Washington are very apt to believe that Government clerks, as a general thing, are indolent and improvident—a office by political favor, who work peculiar set who have obtained very little and who spend the liberal (?) salaries in extravagant living. This is a singular but by no means uncommon mistake. Of course, there are 'black sheep,' but it can be truly said that the majority are industrious, sober, economical, and without doubt fully on par with similar workers in commercial lines."

THE rise and fall of the mustache of Charles Baraff, Patent Office, has inspired a bit of verse that doubtless has set the spirits of Clio, Melpomene, Erato, Mussagetes and Calliope a-giggling. Said hirsute growth had adorned Mr. Baraff's Cupid bow more than 10 years. Recently some Georgia sorghum was spilled on his breakfast grapefruit. Now, the unruly conduct of any grapefruit when prodded by a spoon is well known. Also the viscosity of molasses is an open book to Einstein and scientists at the Bureau of Standards. Anyhow, to cut this story and Baraff's foliage short, he shaved.

There was a young man named Baraff,
Who shaved all the labial hair off;
He looked at his face,
Hung his head in disgrace,
And thenceforth from shaving did swear off.

Legion Forces Reach Chicago For Convention

100,000 in City, 200,000 More Expected by Monday.

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP).—Mules in a hotel lobby, bands tooting on street corners, blue and khaki overseas caps everywhere—the American Legion was in town tonight.

Hotels already were crowded, and police worried about traffic congestion. About 100,000 legionnaires had registered at headquarters, and officials expected 200,000 more before opening the convention Monday.

Although most of the delegates concentrated on merriment, centered at the World's Fair Grounds, until the convention opening, the more serious business of the conclave also was started.

Pledged to guarantee the rights of the veterans and the taxpayers alike, Watson B. Miller, chairman of the legion's rehabilitation committee, set up his headquarters to hear suggestions concerning veterans' relief and disability payments—most pressing of the convention programs.

"The four-point program for rehabilitation adopted by most of the State departments allows consideration of the Nation's pocketbook at all times," Miller said. "It seems assured of passage by the national convention."

Miller indicated that demands for immediate payment of the bonus would be of slight import.

Coat and Shirt Used in Setting Reichstag Fire

Dutchman Admits Guilt and Says Idea Came to Him Suddenly.

Leipzig, Germany, Sept. 29 (AP).—Reluctant admission that he had set fire to the Reichstag building last February, ripping apart even his coat and shirt to serve as tinder, was drawn today from Marinus van der Lubbe as he stood, stoop-shouldered and with downcast eyes, before the supreme court.

Presiding Judge Buenger, reading an earlier confession, suddenly demanded:

"Do you admit setting fire yourself to the Reichstag?"

"Yes," the Dutchman replied, almost inaudibly.

Idea Came Suddenly.

Later Van der Lubbe said, "I had no intention of so doing when I awoke that day. The idea came to me as I walked past the Reichstag at 2 o'clock. I spent the afternoon in a suburb, returning to the city at 8 o'clock."

Two large charts were mounted back of the judges' bench to help follow the confession as it was read by Buenger.

The confession said Van der Lubbe admitted climbing up the west facade of the Parliament Building, making his way to a broad ledge and then smashing a window.

Burned Shirt and Coat.

The fire, the document continued, was set with matches and tinder. The Dutchman went to the cellar, then into the plenary hall and finally into the Bismark room, where he was captured.

Tinder becoming exhausted before the rounds were completed, the story said, Van der Lubbe ripped off his coat and then his shirt to add them to the flames. Then he ripped towels and draperies into strips and fed the fire with them.

Another witness, Paul Bienge, a laborer, denied complicity in the fire. A judge had told him he was suspected.

The hearing adjourned until next Wednesday.

Hitler's Policy Augurs Crisis At Arms Meet

Return of Reich Envoys Expected to Confirm Early Firmness.

Geneva, Sept. 29 (AP).—League of Nations circles believed tonight the real crisis in the disarmament situation would come with the return to Geneva of Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, who has gone to Berlin to consult with his chief, Chancellor Hitler.

The departure of Herr von Neuruth and Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Reich minister of public enlightenment and propaganda, was accompanied by a noticeable stiffening of attitude openly voiced in German circles. One declaration was that the crying need is the disarmament of Germany's neighbors.

The foreign minister said Germany will insist on the right to possess arms at a level to wich neighboring countries eventually would descend. This was joined, with the understanding that Germany would be entitled to begin construction of these arms when any agreement drawn up begins to function.

Means Pressure on France.

If this German attitude is adopted it was recognized in league circles as meaning pressure would be brought to bear on France to begin the destruction of big guns, bombing planes and like categories, in addition to reducing the number of men under colors.

Some of the English delegates insisted tonight there should be no rearmament of Germany.

Meanwhile Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister to France, told the League of Nations Assembly "ominous clouds are rising on the Far Eastern horizon."

Cites Arms Plans.

"The race for armaments has begun with the huge naval and air maneuvers, fleet concentrations, the fortifying of bases and enormous increases in war expenditures," he said.

He criticized the Japanese invasion of Manchuria, adding:

Deficit Financiering.

M. Jenny, financial writer for Le Temps, says that the French public has not forgotten the hard monetary experience to which it was subjected a few years ago. The people not only know what inflation is and where it leads, but they realize that a chronic budgetary deficit must sooner or later bring about inflation. Although M. Jenny was referring to the French budgetary deficit, which in his opinion constitutes the chief threat to the stability of the franc, his conclusions have a general application. An unbalanced budget is one of the most dangerous and insidious enemies of sound currency. Uncovered government expenditures provide a sure method of bringing about inflation if the deficit is large enough and the budget remains unbalanced long enough.

The additional purchasing power put into circulation when a government is unable to cover its outgo from current receipts may appear in the form of paper money issues or it may be obtained by borrowing. The funds may be used to meet ordinary current expenditures or expenditures classified as emergency outlays. Whatever the methods employed and however pressing the emergency may be, deficit financiering of this type will impair in time the credidt of the borrowing government and force resort to those cruder forms of monetary inflation which result in progressive depreciation of the currency of the country.

These are facts which some nations, like the French, have learned by sad experience. They should be understood by the American people, in order that they may realize that there are limits to the extent to which the public credit of their own country can be stretched to provide emergency relief for distressed industry and agriculture. The debt of the Federal Government is now close to the maximum reached after the war, and almost daily new commitments are being made which will increase the outstanding total. The spending program already voted is still in its initial stages. Thus, the Public Works Administration is empowered to disburse over $3,000,000,000, but so far actual outlays have been small.

The financing of direct relief will entail continuous heavy drafts upon the Treasury, while the plan to buy and distribute foodstuffs and other necessities through the Federal Relief Administration requires an additional $75,000,000. The recently announced offer to lend 10 cents per pound on cotton in farmers' hands calls for Government loans which at maximum might reach $400,000,000. Refinancing of farm and home mortgages, provision for the release of frozen bank deposits, and advances by the R. F. C. for a variety of emergency purposes, will add large amounts to the Federal debt.

Although a part of the indebtedness contracted for the purposes mentioned will take the form of loans which eventually will be repaid, another part will constitute a dead-weight addition to the loans which must be carried by taxpayers. The liabilities that will be assumed by the Government in substituting public credit for private credit in the mortgage field and in taking over and liquifying the assets of closed banks, for example, may represent immense sums of money. The cost to the taxpayer will be great if too liberal a policy is followed in valuing whatever may be offered to the Government in exchange for its promises to pay.

Heavy Government borrowing for emergency purposes must, therefore, be kept within reasonable bounds. Otherwise, the mounting burden of debt charges will lead to chronically unbalanced budgets and continuous borrowing to cover ordinary as well as so-called emergency outlays. Furthermore, a rapidly increasing public debt is likely to create a growing uneasiness concerning governmental fiscal and monetary policies, thus tending to discourage private investment activities and adding to the pressure upon the Government to make emergency loans to assist private industry.

Sound monetary policies depend upon sound fiscal policies, and sound fiscal policies call for limitations upon Government borrowing.

Reasons for Delay.

Maryland's difficulties in getting its highway program under way are perhaps typical of the problems encountered by many other States seeking funds from the Public Works Administration. The State road commission has outlined a $12,827,414 program of road construction to provide employment during the autumn and winter months. While the general outline of this program has been tentatively approved by the State advistory board of the P. W. A., several detailed projects have been disapproved.

The road commission proposed to widen the Maryland segment of the Baltimore-Philadelphia highway at a cost of $2,865,000. The advisory board does not consider this undertaking good business for the State. It believes that the cost of the rights of way for widening this road would make the project more expensive than a new highway. The commission's plan calls for only a 56-foot highway, and the board believes that an 80-foot road should be constructed on a right of way that will permit ultimate widening to 130 feet. Moreover, the curves of the present road are too sharp and some of its grades are too steep.

Maryland officials have no plans for a new highway such as the advisory board proposes. There is some indication that the road commission advised widening of the present highway because plans were available and work on it could be undertaken at an early date. But the advisory board took a broader view.

Formulation of plans for public works is a great responsibility. Officials must take sufficient time to ascertain the feasibility of projects and to make sure that taxpayers' money will not be wasted. Even where plans for certain projects have been already worked out, they may prove to be obsolete and uneconomical in the light of further study.

If grave blunders are to be avoided, the formulation of plans for public works necessarily must proceed with reasonable caution. For the most part State and municipal officials seem to be impressed by the fact that local taxpayers will be called upon to repay about 70 per cent of the money that is being offered for non-Federal public works.

This factor as well as the inevitable slowness in preparing detailed plans for economical public works may account for some of the delay that is encountered in the attempt to spend $3,300,000,000 in record time.

The Naval Program.

In view of the wide disparity in the cruiser strength of the British and American navies it is strange that officials at London should suggest postponement of the American plans to build four 10,000-ton 6-inch-gun vessels of this type. The State Department has declined to accept the suggestion, and the naval construction program will go forward.

Britain's proposal has no direct bearing upon the disarmament conference. Efforts at Geneva are being concentrated upon the reduction and limitation of land armaments. The London naval treaty does not expire until 1936, and its signatories have agreed to meet in 1935 to frame a new agreement. The naval construction program in this country is entirely within the provisions of the treaty. In faet, the new construction will not bring the American navy up to full treaty strength.

For many years Great Britain has tried to limit the size of cruisers to 7,500 tons or less. Naval experts point out that this size of ship serves the needs of Britain because she has supply stations in all seas. Since the United States has fewer coaling stations, cruisers of a larger type are favored here. These two viewpoints threatened to cause a deadlock in the London naval conference. A compromise was worked out, however, under which the United States agreed to equip the cruisers in question with 6-inch guns instead of 8-inch guns. In return for this concession Great Britain agreed that these cruisers might be of the 10,000-ton variety.

The British government has done a good deal of naval building in recent years; so has Japan. But the United States only now is getting a comprehensive building program under way. The relative status of the three foremost navies in the world was tersely shown in a statement by Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett shortly before his death in the Akron disaster. He said:

> In underage modern ships Great Britain has 82 per cent of her allowance, or 138 ships; Japan has 95 per cent of her allowance, or 183 ships, and the once proud United States lags behind with only 102 ships, or 61 per cent of her allowance.

Under the naval agreements cruisers are divided into two classes in accordance with the caliber of the guns they carry. In class A cruisers (with guns of more than 6.1 inches) the British navy is still superior to that of the United States. In class B Great Britain has 24 underage ships of 114,020 tons; the United States, 10 ships of 70,500 tons. In spite of this disparity, the British government has suggested that this country postpone construction of vessels of this type.

There seems to be no ground for any suggestion that the American naval building program is contrary to the spirit of the naval treaties. Since 1922 Japan has laid down or made appropriations for 410,000 tons of fighting ships; Great Britain, 470,000 tons, and the United States only 179,000 tons. Steps that are now being taken to correct the disparity which has thus arisen ought not to be construed as inimical to the cause of world-wide disarmament.

Syrian Villagers.

The bureau charged with administration of the French mandate over Syria reports to the French government that its tax-gatherers discover that scores of villages mysteriously empty themselves of their inhabitants at tax-collecting time. In districts east of Aleppo, whenever the word passes that the French tax collectors are in the offing, the villages suddenly become empty and remain so until the collectors have come and gone. Then the villagers return home, and life goes on as usual.

There is something in this quaint Syrian custom which seems to possess an advantage over the American epidemic of amnesia, aphasia, and mental vacuity at income-tax time.

Franklin's saw, "Nothing is certain but death and taxes," has weighed down with worry many a good citizen who might have lived longer and more merrily under the Syrian system. The Syrian villagers, like grasshoppers, are exempt from carking care. They drink their yaourt, which fortifies them against the tooth of time, and at the psychological moment move en masse to fresh pastures, full of the holiday spirit, out in the open sunshine, where tax collectors can not find them, and where death is indefinitely postponed.

Is not this free life more sweet than that of painted pomp? The merry villagers find tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, and sermons in stones, leaving to the tax collectors the worry and fret of mortal life. Surely their custom is superior to the American plan!

It is left to the French government to discover a strange truth as relating to Syria—that nothing is more uncertain than death or taxes. But why does France carry the burden of a mandate over Syria, if it is not prepared to finance the enterprise? What is the French budget to the villagers of Syria?

Federal-Financed Exports.

An interesting question has arisen in connection with the negotiations to sell a large quantity of cotton to Soviet Russia on credit furnished by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It is reported that while these arrangements are going forward, the Soviet is negotiating for the sale of a similar quantity of cotton in European markets.

When this report reached officials of the R. F. C. it was said that any agreement for the sale of cotton by the Government to Russia would forbid its resale in the world markets. A clause to this effect has been inserted in previous agreements for the sale of American commodities through governmental agencies. There would be little purpose in credit sales of surplus commodities to foreign governments, if those commodities should be dumped upon the world market for what they would bring in cash.

Even with this precaution, however, it would be possible for Soviet Russia, a producer of cotton, to sell abroad for cash a part of its domestic crop, and then obtain American cotton on credit for its own use. In that case, the result obviously would be the same as if the American cotton were resold in the world market.

Some officials insist that the Soviet government, if cotton is sold to it on credit, will have to agree not to export any Russian cotton, except on permission from Washington. The Soviet relies upon exports to create balances out of which payment can be made for goods purchased abroad, and it might be reluctant to waive any right to ship its own products to other countries. Instances in which Soviet Russia has obtained foreign products on credit and resold them on the world market for cash have been reported. Negotiators for the United States are aware of these reports, and apparently they have no desire to sell cotton on long-term credit in a way that would permit it to enter into competition with cash sales by private exporters.

It's up to Relief Administrator Hopkins to see that the 100,000,000 pounds of pork provided for the needy doesn't take the form of baloney.

With two opposition candidates splitting the anti-Tammany vote, there's a smile on the face of the tiger.

Senator Thomas agrees to suspend his inflation campaign for the present, but in the meantime he is laying in a fine stock of "I told you sos."

The Railroad Aid Plan.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

In planning to extend Government credit to the railroads for purchase of equipment in addition to steel rails, President Roosevelt's idea is to aid not only the carriers, but steel and related industries as well. By tapping the $3,300,000,000 public works fund for this purpose, no added burden would be placed on the Treasury. The extent of the railroads' purchases in a normal year for maintenance and improvements—about $2,000,000,000—suggests the contribution they ordinarily make to employment in addition to their own direct pay rolls.

Mr. Atterbury has recently remarked that in good times the railroads consume about 25 per cent of all the coal mined in this country, 16 per cent of the steel production and almost the same percentage of the lumber. In 1927 nearly 1,750,000 employees drew a total of more than $2,900,000,000 in wages and more than $1,000,000,000 was paid out in interest and dividends. There are 1,000,000 fewer employees today than in 1920. Last year the country's steel production was less than one-fourth that of 1929, and yet of this diminished output the railroads took only 12 per cent. Orders for new freight cars were only one-fiftieth of those placed in 1929. The annual expenditure on maintenance of way was cut 59 per cent. The net income of the railroads was almost $140,000,000 below their fixed charges for the year.

Recent statements of earnings are much more encouraging. Fifty-seven roads report for August of this year an aggregate increase of 97 per cent in net operating income compared with August, 1932. But this does not mean that they are yet in shape to undertake extensive rehabilitation programs from their own resources. On September 1 the Class 1 railroads had 304,000 freight cars in need of repairs. And many other kinds of equipment must be improved or replaced.

Governmental aid extended to the railroads at this time would, if sufficiently liberal, give an impetus to the general movement for recovery. There is perhaps no other field in which the benefits would be so quickly apparent and so widely distributed.

The Once Over.

A FOOTBALL COACH OUTLINES THE NEW DEAL.

"Well, men, everything looks pretty good . . . We've got plenty of good material; in fact, we've got too much material . . . I may have to plow some of it under . . . You take the tackles, for instance . . . The supply of tackles so far exceeds the demand that I may have to destroy every third candidate!

• • • •

"Now, men, this is going to be a tough season . . . For the past few years we'd been in a depression and the people didn't expect much, anyhow . . . They took bad football without complaining . . . They were so despondent that nothing mattered much . . . But now it's different.

• • • •

"You can't turn out any inferior merchandise this year . . . You can't do any chiselin', men . . . You've gotta turn out Grade A football all the time, and every man on the team has got to do his part! . . . I might as well announce at this time that as part of the Governmental program of putting more men to work I have twice as many men trying out for the varsity as last year, and I am going to try to use more men on the varsity eleven!

• • • •

"I am willing to support the recovery program to the limit and use 15 men on a team . . . In fact, I hope to start the games that way this fall, and if our opponents notice it and make any squawk the responsibility for throwing some of you boys out of employment will be theirs. . .

• • • •

"What I am gettin' at is that I want you men to realize that this is a new deal, and that you've gotta get behind the whole program . . . What I want is cooperation . . . The old-time individual player has been driven out of the temple . . . This is the era of all for one and one for all . . . You are being presented with a golden opportunity to aid football recovery . . . If it fails it will be your own fault.

• • • •

"So get out there now and fight for dear old Blodgett . . . You got the four-hour day, the R. F. C. has voted us money for new goal posts, the Republicans can't get back for three more years and so it is up to you. . . . And remember, no rugged individualists."

FALL STANDS ON TIPTOE.

And looks with unafraid and sober eye
At drifting leaves against a steel-clear sky,
She can endure the loud, triumphant death
Of eager flames that leap from tree to tree.
The autumn flowers' last exultant call,
The sharp and brittle mornings, and the fall
Of misty apples, as the boughs swing free.
Only the wedge of wild geese, winging south,

THE PRIVATE PAPERS OF HENRY RYECROFT.

George Gissing, the English novelist, was born in 1857 and died in 1903. He was a realistic writer, whose books portray no sentimental embellishment, the sufferings of those who are forced to live without the luxuries or even the ordinary comforts of life. Many thought he was an embittered pessimist; but it so happened that this man wrote one of the most beautiful of all the quiet, meditative books of the world.

"The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft," published the year of the author's death, makes solitude not only endurable, not only refreshing, but inspiring. I remember reading years ago a novel by the German author, Gabrielle Reuter, which described a woman, who after years of undesirable company, finally found herself alone; and I shall never forget the last four words of the book—"in lovely, radiant loneliness," in schoener, heller Einsamkeit. It is not good for man to be alone; but as the circumstances of life force some men and many women to live alone, the art of solitude—one of the greatest of all the arts—should be seriously cultivated. Many persons have never learned how to live with themselves; they seek external excitement or a sedative in the form of drugs. Mr. Gissing, in "The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft," has shown the natural resources open to every contemplative mind. For the best things in the world, sun, moon, stars, changes of the season, trees, sunrise, sunset, clouds, rain, are all free. No one who has read this book need ever be poor.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter.

By Robert Quillen

My Dear Louise: If you would make and keep friends and escape uncharitable criticism, there is one lesson you must learn so well that you never can forget it for a moment.

It concerns the tenderness of human vanity.

We like the people who like us. And we like them especially well if their liking for us is based on admiration. Let us hear that some person we regard with indifference or disfavor has praised us to the skies and at once we feel a new liking and respect for him. One possessed of such good taste must be a fine fellow.

As we like those who like us, so we dislike those who are unable to appreciate us. No matter what virtues or fine qualities they possess, we simply can't like them if they dislike us.

We can forgive hard words and slights and wrongs, but we can't forgive dislike.

Of course we may like numbers of people who regard us as something the cat dragged in, but only because we are blissfully unaware of their hard opinion. They have the grace to keep it to themselves.

And that brings me to the meat in the coconut.

People can't like you if you disapprove of them, and any thoughtless word or criticism seems complete disapproval.

I am not referreng to the word of criticism you speak face to face. Friends can understand and forgive that, for your expression and tone of voice take the sting out of it.

But the thing you say to a third person, who repeats it to your friend, seems a public condemnation never to be forgiven. And no matter how slight the criticism, or how idly spoken, it becomes an insult in repetition and expresses ill will and dislike.

You may think you can trust certain people not to repeat what you say, but you can't. People are too fond of talking. Your word of criticism is a morsel of gossip, and your best friend will repeat it if he lives long enough. He or she.

There are times when you should criticize and people you should criticize. Public enemies, for example.

But civilized people keep silent concerning one another's imperfections. If they didn't, everybody would hate everybody.

Speak praise when it is due, but watch your tongue lest it make you an enemy by trying to be witty at the expense of an absent friend.

Love, DAD.

Political Comment

American Naval Policy.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Recent British suggestions that the United States has started a new naval race and is thus endangering the peace of the world, have not met with a sympathetic reception in this country. During the last 15 years the American contribution toward the cause of disarmament has been greater than that of any other country. That policy will be maintained.

In the matter of naval building, particularly, the United States has never given other powers just cause for complaint. American history shows that naval expansion during peace-time has never been popular in this country. Congress has been in the habit of putting obstacles in the way of orderly development even though it fell well within the limitations of treaties and agreements. Great Britain and Japan have had no shadow of reason for objecting to the modest programs which, from time to time, have been undertaken.

Interviewing Mr. Hoover.

Kansas City Times.

A questioner who sought to interview former President Hoover on his way across Nebraska to the Chicago fair soon found that he himself was being interviewed, and the country was able to learn from the incident only that Mr. Hoover had been playing solitaire on the train, that he was in his shirt sleeves, that he was interested in the farm situation and that he smilingly declined to discuss "any national issues." But that is a lot of information to have about Mr. Hoover just now, and the interviewer did not do so badly after all.

A National Traffic Code?

Detroit News.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the National Safety Congress will be held in Chicago in October. At that time a national conference of motor vehicle administrators will be formed to deal principally with the establishment of uniform traffic regulations for the entire Nation. Michigan, through legislative mandate, will be represented at this conference and is prepared to go sled-length in cooperating with other States in simplifying the many confusing traffic codes that now exist throughout the 48 States.

Regulation of Oil Industry.

Los Angeles Times.

In the oil industry any regulation is bound to be more or less arbitrary, since production costs and production conditions vary so greatly from field to field and from well to well that only the roughest sort of average can be struck. Any set price may mean big profits to the unusually favored producer and leave many struggling on the margin. It is easy to condemn off-hand the price cutter as a "chiseler," yet he may be taking the only means he knows to get what he considers a fair share of the business or raise cash to meet a pay roll or other pressing obligation.

Yet efforts to regulate the oil business have been under way longer than any other line.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

IT probably always will be a question of whether the delay in McKee's announcement of his decision to enter the New York mayoralty race was caused by the Washington administration getting cold feet or the length of time necessary to prepare the announcement. Admittedly more time than anticipated was required. Such a deluge of criticism—and considerable from friendly quarters—followed the news that the national administration intended to put McKee in the race that there is basis for the belief that it may have drawn up short and made another survey before deciding to go ahead.

Bargeron.

On the other hand, the attack on McKee himself as soon as his head bobbed up was so strong that the most adept hands had to be called in on the preparation of the announcement and its form had to be given considerable and expert thought.

• • • •

AS to whether the product justified the ponder is rather difficult to say. Of course, one may pass up as the usual bunk—necessary, of course, but bunk just the same—McKee's protestations that the clamor had simply become so strong that he felt compelled to make the sacrifice, and, further, that he would wear no man's collar. On that assertion, he will wear the collar, most certainly, of the Roosevelt-Farley-Flynn organization. McKee has nothing to do with his candidacy. There is a question whether he wrote a line of the statement.

But there is nothing unusual about this.

The meat of the statement, the portion to which so much labor and treatment had to be given, was its dealing with the opposition charge that if he is sincere in his dislike of Tammany he would have accepted the fusion nomination when it was offered to him some time ago, and failing that, would have run in the primaries against Tammany.

• • • •

HIS explanation of not running in the primaries is a masterpiece in naivete. He says:

"I refused to enter the Democratic primaries because I felt that to do so would mark me a tool of the machine."

Now wouldn't that defeat you? Had he gone into the primaries and defeated Tammany, defeated its candidate for the mayoralty, then he would have been marked as a tool of Tammany.

The New York mind works funny. There is no doubt of that. And it may swallow this explanation without the slightest gulp. But there is hardly a backwoods town in the country where it would be accepted. They are so ignorant out in the sticks.

• • • •

YOU understand this explanation will play an important part in the campaign because the fusionists will harp upon the charge that McKee's entrance is really intended to save Tammany, to displace its present leadership, of course, but to save it nevertheless.

Now on the question of not accepting the fusion nomination when it was tendered him, the framers of the statement do much better. On this, in fact, they turned out to be right slick. On this one phase they could claim rating as worthy statement framers, worthy of the Big League Washington atmosphere in which the statement was prepared.

• • • •

SAY they on the question of why McKee didn't accept the Fusion tender: Why, in the first place the tender was not made and secondly, if it was made, Mr. Koenig, the Republican leader, was the tenderer.

Of course, Mr. McKee could not have accepted anything from the hands of Mr. Koenig, because Mr. Koenig was just as bad as Mr. Curry and Tammany, whom Mr. McKee's sacrifice is intended to get.

It so happened that in the primaries Mr. Koenig was eliminated as leader, so Mr. McKee would not have been indebted to him at all. But he could not have foreseen that.

• • • •

ON this, I say, the framers did very well. A school teacher grading papers would mark this explanation close to 100 per cent.

The real truth, probably, of why Mr. McKee did not take the Fusion offer was because at the time it did not look as though Tammany could be beaten. Naturally, Mr. McKee would not be expected to say that. But what was said was a very good substitute.

Lured by pleasure's voice of tin,

I would not your act defame.
All I know is, right or wrong,
'Twas the barker lured the throng;
'Twas the lusty voice and loud
That attracted such a crowd;
'Twas his shouting and his din
Won my quarter to go in.

Wriggling, twisting, squirming dame,
Wiser from your dance I came.
Wiser in the sense that I

Often is a false appeal.

"If We Fail Through NRA God Help Nation," Says Green.

The fight to purge labor unions of racketeering by city officials who seek to control workers' organizations for personal gain will be carried to the convention of the American Federation of Labor next week.

Decision was reached yesterday when the building and metal trades unions, representing 1,000,000 men, pledged full cooperation in a militant effort to stamp out the racketeering and promised "all support and assistance to any such persecuted local unions, economically and otherwise."

The building tradesmen also heard William Green, president of the feleration, declare that in June, July and August A. F. of L. membership had increased 1,500,000 and the total of new members would be doubled by six months.

Carpenters' Strike Cited.

Pleading for harmony to carry forward the fight for a 30-hour week, Green cited the carpenters' strike and subsequent shutdown at the I. C. C.-Labor Building here as reason for the 16 trades represented to take action to end jurisdiction disputes between unions.

He recomemnded establishment of a permanent tribunal to settle disputes.

"Government officials have appealed to me," he said, "and I have been compelled to admit our helplessness. These disputes must be settled by conciliation, not force."

Approximately 1,000 workmen were laid off Septmeber 15 and work on this Government building suspended when carpenters struck September 1 in protest against installation of radiator inclosures by ironworkers.

"I believe that's the President's intention—that these codes be worked out so as to provide employment opportunities for all people who want work," said Green. "If we fail through the NRA, then God help the Nation."

Explaining to the building unionists the conditions involving "political racketeering," John Possehl, of the Hamilton Hotel, president of the operating engineers, said in New Jersey and Chicago particularly politicians were attempting to displace union officials and substitute others who will be "more pliable."

Tells of Reprisals.

"While I was in Chicago," Possehl said, "a high city official called me in and told me to fire the business agent of our union there. 'Why?' I asked. And he replied, 'Because I tell you to.'"

Because he retained the agent, Possehl said, the next meeting of the union was raided by police and the members jailed overnight.

When politicians obtain control of unions, it was pointed out in the resolutions adopted, they are able to obtain large profits on municipal, State and Federal projects.

The builders adopted resolutions supporting President Roosevelt's efforts to meet the depression; urging the 30-hour week and minimum wages of from 40 cents to $1.20 an hour; asking the NRA to hasten a building code and to end abuses in the building trade, and seeking expenditure of public works funds on postoffices and slum rehabilitation rather than on "great isolated projects."

The union label workers voted a protest against "unfair competition" of nonunion employers who display the Blue Eagle on their products.

Leadership by Enthusiasm

The Administrator's Absence Causes a Sudden Let-Down

By William Harlan Hale.

THE NRA's honeymoon with its June bride, the United States, is over, and the master of the house is settling down to the serious business of survival. The change is becoming garishly clear.

Most interesting of all manifestations current in Washington is the slowing of the tempo of operations now taking place all along the industrial sector of the recovery front.

The change is a visual one. The corridors on the third and fourth floors of the Commerce building do not bustle with that fantastic and feverish hurry which marked them some fortnights ago. The edge has been taken off of the thrill. There is less of the atmosphere of a first-aid station, and more of that of a clinic.

This, in view of the completion of much of the emergency work, is a natural and probably healthy change. But the important thing is that the tempo has undergone an especially sudden retarding through the week's illness of Gen. Johnson.

The Administrator has continued to direct his organization, but in this one week an enormous amount of business has piled up which has been beyond his power to negotiate. Two important codes are awaitin his examination, a flock of conferences have had to be postponed and there is the whole matter of the recalcitrant Alabama and Kentucky coal operators still in abeyance.

That so short a personal absence should cause so serious a decline of activity bears out one point that it has only been the Administrator's slashing intensity which has prevented a tie-up before this. But it bears out what is a more significant point, namely, that there has been an extremely high degree of centralization of leadership and authorization in one person.

This fact could not be so clearly recognized in Gen. Johnson's active presence; one might almost be grateful to his illness for bringing it into relief. We now find the Recovery Administration entering upon its second period, but still organized as a shock troop, still placed under a single and separate command, and not yet so related to the general government that an interruption of command would not upset it.

Despite the fact that the NRA's activities are moving from immediate code-drafting to long-term supervision, its leadership is still in the stage of high-pressure emphasis on personality. Its true American genius for organization through concerted enthusiasm has stood it in great stead in its first period, bringing the country into line under a semmilitary excitement. But the stage of popular fervor is now giving way to one of more concrete planning and inquiry. The very energy of the NRA type of leadership has made it grow out of date all the sooner.

Intending a reorganization that will put it on a permanent basis, the Recovery Administration has placed T. S. Hammond, executive director of its reemployment campaign, on the job of drafting a new set-up. He is assisted by a policy board, which includes the chiefs of the various NRA bureaus and advisory committees. The work, however, has languished during the stress created by the administrator's absence.

It ought now to go ahead. The necessity of transforming a fighting troop into a controlling organization has become impertive. The stress of carrying the entire burden of recovery advance has weighed too heavily on a very few shoulders, and the pressure should now be relieved, the machinery secured. The hour of pure enthusiasm is drawing to its close, and an inevitable reaction looms over the horizon.

If this program is not carried out with dispatch, the outcome may be more than a case of becoming "bogged." In an approaching wave of let-down and recession, the NRA might find itself being swallowed up.

Profit Limit Urged in Code On Aluminum

Clause Aimed at "Trust" Is Introduced at NRA Hearing.

A provision to limit virgin aluminum prices, production of which is controlled by the Aluminum Co. of America, to cost plus "a reasonable profit," was proposed yesterday for the industry's code by an independent group.

The proposal, made at code hearings, was submitted to Deputy Administrator Philip C. Kemp by those who have been charging "trust" and "monopoly" by the Aluminum company. It read:

"Members of the Aluminum Fabricators group and consumers of crude aluminum propose to the NRA that in any code of fair competition for the production of virgin aluminum there be included the following provision:

"So long as production of virgin aluminum is controlled directly or indirectly by a single person, that person shall not sell aluminum for a price greater than its cost, plus a reasonable profit. A reasonable profit consists of a fair return upon the capital invested, such as would attract a prudent investor."

Alumninum Co. spokesmen indicated the provision would be satisfactory to them.

As the hearing produced divergence of opinion regarding labor and fair practice clauses of the aluminum code, a committee was appointed to meet at the call of the deputy administrator. It is composed of Messrs. Hastings and Carter, for the fabricating group; Arthur V. Davis, chairman of the board of the Aluminum Co., and Luke Stapleton, of the Fairmont Aluminum Co.

Persian Envoy Leases Noted Moran Home

House, Closed for Several Years, Once Scene of Brilliancy.

The Minister of Persia, Ghaffar Khan Djalal and Mme. Djalal, who are occupying the home of Mrs. I. T. Mann at 1333 Sixteenth street, have leased the home of the late Mrs. Francois Berger Moran on Massachusetts avenue for the coming season.

The Massachusetts avenue house, which for several years has been closed, was the scene of many brilliant social functions. Mrs. Moran entertained extensively for both the official and debutante sets.

In 1917, when Lord Reading was in America on a mission for the British government, he occupied this house. Mr. John Hays Hammond leased it for a season while his beautiful Tudor home on Kalorama road was being built, and several years ago the house was occupied by members of the Chinese Mission to Washington.

So it is with great interest that Washingtonians learn of the reopening of this beautiful house about the end of November, when the Minister and Mme. Djalal will move in.

What's in Fashion?

New Ideas in Rugs and Carpeting Harmonize With Any Kind of Room

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Information as to where styles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Rugs or carpets—which is it to be in that new house or apartment? It all depends on your likes, your pocketbook, the kind of rooms you have and the effect you want to create in them. Both are equally smart. And there are plenty of new ideas in both to harmonize with any kind of room.

Chevron Broadloom.

Because of the importance of "texture" in drapery and upholstery fabrics, many new floor coverings are featuring a textured surface.

There's a new broadloom, for instance, which has a chevron design made up of a hooked pile and a sheered pile. The effect was designed primarily to use with modern furniture. But it has been found very satisfactory with simple period furniture, too.

Twisted Pile.

Another texture effect in broadloom has been made by twisting the pile more than usual. This gives the carpet an irregular surface and color and helps break up the monotony of a large expanse of solid color.

If you're going in for colonial or provincial furniture, it isn't necessary to seek out the little back roads towns and hope for a bargain in antique hooked rugs.

Copy Old Designs.

The new hook carpeting looks as though it were hand-hooked and copies faithfully the old designs and colors.

You'll find other period patterns, too, in both carpeting and room size rugs. The eighteenth century and classic French designs, for example, are especially accurate and effective. And that colorful, cheery Victorian carpeting is pushing up into fashion again.

If, however, you stick to the side of the conservatives and find Victorian a bit overpowering, smaller all-over leaf and texture designs will be found which go most agreeably in any room.

Domestic Orientals.

Every woman wants an oriental rug somewhere in her home. If the real ones stretch the budget too far, consider domestic Orientals. So accurate are their designs and colors that many an expert has been misled on first glance into mistaking them for the real thing.

Many of the newest of these take their patterns from the Kirmanshahs, characterized by small, fine all-over Persian motifs and a lovely, tawny gold color with jewel-like bits of green, red and blue.

Perhaps if you're buying rugs or carpeting, you'd like to know some of the fine points which distinguish one weave from another. The difference between a Wilton and an Axminster, for instance, and their difference from chenille and velvet.

We have a leaflet which contains all this information. If you'd like it, just send the filled-in coupon with requested inclosures.

Study Politics During Leisure, Women Urged

Self Information and Better Government Will Be Reward, Leaders Say.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The housewife whose work has been lightened by modern methods and appliances received some suggestions today on how to spend her leisure time.

They came from four speakers at the Women's Arts and Industries Exposition who proposed their own hobbies as interesting and profitable diversions.

Said Mrs. Harry Whitney, a former vice president of the League of Women Voters:

"No amount of leisure spent in the study of our Government would be excessive.

Government Study Valuable.

"Not only for the sake of self-information is this valuable, but for the sake of eventually adding valuable ideas which will bring our Government to a higher standard of democracy."

Mme. Olga Samaroff, active in music circles in New York and Philadelphia, suggested music appreciation as a pleasant and educational way to pass leisure time.

"Since the old-fashioned means of making the child practice are out," she said, "it is necessary for all members of the family to be musically educated.

"This can be done by means of the concert, opera, books on music, and other appreciative aspects, in order to arouse the talented members of that family to greater interest in their own development.

"It is at last realized that without educated listeners, the work of composers is naught."

Whys and Whats of Science.

Miss Dorothy Bennett, assistant curator of the American Museum of Natural History, proposed explorations in the field of science to aid women in appreciating what is going on about them.

"Why is What and How," the scientific question, can apply to almost everything," she commented.

"The dahlias you water have a facial makeup that they do not have to apply themselves, while perhaps you do. Why this partiality by nature? A visit to botanical gardens—or other references—may help you find out.

"How to identify edible mushrooms—a scientific procedure—might also be helpful."

Art, Languages Suggested.

Miss Winnifred Fisher, executive secretary of the New York Adult Educational Council, offered art, literature and languages as suggestions.

"To know how to find information on science, art, literature and languages," she said, "is one of the greatest steps recently added to the education of the adult."

What Today Means

"Libra."

If September 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12 noon and from 4:45 to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 to 2:30 p. m. and from 6:30 to 8 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will be of a satisfying nature; people generally will be more easily pleased than is usually the case. Less criticism, less gossip and more friendliness will be apparent. The sales or promotional letter written and directed forward on this day will quite probably bring gratifying results. Dentists should work with greater precision and cause less pain than ordinarily.

The child born on this September 30 will probably start life with an abundance of good things within his grasp. Many fine qualities of character, good health and an attractive personality will prove weapons that will enable him to fight his way to the pinnacle of success. His triumphs should begin early and should continue for a long time. He will rise on his own merits, not by downing others.

If September 30 is the date of your birth, you are probably much more of a mental being than you are a physical one. Unless you are careful your development will not be well rounded and you will thus place a limit on your attainments. Take advantage of the good things that have been given to you; a personality that draws people to you, a mind that is quick to solve problems of almost any nature, a willingness to work hard, the gift of speech, these and others you must put to work along right lines, and your success will be assured. Do not shy from physical exertion or from work or exercise in the outdoors as is your wont. Remember that a sound mind must be encased in a sound body.

Born on September 30, you will be always able to turn your ideas into ready money. Whether you be mechanically inclined, have the propensity for acting, the ability to teach or the "gift of gab" or of writing, you will go about your work in an original and refreshing manner, and you will score in a big way. Adversity may come your way, and like all people you will suffer setbacks, but you will not stay down for long. You are rather a sentimental person and you cling to objects of personal adornment and other things that have memories attached to them. The memory of your parents will long linger in your mind and will guide you over many a rough spot.

Successful people born on September 30:

Sylvester Marsh, civil engineer.
Jacob Estey, organ manufacturer.
Ellis H. Roberts, journalist and financier.
Cyrus Northrop, educator.
Asa Bird Gardner, lawyer.
Wilton Lackaye, actor.

Cooking Declared Both Science and Art By Matilda Roome Duvall, "Inventor"

Dower House, former colonial home of Lord Baltimore's ancestors in southern Maryland, where Mrs. Matilda Roome Duvall (in inset) presided as owner for nearly 30 years. She made it a gathering place, over a quarter of a century, for smart people from Washington and all over the world, who found there the answer to an epicure's prayer—wonderful food, exquisitely served.

Prepared Famous Meals Served to Notables in Dower House.

Cooking is a science and an art. It embodies applied chemistry and philosophy. It is governed by underlying cosmic laws apprehended only by intuition amounting to genius. And, to be successful cooking, must be infused with something of the soul of the cook.

"Great singers make fine cooks. They understand and appreciate good food. Mme. Schumann-Heink is a wonderful cook," said Mrs. Duvall. In her youth, Mrs. Duvall studied for grand opera, and during student days in New York and abroad inspired prophesies of a brilliant operatic career. She continued:

"Dr. Dreyfuss, of Paris, after eating one of my dinners at Dower House, came to me after dinner, kissed my hand, and said: 'Madame, if you did not sing as you do, you could not cook as you do.'"

Famed for Cuisine.

During her 29 years as chatelaine of Dower House, which she bought from descendants of the original owner, Lord Baltimore, Mrs. Duvall achieved world celebrity for the surpassing delicacy and infinite variety of her cuisine.

"My ingenuity was certainly taxed at times. When 'Sunny Jim' Sherman, who was Vice President under Taft, gave a series of brilliant dinners at Dower House, he was on a strict diet of green beans and buttermilk. I had to find four or five ways of serving string beans."

For nearly a quarter of a century, under Mrs. Duvall's management, Dower House—originally called Mount Airey—was the gathering place for everybody who was anybody in the social and diplomatic life, not only of Washington but the entire world.

The historic old mansion in Prince Georges County was interesting in itself, with its tradition of ghosts, who walked by night; but the drawing card was the food, so marvelously conceived, so exquisitely served.

"I had 400 special dishes. My 'Dower House sauce' was one of the loveliest things ever invented. There are 20 uses for it. It contains a great many ingredients.

Pigs Feet Like Terrapin.

Like every great chef in history, Mrs. Duvall is smilingly, yet stubbornly, reticent on the subject of her own recipe ingredients. And, although she is a woman of many talents, gifted as a writer, as a painter of pastels, as a singer, and with a flair for dramatic interpretation which might have made her a great actress, Mrs. Duvall prefers to be known for her mastery as a cook.

"I'd rather be remembered because I've helped somebody know how to cook; or because those who lived through many years found at Dower House food which carried them back in memory to the days or the lands of their youth, than for any other thing," she declared in a manner that carried conviction.

"There are various natural rules governing cooking. They may be likened to the rules which govern good speech. There is not one rule, but a number of rules having to do with the correct usage of whatever tongue one happens to use.

"We come to a personal understanding of these rules only through practice. We can be helped to a speedy knowledge of them, just as we are helped to better speech, through special study with one who has mastered them.

"It is no more expensive to cook things tastily than it is to throw them together without any foreknowledge of result.

"It has to do with the utensils one uses, even the spoons; with the kind of heat you have.

Elements of Cooking.

"Cooking is applied chemistry, with a soul to it. Chemistry is an exact science. It also is creative. Put two elements together and a third is created. In cooking, we have these elements, plus heat, which is like the life force.

"If you want to master cooking as an art, there is only one way to do it. And that is to come to the subject with an open mind. Few women have open minds where cooking is concerned. They see only the drudgery. There is no drudgery if you look it bravely in the face. Drudgery is the bogeyman which frightens the faint-hearted from climbing to the heights in any art.

"There was never a time when there were so many aids to cookery as there are today. From point of view of cleanliness alone, any woman must admit that.

"There is a beauty in a life, or an experience, shared over a table, that can be infinitely enriched by food properly prepared and served."

Clad in a business-like starched white all-over apron, Mrs. Duvall interrupted herself from time to time to dash into the kitchen, where she was superintending the evolution of grape fruit rind into a transparent orange and apple-green confection.

"I have to change the water five times. I make it after a recipe all my own. You must taste it," she glowed with completely unself-conscious pride.

Mrs. Duvall, whose home today is at Barnesville, Md., attributes her creative interest in cooking to a direct inheritance from both her maternal and paternal ancestors.

"My mother's mother kept house for her father, who was Gov. Sherman of Georgia. My father's mother was Holland Dutch. And they, as you know, are the finest housekeepers in the world and the best cooks. She taught me many things about good cooking.

Opera Singers Usually Splendid Cooks, She Declares.

"I listened to many rules, but I am naturally analytical, and I compared and tested them all until I arrived at a certain basis. The average recipe does not, to me, make sense. Art in expression is necessary if one is to transfer knowledge gained through experience to one who is beginning."

Now Writing Cook Book.

Mrs. Duvall is now writing "The Dower House Cook Book," and, having reached the ninetieth page, is only one-third done.

"Every recipe in it will be things I cooked at Dower House," she said.

"In cooking successfully, you've got to take into consideration the limits of your kitchen and your pocketbook, and you have got to suit the demands of a particular family, even though it is a family of only one person.

"The demands of your family are never the same as those of another family. The result should be something you yourself have brought into existence. It must be the outward and visible result of chemical action plus your own thought.

"That's why women ought to learn the underlying rules governing cooking, instead of relying blindly on a book of recipes."

Society Folk Attend Theater Tomorrow

Society people, prominent in diplomatic and political circles, will be present at the performance of "La Forza del Bestino" tomorrow evening at the Auditorium. They include former Vice President Charles Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gann, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Wells, Mrs. Campbell Pritchett, Miss Allison McDaniel, Mrs. Frances Walker, Miss Nathalie Keeney, Mrs. Harvey Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. Brittain Walker, Mr. W. W. Husband, Assistant Secretary of Labor; Mr. and Mrs. Bowman McArthur, Mr. Charles Hamilton, Treasurer of the National Press Club, and Mr. Allan Thermon.

Boxes also will be occupied by members of the French Embassy, Italian Embassy, Egyptian and Greek Legations.

Langhorne Marriage Invitations Sent Out

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Langhorne of Virginia have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Phyllis Langhorne, to Mr. Donald Bruce MacLeod Eyster, on Saturday, October 14, at "Greenfields" in Albemarle County.

The bride-elect is a granddaughter of the late Chiswell D. Langhorne of Virginia and is a niece of Viscountess Astor. Like her famous aunt, Miss Langhorne is noted for charm and beauty, which characterized the ladies of the Langhorne family for many years.

Sues to Get Baseballs In Neighbor's Yard

St. Paul (AP).—The small boy whose baseball rolls into a neighbor's yard where he can not retrieve it is having his day in court.

Two sisters, Helena and Theresa Guthunz, are being sued for recovery of nine baseballs and a football by Marcus J. Rogers. His son is the owner of the balls they are keeping, he says, and values them at $15.

Stain Removal Suggestion.

When linen or cotton becomes stained with banana stains, these can be removed entirely by soaking the garment in strong soap and soda water. Put a sprinkle of chloride of lime on a nail brush, rub this on the stain, and you will see it disappear gradually. Plunge at once into the water again and rinse out thoroughly.

The Lantern by the Door.

By Katherine W. Smith.

There will be rain tonight, and winds
Will beat and blow outside,
So I will hang a lantern out—
Some lodger may abide

With me this evening if he sees
The welcome of my light.
He'll knock upon my door and ask
If he may spend the night.

* * * *

I waited long in loneliness—
No traveler came by,
So I asked a kindly neighbor
If he knew the reason why.

He smiled a little, then he said,
"No lodger will abide
With you because the only light
Is that which burns outside."

When Extravagance Was Economical.

One of the axioms of play is that a trick should usually be won with the lowest possible card. However, like all axioms, this one is open to exceptions. Sometimes if the Opening lead is won with the cheapest card available the opponents will immediately see that this suit offers no further possibilities and will therefore shift to some other suit in which the Declarer is wide open. Therefore, the Declarer must frequently false-card intelligently in order to tempt the continuation of the same suit. The following hand illustrates this point:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 10 6 5 ♡ J 10 4 ◇ Q J 9 6 ♣ A K 8
♠ K 8 2 ♡ Q 7 6 5 3 ◇ K 5 ♣ 7 6 2	N W E S	♠ A Q 7 4 ♡ 9 2 ◇ 8 4 3 2 ♣ 10 4 3
	♠ J 9 3 ♡ A K 8 ◇ A 10 7 ♣ Q J 9 5

South	North
1 NT	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

The bidding is quite orthodox and regular. The fact that the spade suit is unguarded is unfortunate, but the hand should still play in three notrump, as it is makable if the spades break 4-3 and the diamond finesse works. Of course, if the spades are not led the hand will also be made.

The Opening lead was the fourth-best heart and the Dummy went up with the Ten. East, of course, played low, and the Declarer's first impulse was to let the Dummy hold the trick. However, he first counted his tricks and found that he held four club tricks, one diamond trick and three heart tricks—making a total of only eight—and so it was apparent that the diamond finesse must be taken. If this failed West would be in the lead again and would surely not continue hearts. His natural choice would be spades and this would automatically kill the hand. He therefore decided that it was essential for him to persuade West to continue hearts.

At trick 1, therefore, he played the King of hearts, trying to convey the impression that he held the doubleton-Ace-King in the suit. He then led over to the King of Clubs in Dummy and led the Queen of diamonds. This was won with West's King and this player confidently returned another heart, feeling sure that South's Ace would drop and hoping that his King of spades would prove to be a reentry. Much to his surprise the Knave in the Dummy held the trick and the Declarer proceeded to run off his diamonds and clubs for the total of 10 tricks. It is obvious that a spade shift would defeat the contract one trick.

Of course, West could have seen through the Declarer's dire plan, but certainly the play of the King of hearts did not help him to secure the correct reading. On the whole he can not really be blamed very much for his failure to shift to spades.

Hands Reflect Character, So Require Care

Scrupulous Cleanliness Is Basis of Beauty; Routine Told.

No matter if your hands are congenitally long and bony, gnarled and stumpy or smooth and fine, they express something that is characteristically and expressively you, and for that reason they deserve as careful grooming as your face or hair.

Frequent latherings in warm soapy water is really the basis of all hand beauty, as it keeps the skin free of grime and prevents horny edges about the nails. In addition, there are two indispensable articles which should always be conveniently near the wash basin—nail brush and white nail pencil. Any dirt that defies a brisk scrubbing with the nail brush should be bleached out with lemon juice. After the hands have been washed, and before they are dried, run the pencil under each nail tip. Any surplus adhering to the finger ends can be rubbed off with the hand towel as you dry your hands.

Thorough reconditioning of the hands is occasionally necessary, after an outdoor vacation, weeks of neglect, or a particular piece of "rough work," such as painting, gardening, or housecleaning. For such treatments, there are especially made gloves. Nourishing cream and a cheap pair of cotton gloves can answer the same purpose, however.

Now that home manicures are not only feasible but actually the vogue, one can find on the market handy kits, containing all the items necessary to make this one-time chore a pleasurable work of art.

The one malpractice to avoid in giving oneself a home manicure is the common fault of cutting the cuticle. Push it back with an orange stick and the nails will benefit. Be careful always to do it in a gentle, persuasive manner, rather than with brutal force. Too much strength behind the stick will cause tiny white spots to appear on the nails.

Cuticle cream massaged around the nails at night will keep them soft, smooth and pliable. Warm olive oil will give the same result.

'Only Child' Superior, Educator Says in Blasting Ancient Belief

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—A prevailing belief that the "only" child is inferior is false, according to a study of 183 of them made by Paul A. Witty, professor of education at Northwestern University.

They actually are superior mentally, physically and socially to average children, he says, in a report to the American Psychological Association. Their undeserved reputation came from the fact that their scarcity rendered them conspicuous, so that an inferior "only" child was pointed out as an example of them all.

Against an average intelligence rating on 100 "non-only" children, the "only" boys scored 108.6, and the girls 107. Language development of these only children, like their mental abilities, was ahead of the average.

"Not Especially Nervous."

"Seventy-seven per cent of the only girls and 76 per cent of the boys were reported 'not especially nervous,'" Prof. Witty reported. "For 100 non-only children this per cent was 72.

"Difference between non-only and only children were not significant in the frequencies with which temper-tantrums, biting finger nails and other symtoms of nervousness were displayed. Night terrors were infrequent among only children; sleep was 'sound and undisturbed' for 89 per cent of the girls and for 90 per cent of the boys. Specific fears were less frequently reported in only children than in the unselected group.

"Physically the only children are slightly superior to other children. The average age for walking was somewhat earlier for only than for unselected children. Contagious diseases were infrequent and accidents rare. Available data shows these children equal to unselected children in quickness and permanency of recovery from accident or disease.

"Spinal irregularity and cardiac disturbances are few among the only children. Serious defects in vision and in hearing were infrequently reported. For example, only 2 per cent of girls and 1.15 per cent of boys had serious defects in vision.

"Essential normality or superiority was evidenced in frequency of headaches, bad teeth and in disturbances during sleep.

"The play of 100 only children and 100 nononly children was studied. Conspicuous differences between the groups in amount and kind of play were not discernible."

The superiorities, Prof. Witty says, are consistent, although not large. As one explanation, he finds that the only child comes from a better than average home. The business or occupational status of the father is higher than the average, being more than a third above that of the general population.

Hint on Care of Teeth.

To remove tartar from teeth, moiston toothbrush with water, dip it into a little powdered magnesia and scour the teeth vigorously with an up-and-down stroke.

Fall Silhouette Grows Straighter

Rough Woolens Remain in Fashion Picture.

Squareness marks the new coats, and the silhouette has become looser in the waist, with more smoothness under the arm. Thus, we get a straight, yet somewhat fitted effect.

Where last year's coats developed fullness at the elbow, this season they show fullness at or slightly below the shoulder. This winter we are to have fur-topped sleeves with pointed effects.

Rough woolens still seem very much in the picture for coats, rougher than last year. In fact, very much like the boucles of two seasons ago, yet flatter than those, and featuring a silk nub running through their surfaces, with a corded effect in the pattern of the weave.

Suedes are being shown. It is felt, however, that these will appeal only in very expensive coats, as women know they catch lint. Of course, they hold constant appeal to the junior miss.

Even Produce Dealing Can Be Made an Art

By Ruth Anne Davis.

In the fall and winter, when you're planning to have guests for dinner and the day is much too cold and miserable to go marketing, it's well to know a reliable place you can call for your fruits and vegetables. You want someone who will take a personal interest in your orders. Along with attention you want promptness, careful promptness, not just the throw-it-together and send-it out-in-a-hurry kind.

Do you know where to find all this? In a large downtown market there's a certain produce dealer, one of our sex, by the way, who not only loves her business, but wants you to do the same. And she sees that you do by supplying the promptness and attention you want.

At her stand you can find all varieties of fruits and vegetables, even the very rare ones, at extremely reasonable prices. Drop by and see her, or call up and talk to her. She'll be glad to hear from all of you.

With all the new aids to cooking which have just come in at a large F street department store, the housewife may expect to take life easy in the kitchen from now on.

The chip-proof and stainless enamel should certainly alleviate the agony of pot and pan scrubbing. It comes in green and ivory, spic and span looking, and unless you try with all your might to burn them black, they are said to retain their fresh, clean look. The chromium tops are guaranteed neither to rust nor tarnish and the bakelite knobs are heatproof. That means you'll be spared a lot of burnt and blistered fingers.

There's also a new health vegetable cooker which enables you to steam three vegetables at one time. Or if you prefer you may remove the compartment separators and cook only one or two at a time.

Vegetables often lose flavor, mineral salts and vitamins by boiling. Cook them in this new receptacle and you preserve all these and even accentuate the flavor.

It's rather interesting to hear that you can cook two vegetables and fish in it without fear of mixing flavor.

Apple pie, we suppose, is the unanimous favorite, but we nominate blueberry pie for a close second. Now that they're out of season a great many people have resigned themselves to doing without, but there's no necessity. After you've finished your shopping in a large department store, take the elevator to the fifth floor and there's a grocery store. Ask the clerk for a jar of the unsweetened blueberries and you've taken the first step toward your pie.

As long as you're downtown, you might step into the store across the street and take a look at the new pie clamps. These are sold with a pie pan for 25 cents. With their aid you can bake a pie as thick as you like and keep all the natural juice inside.

This not only makes the pie a hundred per cent better, but it keeps your stove from getting soiled with all the usual pie dripping and resulting stains.

If you're cake hungry today, you're lucky, for a downtown food shop is running a specialty on three-layer cakes, almost any kind you could wish for. There are mocha creams, caramel nuts, chocolate, orange, coconut and devils' food, any one of these for 50 cents.

Once you're inside the food shop the chances are you won't leave with just a cake, for there are the tempting looking English banberry tarts with crushed raisins and apples between pastry squares. And there are English muffins which make tea time such a pleasure. If you've never tried these toasted with melted butter and plenty of jam, you've no idea what you've missed!

A downtown bakery is doing all it can to make your week-end cooking as light as possible. On your way home you can stop by and pick up a half of a fried spring chicken still warm from the oven. Or you can buy a pot of home-baked beans and a delicious loaf of Boston brown bread.

Fruit juice is just fruit juice to the leisurely members of most families, but the housewife knows better. To her it represents time and effort spent in squeezing limes, lemons or oranges, time which she might well utilize along other lines.

If she were to stop by a G street electric shop it would gladden her heart to see the electric fruit juice extractor which does the work in a jiffy.

Half the bother attached to cocktail parties lies in the labor of preparing the fruit juices. Here's where the whole family might be led to appreciate the qualities of the extractor.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of the Woman's Department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Sweet Potatoes Maintain High Standard of Eating

Inexpensive, Fine in Flavor, They Prove a Treasure to Epicures; There Are Many Ways to Prepare Them.

Gold in color. Grand in flavor. Inexpensive, too. Sweet potatoes are an all-round treasure for keeping up the gold standard of eating.

Even if you just boil them with their skins on, then mash them up with seasonings and serve them with good brown gravy, you've got a dish to be proud of. News Commentator Lowell Thomas says so, and I'm sure millions more will agree.

Or candy them and serve them with a thick slice of juicy ham. That dish will be a headliner, too, particularly if you give it the richness of butter and brown sugar, as in the following recipe:

Cook 4 large sweet potatoes in their jackets. Then peel and cut them, lengthwise in slices at least half inch thick. Next lay them shingle fashion (slightly overlapping) in a flat baking dish. Dot them all over with butter, using one-third cup in all. Then sprinkle them with two-thirds cup light brown sugar mixed with half teaspoon salt and half teaspoon cinnamon (if you like cinnamon). Set the dish in a moderately hot oven (375 F.) about 15 minutes, basting the potatoes meanwhile with the sirup in the bottom of the dish. Then finish browning them under the broiling flame.

Sweet Potato Pone.

Or—for a sweet potato pone that's extra delicious with roast fowl as well as pork and ham—here's a very good version:

First, mash enough boiled sweet potato to make 3 cups. Beat this up light with spoon or strong whisk. Then add 3 tablespoons butter, quarter teaspoon salt, half cup chopped pecans, one-third cup cooking sherry. Beat up again, turn into greased baking dish and brown in a hot oven (about 400 F.). (Sherry gives this a grand flavor. But if you can't get it at your grocery, use canned pinapple juice instead.)

Sweet Potato Pudding.

Now to prove to you that sweet potatoes can finish off a meal just as well as they support the meat course, I'm going to tell you how to make a delicious sweet-potato dessert.

Start with 3 cups grated sweet potato (raw). Mix the following into this: ¾ up corn sirup, 1-3 cup sugar, ¾ cup milk, ½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans, ¾ cup seeded raisins, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ¾ teaspoon each of allspice and cinnamon and 3 eggs (beaten well, first). Next, melt 1-3 cup butter in heavy skillet. Turn the mixture into this and stir constantly till thoroughly heated. Then set skillet in moderate oven (about 350 F.). When crust forms around edge, turn it under. Do this twice more. Let the third crust stay, and continue baking for 40 minutes more.

For a sauce, sweeten 1 cup of cream with 2 tablespoons of powdered sugar, add ½ teaspoon vanilla, and pass in a pitcher, to be poured over individual servings of pudding.

Send for More Recipes.

More sweet-potato dishes? I have a bulletin, "Sweet Potato Treats," that contains such favorites as sweet-potato biscuits, croquets, French fries and sweet-potato chicken fricassee. Another bulletin (my newest) tells how to make all the good favorite stews, such as Irish stew, and some of the less familiar stews, such as Hungarian goulash, Dutch ragout. Sukiyaki, Mexican lamb stew. Send 6 cents in loose stamps for each bulletin (12 cents for both), together with stamped envelope and coupon below.

Honey Supply Just Half That of Last Year, So Price Is High.

The busy bees have been up to things. It's hard to tell whether they have gone on strike or have adopted a code. At any rate, they have failed to produce the maximum amount of honey.

Dealers say the 1933 honey crop is 50 per cent less—in supply, not price—than it was last year. They say it's the same quality, the same in all respects, except that it's decidedly scarce.

At present this seems to have had no drastic effect on the cost of it, but as the demand increases and the supply decreases, we may well have reason to regard honey as one of the season's luxuries.

Virginia Supply In.

Most of the honey on the market today, fresh honey, of course, is coming from nearby Virginia, smelling and tasting of apple blossoms.

It is interesting to see the sections of honey each representing the essence of the blooms and then to let your eyes rest on the ruddy Virginia apples which might have come from the very blossoms which supplied the honey bees.

These apples are ranked among the finest eating apples in the country. They are rich in meat, juice and flavor, all essentials of first-class fruit. As table centers they lend color and artistry. Arrange several in a silver plate with a banana or two tucked in between and a bunch of grapes sprawling across the top and you have a picture as edible as paintable.

Baking Secret Told.

Few people know the secret of baking these Delicious apples. They might have tried them once or twice and had them fall to pieces and decided they were not the baking kind. As a matter of fact, they are splendid bakers. But you must remember they are keenly sensitive to overheating. You must exercise patience with them, bake slowly, and lightly, and the result will assuredly prove satisfactory.

Pineapples continue to be plentiful and cheaper, although small. They are coming in from Puerto Rico as one of the surest indications that all's well with the weather in the Southern isles. They act almost as a barometer in this regards. As soon as there are storms, the pineapples become both scarce and high; but let normal conditions prevail and they appear on the market in great numbers at reasonable prices.

Green Pears Tempting.

What a busy woman the housewife would be if she took advantage of all the preserving fruits which continue to pour into the market. This morning the green pears are strongly suggesting that spiced pear preserves will taste mighty good during the winter. However, they seem to say, "If you're tired of canning, preserving and what not, we're really delicious when stewed."

Fruit and vegetable merchants are unanimous in agreeing that artichokes are exceptionally nice today. Their price is really quite reasonable, but is expected to fall off some.

Local tomatoes are going, but not quite gone. We may still expect them for a short time yet. It would be a good idea to take advantage of some of the low-priced ones on hand today, for they might be the lowest until next year. Those from Florida and California are due any time now and when they appear the price will jump overnight.

Pennsylvania is well represented by mushrooms today. Baskets of large white cultivated ones are selling at a record low price for the season. You will find them top-notch in quality.

Women Will Discuss Peace At Conference

President and Mrs. Roosevelt Will Both Speak on World Crisis.

President Roosevelt will deliver the closing address at the annual Women's Conference on Current Problems which will be held this year on October 12-13 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City.

This will be the third conference in a series which was inaugurated in 1930 when the women leaders in various educational, civic and philanthropic organizations met for information and discussion of the problems of that time.

The keynote of this year's conference, to which representative men and women from every State in the Union and many foreign leaders have been invited, will be "This Crisis in History." The discussions, which will be divided into four sessions, will center around the present world upheaval and the part the United States is destined to play in it.

The theme of the first session, which will be opened by Walter Lippman, will be "The World Outlook." Theodore Roosevelt, former governor general of the Philippine Islands, who has made no statement since his return from the Orient, will break his silence and discuss "Peace Problems of Our Foreign Possessions;" Ruth Bryan Owen, American Minister to Denmark, will address the conference on "The Place of Women in the Present Crisis" over an international radio hook-up from London; Countess Margherita Sarfatti, Italian feminist and owner of two important Italian newspapers, will broadcast from Rome on "Women Under Fascist Rule."

The second session will be devoted to "World Youth Movements." At this session Dr. Harold Rugg, of Teachers College, who is an authority on youth movements in America, Europe and the Orient, will give a general survey; Ishbel MacDonald will broadcast from London directly to the conference on "Young England;" Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, chairman of the board of directors of the Girl Scouts of America, will discuss in a broadcast, "New Importance of Old Youth Movements;" Mrs. John G. Pratt, president of the Junior Leagues of America, will present "Youth's Obligation in the Present Crisis," and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will talk on "Young America."

The third session, on "The Crisis in Education," will be opened by Dr. Harry W. Chase, Chancellor of New York University.

The theme of the concluding session will be "Peace or War?" Preceding President Roosevelt's address, Dr. James T. Shotwell, professor of history, Columbia University and co-author of the Kellogg pact, will discuss "The Outlook for Peace" and William R. Castle, jr., former Undersecretary of State, "The Outlook for War." Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College and delegate to the Geneva Conference, will talk on "Educating for Peace;" Dr. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of "Foreign Affairs" will present "The Problems Facing the Arms Conference."

Without Jobs, Women Lose Good Looks

German Women Are Cited by Beauty Expert as Inclined to Neglect.

When a woman loses economic independence, the loss is reflected immediately in neglected personal appearance, says Helena Rubenstein, beauty expert.

Recently arrived from a tour of England, France, Italy and Germany, Mme. Rubenstein pointed to the women of the latter country as examples in support of her statement.

"There is no doubt," she said, "that German women are succumbing, in part at least, to the ideal recently put forth by the National Socialists of a 'fatter, less studious female.' One does not see, as in past years, German women wearing their carefully achieved blond beauty with vivacious grace."

Discouraged by Pay Cut.

General discouragement of German women's activities in professional and business fields, through abrogation of the article in the Reich constitution which decreed that women in government service receive equal pay for equal work, had an even more pronounced effect on women's personal appearance, Mme. Rubenstein feels.

"One observes that German women are losing their sureness, the self-confidence they once were wont to have in their power and loveliness," Mme. Rubenstein said.

"A certain carelessness and indifference is conspicuous, in marked contrast to the perfect poise and lovely complexions of past years. They do not wear their clothes with the same distinction. Their skins show neglect. Make-up is less artistic."

Struggle in the Offing.

Mme. Rubenstein believes, however, that the German women will not long permit themselves to be relegated to the position they occupied several centuries ago. She feels they have become too intelligent, and have had a taste of freedom and equality of opportunity they will not surrender without a struggle.

She believes that feminine love of beauty and admiration ultimately will prove stronger than any ban against beautifying. She predicts they will, in one way or another, find means of practicing the ancient art of beauty—an art so old and so intuitive that it can not be suppressed through legislation or masculine disapproval.

Black Heads List Of Autumn Colors

Brown Holds Second Place; Mouskin Is Popular.

Black, black, and more black! Stylists concur in the opinion it will account for 65 to 70 per cent of costume sales among smart women this season.

Next comes brown. Two shades are being talked about. The first is a yellow-cast brown, called Jenny Wren, and the second a very dark brown, as yet nameless, closely resembling the tete-de-negre of other years.

Mouskin is a high fashion color which is achieving general acceptance. It is derived from the eel gray of the past spring, but has been developed in a richer, taupe shade, so that it blends beautifully with gray or brown furs.

Rumba is a novelty color that should appeal to the smaller girl. It is a subtle yellow-red, reminiscent of the Spanish tile of two seasons ago, although more toned down.

Olivette is the new shade of green. It is in the same color path as olive green, but much lighter. And for the conservative woman forest green is being shown.

Widowed Cricket Seeking Husband.

Yellow Springs, Ohio (AP).—There has been a domestic tragedy in the office of M. Elizabeth McCalmont, associate personnel worker at Antioch College. A lady cricket on the hearth has ceased her chirruping.

This ad followed in the college paper: "Wanted—A husband, by a widowed cricket. Gentleman cricket desired with congenial tastes; good family background; love of domestic life, children and music more important than financial stability."

Salt Aids Frying Fish.

When frying fish of any kind, a little salt sprinkled on the pan when it is hot and the fat boiling enables the fish to be turned without breaking.

Popularity Foreseen For Long-Haired Furs

Fashion forecasters predict that long-haired furs will prove important this winter. Which means foxes will be in great demand. Next in importance, so they say, is Persian lamb. Mink gets third place in the fur forecast.

Squirrel should prove a good-selling fur, as should skunk, they say, because both make excellent showing for the money.

New Theater Bills of Varied Interest as Viewed by First Night Death Watch!

Rialto Opens With Film of Great Beauty

"S O S Iceberg" a Tragic Tale of Frozen North; Other New Bills.

Not since Capt. Kleinschmidt's "Adventures in the Far North" spread its grandeur upon the silent screen has so thrillingly beautiful a panorama of the Arctic been on display as is revealed in this tragic record of human sacrifice and daring in Greenland's frozen seas.

The cataclysmic convulsions of nature from which icebergs are born, the bleak isolation of floating palaces of ice from which there is no escape save death, and the less ominous beauties of a world of glistening crystal have been caught by the camera with remarkable fidelity and lent a unique realism by the expert recording of all the sounds and commotion of a world in travail.

There can be no overstatement of the visual wonder of "S. O. S. Icebergs." Its pictorial glories are unprecedented—and it is not an exaggeration to say that so prolific is this picture in superb camera effects that they finally become a bit monotonous—its suggestion of the marvels and the terror of a continent of ice is overpowering and its footages authentic to the last inch.

This, however, constitutes the film's single claim to superlative excellence. The story of a little band of intrepid explorers bent on salvaging the records of an earlier expedition, and itself threatened with extinction marooned on a towering island of ice drifting out to the open sea, is made to seem hardly more than puny in comparison with the magnitude and magnificence of its background.

Tale of Adventure.

It is, of course, a tale of high adventure, of heroic deeds and a few that are craven, but it is tossed against so Gargantuan and gorgeous a canvas that it is overwhelmed almost to the point of impotence.

The cast is a small one, but is made up of types that completely meet the requirements of their respective roles. Rod La Rocque, as Dr. Carl Lawrence, leader of the rescue expedition, is called upon for less than the others, spending most of his visible moments in a slow and prostrate struggle to recover from hardships that the audience does not see. Sepp Rist, Gibson Gowland, Dr. Max Holsboer and Walter Riml present rugged impersonations of explorers inured, with one exception, to the rigors of the Arctic. The single exception is the John Dragan of Gibson Gowland, whose mind gives way under the strain of hardship, hunger and hopelessness.

Leni Riefenstahl, an actress whose name means nothing to American audiences, is the only woman in the cast and acquits herself creditably in a role of meager opportunities. Ernst Udet, famous German ace, does the airplane stunting that lends a thrilling touch to scenes otherwise devoid of action and accomplishes the hazardous feat of landing his ship safely on an iceberg.

The brief instant of drama that marks the picture's climacteric peak is that marked by the flashing around the world by radio of the word that the Lawrence expedition is still alive. This has been shrewdly and dynamically handled by Tay Garnett, the director.

Prominent among the stars of the picture is Nakinak, a fine specimen of Eskimo Spitz, which carries on after his pals, the huskies hitched to the sledges, have met their doom in an avalanche of snow and ice. Dog lovers exclaimed over him throughout the picture last evening and shuddered when his life was threatened, first by a Polar bear and next by Mr. Gowland, who seemed intent upon converting him into a stew!

Auxiliary Features.

The screening of the feature was preceded by a "Goofytone Newsreel," which did not always achieve the satirical humor at which it aimed, and Louis Sobol, New York columnist, in "Peeping Tom," a novelty short-reel, introducing, in addition to Mr. Sobol, Roy Atwill and his twisted English; Gertrude Niessen, songstress; John Fogarty, Irish tenor; a scene at the Paradise Club in New York, Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys and numerous others of varying degrees of cleverness.

A large and distinguished first-night audience attended last night's invitational and reserved-seat premiere to signalize the reopening of the Rialto after many months of darkness. Among those present were many representatives of the diplomatic, official and social sets prominent in the life of the Capital.

"S. O. S. Iceberg" begins its regular continuous run at the Rialto this morning at the customary scale of admissions. It is eminently worth seeing, and is recommended as an unusual combination of fact and fiction, far excelling the ordinary run-of-mill output of the West Coast studios.

"SECRET OF THE BLUE ROOM." Universal picturization of a story by William Hurlbut, featuring Lionel Atwill, Gloria Stuart, William Janney, Onslow Stevens, Edward Arnold and Paul Lukas. Directed by Kurt Neuman. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Papa and Junior Laemmle failed to keep their powder dry when they were making this one, with the result that while it occasionally sputters half-heartedly, it never quite explodes.

There is, to be sure, a great deal of running up and down some very long halls to see what has happened to the latest victim of the lethal chamber, known as the "blue room," in the wind-swept castle of a foster father and his beautiful daughter, and toward the end there is one of those mad dashes through the subterranean labyrinth of the same sprawling structure, with a great deal of gunfire, and Mr. Lionel Atwill suddenly and miraculously turning out to be Mr. William Janney, but even so "The Mystery of the Blue Room" is a little too soporific for gooseflesh or the whitening of the temples.

The goings-on all had their inception with the introduction of the tragedies that had occurred in the blue room 20 years before as a cheerful topic of discussion at midnight following the daughter's twenty-first birthday party—of all times and places!

Three valiant young suitors for her favor decide to sleep one night each in the blue room to determine once and for all what the weird power is that is so unfailingly destructive to the lives of those who dare to risk its dangers.

Two Disappear.

The first two disappear in most baffling fashion, quite in consonance with the legend of the place. The third is a little too smart for the supposedly spooky enemies with which he has to cope and, at the cost of a thump or two on the head and dodging a stream of bullets, causes the reign of terror to flatten out into the merest shadow of its former self!

Aside from romping up and down those long halls and answering some especially inept cross-examination by the police commissioner, nobody in the cast has anything of note to contribute to the side either of plausibility or art. Lionel Atwill, William Janney, Onslow Stevens, Edward Arnold, Gloria Stuart, Robert Barratt, Elizabeth Patterson, Russell Hopton, Paul Lukas, Muriel Kirkland and a considerable number of others contrive to shift suspicion to the wrong individuals a great deal of the time, but that is about as far as the ends of authentic mystery drama are served.

There is, of course, a strong wind blowing throughout most of the action and doors and windows fly open with terrifying unexpectedness and, at the very last, there is even a secret panel, but even so—.

On the stage, a vaudeville bill of considerably higher level of excellence is disclosed. The undisputed headliner for the week, naturally, is Barbara Stanwyck, playing temporary truant from the Warner studios on the West Coast, who presents an act called "The Interview," in which she is supported by a company of four.

Acts Two Scenes.

"The Interview" permits the introduction by Miss Stanwyck of two telling scenes from her pictures of "Ladies of Leisure" and "The Miracle Woman"—the renunciation scene from the former and the pulpit denunciation from the latter. Miss Stanwyck, losing nothing of her screen authority when facing an audience in the flesh, was greeted with great enthusiasm and a huge sheaf of roses yesterday afternoon, although her frequent shifts of scene were not handled as adroitly as she might have thought ideal. She played, nevertheless, with the same vigor she employs before the cameras—if at a trifle too brisk a tempo—and the crowd liked her.

In addition to Miss Stanwyck, Gracie Barrie introduced the Stone Vernon Dance Revue, a pretentious interval of adagio and interpretative dances; Johnny Woods, "the ballyhooligan," who virtually stopped the show with his splendid burlesques of the foremost radio stars, and Britt Wood, "the boob himself," whose harmonica playing, monologue, soft-shoe dancing and "yodeling" still comprise an irresistibly droll combination. Miss Barrie sang "Strike Me Pink," "Hold Your Man" and "Not a Secret Any More" to score a substantial hit on her own account.

Great Dancers.

Hal LeRoy and Mitzi Mayfair have one of their liveliest short-reel subjects in Vitaphone's "Use Your Imagination," in which they are assisted by the Eton Boys, Bob Pitkin and a beauty chorus. They are still far and away the best juvenile dancers on the American stage, although Mitzi better begin watching her calories!

The Universal News and Freddie Clark's "March and Procession of Bacchus" overture complete a generously diversified bill.

Loew's Fox

"BIG EXECUTIVE." Fox picturization of a story by Alice Duer Miller; adapted to the screen by Laurence Stallings, featuring Ricardo Cortez, Richard Bennett, Elizabeth Young, Sharon Lynn, and Dorothy Peterson. Directed by Erle C. Kenton. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

"Big Executive" just misses being a fine picture. The reasons are not immediately apparent. It is handsomely staged, well cast and intelligently played with obviously serious intent. Yet it just misses fire.

Fashioned much after the pattern of "The Conquerors"—although all in one generation—in that it deals with a conflict between a young and an aged financier, "Big Executive" is primarily deficient in the matter of motivation.

There are arbitrary movements of plot, points of view and consequent complications that are not predicated upon any combination of causes calculated to bring about the effects that we see pictured upon the screen.

There is no incident, and certainly no climax, that is the inevitable outcome of the dramatic developments that have preceded it, with the possible exception of the brief murder investigation to which the "big executive" is subjected by the sheriff after he has mistaken his wife for a moose and shot her dead in the woods. For this he probably would have been convicted instead of turned free for lack of sufficient evidence to hold him.

Cortez Poised.

Ricardo Cortez plays the title role with a poise and a well-judged restraint that mark a further step in his steady improvement as an actor of discernment and discretion. Conceding nothing to the nominally stellar role portrayed by Mr. Cortez is Richard Bennett as the old walrus of a money king of an older generation. Made up to resemble an old composite of Clemenceau, the "Tiger of France," and Old Bill, of the Bainsfather cartoons, Bennett, pere, does a keenly humorous, quaintly contradictory and utterly forceful bit of portraiture as the nonogenarian Titan of finance who set about to wreck the career of the suitor for his great-granddaughter's hand, and pretty successfully did.

Elizabeth Young, a young actress who makes a better and better impression as the action progresses, is the love interest, and Sharon Lynn, the office secretary, is the picture's closest approach to a feminine menace. The others in the long cast do not greatly matter.

"Big Executive" as a piece of realistic drama is guilty of a majority of all of dramaturgy's sins both of commission and omission, but as an entertaining trifle for those who are intrigued by the ornate trappings of great wealth, it should be a great success. Its reflection of the relationships of men of large affairs is a little too fantastic to be taken at face value.

The Stage Bill.

On the stage Arthur Tracy, "The Street Singer" of stage and radio, repeats the outstanding personal success he always scores here. Among his numbers this week are "Farewell to Arms," "Without a Song," "Sleep, My Darling, Sleep," "Eli-Eli" and other favorites, which he sings in excellent voice.

Others on the vaudeville bill include Mills, Gold and Raye, three lads with a deal of "nut" comedy that is only so-so and some dancing that is clever, and Paul Nolan, a juggler much after the manner of one seen last week on another local stage.

In addition to the Fox Movietone News, the short-reel supplementaries include Tom Howard in "Static," one of his more amusing nonsensicalities, and the usual NRA appeal.

The orchestra under the baton of Phil Lampkin this week offers "The Queen's Secret" as its overture.

Palace

"STAGE MOTHER." M-G-M picturization of a story by Bradford Ropes, adapted to the screen by the author and John Meehan, featuring Alice Brady, Maureen O'Sullivan, Ted Healy, Franchot Tone and Phillips Holmes. Directed by Charles R. Brabin. Reviewed Friday night.

Again the good old Pied Piper comes to the rescue. Not to Hamlin Town this time, but to the Palace. For Walt Disney's inspired Silly Symphony about the tatterdemalion piper and his Boy Scout deeds, done up in glorious color, is easily the feature picture here this week.

Next comes a Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Busy Bodies," that has its moments, though not as many or hilarious as usual. Then there's a newsreel with our own Senator Joe Cronin.

And last, "Stage Mother."

A strange breed—stage mothers—cruel, hard-boiled, unprincipled, untiring in their deathless ambition for their offspring, whether the offspring has any ambition or not, but (true to the tradition of the theater), really good-hearted underneath, way underneath, so that when the crisis in their offspring's life arrives, their motherly emotions overwhelm their ambition and their self control, and the saga ends in sentiment and tears.

Back to Broadway.

And this particular stage mother, Kitty Loraine, is like all the rest, if not a little cruder and cheaper. We follow her from the death of her husband-vaudeville partner just before the birth of their daughter, to the austere Boston home of his parents and a four-year retirement, then through a disastrous second marriage to another vaudevillian, thence up the long climb, which daughter doesn't want to make, to Broadway and bright lights via blackmail and daughter's fame and heartbreak. The best moment in the film, which seems slovenly put together, is daughter's long overdue and heart-warming rebellion, which is all too brief dissolving—and how—into those tears we mentioned.

Several dance numbers are colorful and nicely staged, and certain scenes are excellent, the heart-stopping fall of Kitty's acrobat husband to his death being rather too realistic, but the story is hopelessly cluttered with almost unbelievably inane dialogue.

We're sorry if any one cares, but simply can not see Alice Brady as anything other than a very routine actress in the movies, and her performance as Kitty Loraine doesn't change our eyesight in her favor.

Males Slighted.

Maureen O'Sullivan is splendid as the daughter, natural and sincere. Ted Healy plays the second husband like Ted Healy. And if any young ladies go to this to see Franchot Tone or Phillips Holmes, they'll be sadly disappointed, Franchot having 10 minutes in which to talk about Priscilla and John Alden and the forest primeval, and Phillips, five minutes to mutter, "Bah jove."

To return to a happier subject, that "Pied Piper" film has all the lilt and fun and fantasy possible in its too short length, and exactly the right tune for the piper to pipe. Walt Disney never had a stage mother. He has too much fun left in him.

Metropolitan

"TOO MUCH HARMONY." Paramount picturization of a story by Henry L. Mankiewicz, with dialogue by Harry Ruskin and songs by Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow, featuring Bing Crosby, Jack Oakie, Judith Allen, "Skeets" Gallagher, Harry Green, Ned Sparks and Kitty Kelly. Directed by Edward Sutherland; dances by Le Roy Prinz. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

It seems that musical shows, with all the concomitants of beauty chorus, theme songs and loosely hung together plots, have definitely returned to favor.

It also seems that Paramount had some notable stars with nothing much to do at the time so they hired Arthur Johnston and Sam Coslow to write some catchy songs (you'll be humming them without knowing it) and they made Bing Crosby the lead with a personable young woman named Judith Allen, for love interest, and the always intriguing Lilyan Tashman for the clothes interest, and a few swell troupers like Jack Oakie, "Skeets" Gallagher, Harry Green, Ned Sparks and Kitty Kelly and—psst!—"Too Much Harmony" is the remarkable result!

Mr. Crosby, whose voice can put almost any song into the ranks of popularity, plays the role of a musical comedy star whose aeroplane is forced down in a small town. To pass the time he goes to a show and there discovers a team composed of Oakie, Gallagher and Judith Allen. He takes them back with him to New York and from there on the story is the usual tale of back-stage life and the exciting procedure of whipping a musical extravaganza into shape.

Cast Competent.

Harry Green, as a producer, gives one of the best performances of this type the screen has seen. Jack Oakie, in a reasonably subdued mood, is much better than he has been for some time past. Miss Allen is attractive, but it was quite obvious that a double was employed to do her warbling. Bing Crosby is, of course—Bing Crosby! His rendition of "Thanks," a pleasant little ditty written especially for "Too Much Harmony," will make that song one of the highlights of the musical season.

If you like to peek backstage, and if you enjoy musical comedies, you will probably enjoy "Too Much Harmony" without undue mental straining and with more than a fair share of enthusiasm.

Added attractions on the bill include a Paramount News, with some really beautiful shots of the Jewish festival being held in New York to celebrate the current Jew-the holiday; a Grantland Rice Sportslight, entitled "The March of the Champions," and a Merrie Melodie cartoon comedy, optimistically labeled "We're in the Money."

RKO-Keith's

"LADY FOR A DAY." Columbia picturization of a story by Damon Runyon, featuring May Robson, Warren William, Guy Kibbee, Glenda Farrell, Hobart Bosworth, Ned Sparks and Robert Emmett O'Connor. Directed by Frank Capra. Reviewed Friday afternoon, second week.

The fact that May Robson's tenure of office as a "lady" has been extended from a day to two weeks is proof that her latest work is not only a highly commendable undertaking, but that the RKO "Greater Show Season" is no idle boast.

You all know of Apple Annie's elevation to society's mentor, if only "for a day"; of Dave the Dude's part in fostering this deception, of the troubles encountered from the police, and of the final successful outcome—all this and more is common knowledge, and needs no elaboration here or now.

Too, the work of Miss Robson, as Apple Annie; of Warren William, as the Dude; of Guy Kibbee, as "Judge" Blake; of Ned Sparks, as Happy; of Glenda Farrell, as Missouri Martin; of Jean Parker, as Annie's charming daughter; of Walter Connelly, as Count Romero; of Barry Norton, Nat Pendleton, Hobart Bosworth, Wallis Clark, Robert Emmett O'Conner and all the others, need not be gone into at this time.

Suffice it to say, that here is a swell show—improbable, to be sure—but most amusing, dramatic and thoroughly satisfying entertainment all the while.

Heading the list of auxiliary attractions is "My Side of the Story," with David L. Hutton, "Aimee's cheerful little earful," to quote a subtitle, passing none too veiled comments on the now famous cablegram, but mostly displaying a powerful barytone with "Say It Isn't So" and "My Faith In You." As a song short, it is diverting.

The cartoon comedy, "World Flight," and an interesting release of Pathe News make up the balance of the eminently satisfactory program.

Columbia

"DOCTOR BULL." Fox picturization of James Gould Cozzens' "The Last Adams," starring Will Rogers, with Vera Allen, Marian Nixon, Howard Lally, Berton Churchill and Louise Dresser. Directed by John Ford. Reviewed, return engagement, Friday afternoon.

From a cursory examination of the possibilities involved in the presentation of James Gould Cozzens' recent novel of a Connecticut country practitioner, it would seem that here was a role made to Will Rogers' homely measurements. But the screen personification of "Doctor Bull" is no little distance from a literal transcription of "The Last Adam."

Far be it at this time to cast aspersions on Mr. Rogers' work or on that of the commendable collection of "types" that has here been assembled. Rather is it at the door of Paul Green, who adapted the Cozens, work, that responsibility must be laid for a cinema script that not only loses the point of the original but one that, too, errs on the side of travesty, instead of the original author's realism.

Rogers Whole Show.

Will Rogers, in the title role, is the entire show, but it is the Will Rogers of yore; a Will who goes over by sheer force of his name rather than by reason of any overwhelming character delineation.

In the supporting cast, the love interest is furnished by Rochelle Hudson and her nonappearing boy friend and by Marian Nixon and Howard Lally. To omit Vera Allen, as Janet Cardmaker, in this connection would be an inexcusable oversight, even though her ultimate marriage to the doctor is quite contrary to the spirit of the Cozzens' novel.

Others paticipating in the charade are Burton Churchill, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine, Ralph Morgan, Effie Ellsler, and Veda Buckland.

"Shades of Cairo," a release of the Magic Carpet of Movietone series; "Thru Thick and Thin, or Whose Zoo in Africa," the latest effort of the Masquers (and when better comedies are made the Masquers will probably make them) and a release of the Paramount News round out the bill.

Ford Dismisses 511 Employes To End Strike

(United Press.)

With Henry Ford resolutely strengthening his defense against possible widespread rebellion on the part of his workers, labor troubles still affected many industrial sections of the Nation yesterday.

The Ford company dismissed 511 employes of the New Jersey plant who failed to report for work. Officials said the employes had been intimidated by strikers from the Pensnylvania plant.

A test of strength between the National Labor Board and Ford was considered likely, the board having declared intention of seeking to arbitrate difficulties between the automobile manufacturer and his employes of his Chester (Pa.) plant.

Would Close All Plants.

Workers in the Chester factory struck last week, and Ford immediately shut the plant down.

In Detroit it was made plain that Ford wants to keep his gigantic industrial empire functioning smoothly, but that he stands ready to close every Ford plant in the country if the strike fever spreads. The industrialist does not intend to be coerced, it was said.

Ford has not signed the NRA code, but probably will met with NRA mediators if they go to Detroit for a conference. Sources close to Ford said he is trying to abide by the spirit of the recovery act by paying as many men as much as possible under his present production schedule.

Though he closed down the Chester plant, it was indicated that Ford does not intend to close the Edgewater, N. J., plant unless the walkout there becomes general. He claims he is paying workers a much higher wage scale than they would receive elsewhere.

70,000 Miners Out.

Another strike in which the NRA code is the principal issue is that of 70,000 workers, mostly employes of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., a subsidiary of U. S. Steel, operating chiefly in Fayette County, Pa.

The Frick Company has not signed the coal code and workers are demanding its signature, both to the code and to union wage agreements.

At Clairton, Pa., 4,000 striking coal miners marched around the Carnegie Steel Co.'s by-products plant, sending many day shift workers back to their homes. A detachment of State troopers stood by.

Leaders of the anthracite strike around Scranton warned that unless operators recognize their union "we will tie up every mining operation in District No. 1. Peaceful picketing continued at the Weirton, W. Va., steel plants, where 13,000 workers are on strike, demanding union recognition.

Johnson Return Expected in Week

NRA Will Mark Time Until Administrator at Desk.

The NRA will continue to mark time over the week-end and probably a part of next week, due to the confinement of Administrator Hugh S. Johnson at Walter Reed Hospital, where he is convalescing from a minor operation.

Although there is some hope that Gen. Johnson may return to his desk Monday, where a week's work awaits his attention, it is likely he will remain a few more days to aid his recovery.

There has been no recurrence of the temperature which caused a setback two days ago.

Dern Returns to Office After Mid-Western Tour

Secretary of War Dern returned yesterday from a two-week train and boat trip through the Middle West, including a personal inspection of the St. Lawrence waterways system. An airplane, placed at his disposal by the Army Air Corps, was not used.

Mr. Dern went to his office late yesterday to familiarize himself with progress on Army projects under the Public Works Administration construction program.

Peg Talmadge, 3 Film Stars' Mother, Dies

Hollywood, Sept. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Margaret (Peg) Talmadge, mother of the three Talmadge sisters of the screen—Norma, Constance and Natalie—died at a hospital today of pneumonia.

Charlie Chaplin liked to test her reaction to his "gags," Frances Marion sought her comment on scenarios and Richard Barthelmess and many other movie stars turned to her at times for advice.

"Peg," as her daughters called her, and as Hollywood came to address her, guide the careers of her daughters from the day she first took Norma to register at the old Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn for a $25-a-week job until the girls were signing contracts which brought them thousands of dollars a week.

Mrs. Talmadge was born on Governors Island, N. Y. She was the widow of Frederick Talmadge who died in 1925.

"Unreality" Subject at Christian Science Churches.

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Psalms 33:10: "The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat." (Genesis 3:4-6.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "A knowledge of evil was never the essence of divinity or manhood. In the first chapter of Genesis, evil has no local habitation nor name. Error tills its own barren soil and buries itself in the ground, since ground and dust stand for nothingness. No one can reasonably doubt that the purpose of this allegory—this second account in Genesis—is to depict the falsity of error and the effects of error." (Page 537.)

Saul of Tarsus Described

Became Fervent After Conversion and Carried Gospel to Rulers as Well as Lowly; Noted for His Higher Learning.

Saul in Tarsus.

Scripture: Acts 21:39; 22:3, 27, 28; 26; 4-7; Phil. 3: 3-6.

Place: Tarsus and Jerusalem.

Golden text: "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." —II Timothy 2:15.

By Wyman Walker.

Little can be ascertained as to the early life of Saul of Tarsus (Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles)—however, he was a freeborn Roman citizen, of pure Hebrew ancestry, in Cilicia, which is located in the southeastern part of Asia Minor, about the time of our Savior. He is supposed to have suffered martyrdom at Rome about 67 A. D.

Paul, no doubt, was an exceptional scholar, Tarsus being one of the most outstanding literary cities of his time—having studied under Gamaliel the law of the fathers, and having lived the life of a Pharisee, the strictest sect of his religion. The Pharisees were an insistent party in the validity of the law and traditions of the Elders. Regardless of a man's standing, professionally or otherwise, it was customary for all Jews to gain knowledge of some trade, and we see that Paul was a tentmaker, even as was his father.

More Than Zealous.

Our Scripture lesson is that of Paul while a prisoner in Jerusalem after his conversion on the road to Damascus. Not only was Paul zealous toward God, like his brethren, before his conversion in our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, but after his conversion he was more than zealous—he became fervent. He wanted to reach his brethren in converting them to the fact the Messiah had come and He had come as a sacrifice for sin, not only for the sins of the Jews, but for those of the entire world.

He worked conscientiously and was deeply interested as a Pharisee, but when the revelation of Christ appeared to him—when he saw the vision of the Son of God standing at the right hand of the throne of God—he wanted to shout to the heavens that revelation. He wanted everyone to know it, so he wasted no time at any place and passed no opportunity to preach Christ and His being the Son of God whom they were persecuting and had rejected.

Paul's environment taught him profound faith in God. There is no doubt but that God had prepared Paul from the beginning, as it is written: "He is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name unto the gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel." (Acts 9:15.) His higher learning of Greek authors and philosophy and his command of foreign language, made him fit that he might be well prepared to carry the good news not only to the ones of lesser learning but unto those that rank among the kings and rulers—this is why Paul tells us to study to show ourselves approved unto God, that we may not only know the ways of God, but that we may know His word.

Equipped to Defy Evils.

When the Word of God is revealed to us, all the fears of the world banish, and that desire and burning zeal as Paul had to preach the word to everyone shall likewise burn us. When we study God's word we make ourselves better equipped to defy evils of the world. Knowing the Word of God shall so strengthen us that, like Paul, no man shall be able to withstand it. The Word of God shall separate us from worldly things just as it did Paul, and as Paul tells us in Romans 8: 35-39, nothing shall separate us from the love of Christ, not even tribulation, persecution, famine, nakedness or sword—"For thy sake we are killed all the day long." "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us." "That neither life, nor death, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

We can not expect to lay hold of God's word through professing only, but we must also possess, and not allow other things to distract our mind. When our faith becomes weakened we shall lose that which we have found, for "faith comes by the hearing of God's word." Romans 10: 17. When we, too, catch that great vision of Our Lord as did Paul, of that bleased hope, nothing shall deter us from wanting others to share.

Romance of Tobacco Depicted By Colorful La Plata Pageant

From Sir Walter Raleigh's First Cigar to Present Hauls in Truck Loads, History of Weed Is Unfolded as Governor Watches.

Pages of history were turned back yesterday at the Fair Grounds at La Platta, Md.

Queen Elizabeth was there with her court. And, after reviving from the shock of seeing Sir Walter Raleigh, her favorite knight, smoking, she listened attentively while Sir Walter told her all about finding tobacco in America.

It was a reenactement in a pageant-drama of the romance of tobacco, written by Kathleen Read Coontz, of Washington, D. C., and acted by the school children and citizens of this tobacco center. Approximately 1,500 persons saw the spectacle.

Most of the folks learned some things about tobacco down there yesterday. For instance, when Sir Walter Raleigh discovered the "magic weed," he found the Indians using it to cure serious illness. One initial scene of the pageant shows Indian medicine men waving the broad tobacco leaves over a sick Indian, and, behold, he gets right up off his pine branch stretcher and gallops off into the woods.

Smoke Chokes Queen.

Then, too, Sir Walter was the first person to teach a white woman to smoke—much to the amusement of the court jester, who finally gets thrown out of court for contempt because he laughed when the tobacco made the queen cough. This scene in the court of Queen Elizabeth was reenacted with Jane Gray as the queen, Adelaide Grey as jester and G. DeFreest Larner as Sir Walter. The fellow who, history tells us, threw a bucket of water on Sir Raleigh, missed him yesterday, probably because the costume looked too nice to spoil.

In rapid succession the pages of history were again turned toward the present day with depictions of John Rolfe and his bride, Pocahontas; the blessing by Father White of the Indian village Portbac, which exists today under the name of Port Tobacco; the meeting of the first Maryland Assembly, where laws were passed making tobacco legal tender in the territory; transportation of tobacco, showing three centuries of progress in getting the crop to the warehouse, and finally an enactment of the famous case of the tobacconists at the Port Tobacco warehouse, which nearly caused the growing of the weed in this country to cease.

Indians to Trucks.

There was many a laugh when the methods of transportation were depicted. First, as nearly three centuries ago, came the Indians, toting tobacco on their heads in baskets. Then the ox-cart with one hogshead. Business picked up from the days of the ox-cart, and mules were used to haul two hogsheads instead of one.

Enter Henry Ford on the scene, and an old Model T truck that dated back to 1910 came rambling along with tobacco stuffed all over it. Finally, a modern truck was shown, hauling 15 hogsheads—a freight car load.

The pageant over, Gov. Ritchie crowned Esther Martin as "Nicotina, Queen of the Magic Weed." A plush carpet was stretched from the reviewing stand, where the Queen sat with the governor, to the throne on the pageant stage, which had been occupied by Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh. The governor placed the crown on Queen Nicotina's head and then gave a short address, praising the pageant.

Military Mass Set For Sunday At Old Church

Site of First Catholic School to Be Scene of Celebration.

Warwick, Md., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Sacred music will be played by a military band from Fort du Pont, Del., next Sunday morning when a military field mass will be held at St. Francis Xavier's Catholic Church, known as Old Bohemia. The Rev. John H. Walsh, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Middletown, Del., and head of the parish, including the local church, is in charge.

The First Company of Engineers, U. S. A., from Fort du Pont, commanded by Capt. Sylvester Nortner, will fire a volley at the moment of the consecration in the mass and buglers will sound a fanfare.

The first Catholic school in the United States was founded in connection with Old Bohemia by the early Jesuits in 1704, and Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and John Carroll, first Bishop of America, received their early training there. The building still stands adjoining the church edifice. Nearby is an ancient Jesuit burying ground.

Georgetown University had its genesis at the school, Jesuits removing their field of activity from the Bohemia River to the Potomac, near Washington, founding Georgetown after leaving here.

The Most Rev. Edmond J. Fitzmaurice, Bishop of Washington, will preside at the mass which will be celebrated by the Rev. William Temple, D. D., pastor of St. Elizabeth's Church, Wilmington, assisted by the Rev. John M. Walsh, pastor of St. Dennis' Church, Galena, Ind., as deacon, and the Rev. Edmond J. McDonough, assistant pastor of St. Elizabeth's, as subdeacon. The Rev. Henry Miller, chaplain of the Catholic Protectory at Delaware City, will be master of ceremonies.

Missouri Crowd Greets Hoovers, Visiting Farm

Maryville, Mo., Sept. 29 (AP).—Former President Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover were greeted by 1,500 persons when they arrived at their 80-acre farm near Graham, Mo., today to inspect it for the first time.

Mr. Hoover responded to the welcome with a short talk, which was interrupted by the breaking of a joist under the porch on which the crowd gathered. None was injured.

A number of Missouri Republican leaders accompanied Mr. Hoover, including Arthur M. Hyde, former Secretary of Agriculture, at whose home at Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were guests last night.

Most of the former President's time at the farm was taken in shaking hands with the more than 400 school children who had gathered from surrounding towns to greet him. He told them their reception pleased and surprised him.

"I lent a friend $10,000 33 years ago," said Mr. Hoover. "He deeded to me this farm. It has never paid any dividends, and I took it over only five years ago, when my friend's mother died."

The party motored to St. Joseph for luncheon and planned to go to Kansas City late today. The Hoovers are returning to California from a visit to the Chicago World's Fair.

Stocks Droop After Advance In Early Sales

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Stocks lacked the stamina to follow through with an early rise today, drooping in the afternoon to close with a small average loss.

Metal, oil and alcohol shares pushed up spryly through the morning and into the quiet afternoon dealings. However, heaviness of American Telephone, eventually running into weakness, cooled the ardor of professionals and the whole list toned down.

Leaders of the early advance maintained part of their gains, on the whole, but other industrials, as well as utilities and rails, were set back a bit.

Phone Shares Down.

Telephone was down 4¼ net. Professionals were reported to have taken an interest in the issue on the short side and with the stock slipping, new buyers hesitated.

The next dividend meeting is still some distance away, yet old rumors concerning a possible change in the rate were revived. The Bell System has recently been gaining installations for the first time in about three years.

U. S. Steel sagged a couple of points, Santa Fe about as much, and Allied Chemical, National Biscuit, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas and Southern Pacific 1 or more. National Distillers, selling ex its "whisky dividend," rallied around 6, then lost most of the rise. U. S. Smelting held nearly half of a similar advance. Sales totaled 1,643,060 shares.

Early Oil Advance.

Petroleum stocks had the benefit of a fresh advance in Midcontinent crude price, which restored the dollar level. Rails may have been affected somewhat by word that last week's freight loadings, though slightly above the previous week, represented a diminishing percentage gain over 1932.

There were a few recruits to the list of roads which are making commitments for rail in pursuance of President Roosevelt's program.

Rumor again had it that the administration was soon to have something to say about the dollar, perhaps in the nature of a devaluation announcement. Exchange fluctuations, however, were generaly narrow, being slightly against our currency most of the day.

Cheerful Note on Banks.

The Government's plans for reopening closed banks sounded a cheerful note. With a billion and three-quarters tied up in such institutions, purchasing power in many localities is restricted and the release of so tidy a sum, or even a part of it, should give a good boost to the recovery cause.

Statistics on retail trade expansion, provided by the New York Reserve Bank's monthly compilation, strengthened the evidence that that branch of business was considerably healthier than a year ago. Dun & Bradstreet thinks September is closing better than it began. The tendency to build up inventories, so pronounced a couple of months ago, has disappeared, the review pointed out, adding that a steadier tone has thus been given to buying movements and a stronger base established for the future.

Opposition Growing to NRA

Future Support Must Rest More and More on Its Social Reforms

By Ralph West Robey.

There no longer is any room for doubting that the NRA is losing ground with the public. In various sections of the country opposition has reached the point of open antagonism, and the charge is being made that the NRA, instead of being an aid in recovery, definitely and positively is lessening the chance of a fall revival of business.

Regardless of whether there is any justification for this charge as yet, it is obvious that there will be ample basis for it unless the development of this attitude is stopped. The NRA can not possibly enjoy any lasting success unless, as Gen. Johnson has stated repeatedly, it is a cooperative effort. As a program operating against a background of hostile public opinion, it does not have a chance.

This fact must be clear to all of those involved in administering the NRA. One would think, accordingly, that in the face of their growing problems they would examine anew, and in a most critical manner, the premises upon which they have been operating. There is no evidence, however, that they are willing to do this. On the contrary, it appears to be their contention that any troubles must have their origin, not in the policies of the NRA, but in the way the rest of the recovery program has been handled.

Main NRA Has Gone Along In Good Style.

They maintain, in other words, that the NRA has moved along in fine shape, getting codes adopted, increasing wages, putting men to work, and restoring the faith of the American public, but that the agricultural and public building programs have not moved fast enough in putting purchasing power in the hands of the public. Thus, one "recovery administrator" explains, according to the news dispatches, that through NRA codes industrial prices have been raised, but that there has not been an adequate increase in agricultural prices and a sufficient amount of money placed in the hands of the public through governmental building to carry these higher prices. He sees, therefore, the possibility of a buyer's strike, accompanied by widespread industrial disputes, this fall.

Such explanations, pleasant as they sound, do no credit to the presumed intelligence of "recovery administrators." In the first place, the prices for farm products have gone up much more than those for other commodities. As measured by the indexes of the Bureau of Labor statistics, the average price of farm products last month was 41 per cent above that for February, while the average price of other commodities had advanced only 12 per cent in the same period. Of course, some industrial prices have increased far more than this, but the point at issue is the general purchasing power as affected by average prices, not the gyrations in the value of individual commodities.

NRA Promised That It Would Make Purchasing Power.

Even worse than this misstatement about relative price increases, however, is the contention on purchasing power through public works. One of the great arguments used to sell the NRA to the public, it scarcely should be necessary to remind "recovery administrators," was that increased employment and higher wages resulting from the codes would in themselves provide the necessary purchasing power to carry the higher prices. This was not a casual thesis advanced at odd moments. It was the very basis upon which the NRA was justified and defended as a recovery measure.

Current opposition to the NRA is based largely upon a realization that this thesis has broken down in practice. The opposition, accordingly, can not be ended by trying to shift the failure of the NRA to obtain its announced goal onto some other part of the administration recovery program. Rather, it can be stopped only if it gets the public to consider it as a social reform measure. From this point of view it has made real contributions. This is practically the only offset it can offer for having sold the public the idea that it could pull prosperity back within three months.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton Goods—There has been an active trade in various finished lines during the last week, according to textile interests. Demand for sheets has been particularly good and some grades are in limited supply.

Hardware—Wholesale volume in some districts is said to be running 50 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year. The principal call is for seasonal goods, although the sale of tools has been on the increase for the first time in several years.

Machinery — Producers of machinery and equipment are operating at a lower rate than in August, although demand for textile machinery has picked up during the last fortnight.

Chemicals—Acetic acid, aqua ammonia, caustic soda and a number of other items used by the textile trade are quiet as a result of labor difficulties in certain mill centers.

Silk Rayon—Prices for greige goods continued to tend upward. Trade interests assert that there has been no piling up of stocks.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation has received orders for 48,500 tons of cast iron segments and special castings, and 3,300 tons of cast steel segments for the midtown Hudson Tunnel, it was announced today. These contracts involve $2,358,150 and are the first to be placed in connection with the tunnel project.

Named College Dean.

Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—E. L. Anthony, dairy expert and formerly head of the dairy department of West Virginia University, has been appointed dean of the college of agriculture at Michigan State University.

Special Venire Drawn.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—The following veniremen have been drawn to fill vacancies at the October term of the Allegany County Circuit Court: Morris Resenbaum, William W. Wolfe, Charles W. Hoffa, Ralph D. Willard, Eli Williams, Henry J. Shriver, Robert K. Todd and Charles C. Burkhart.

Curb Advance Is Trimmed by Final Selling

Specialties Record Gains; Sales Volume Rises to 245,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Curb stocks worked a little higher during the forenoon today, but a dribble of late selling reduced advances and sent a few issues lower for the day, particularly in utilities.

A number of specialties closed with sizable advances. General Tire & Rubber, Safety Car Heating and Parker Rustproof finished 3 to 4 points higher, while in the mining category Lake Shore showed a similar gain. The celluloid issues continued firm, although in restricted trading. New Jersey Zinc and Aluminum Co. of America improved about a point each.

Net losses of major fractions occurred in American Gas & Electric and Electric Bond & Share, while Consolidated Gas of Baltimore lost 3. Transfers approximated 245,000 shares, compared with 214,000 for yesterday.

West Virginia Water Income Is $1,017,111

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 29.—West Virginia Water Service Co., a subsidiary of Federal Water Service Corporation, reports gross revenues of $1,017,111 for the year ended August 31, 1933, as compared with $1,087,478 for the preceding 12 months. Operating expenses, maintenance and taxes, other than Federal income tax, totaled $534,328, as against $589,426. Gross corporate income amounted to $482,783, which compares with $488,052 for the year ended August 31, 1932.

New York, Sept. 29.—In the thirty-seventh quarterly report to shareholders, trustees of the Massachusetts Investors Trust state that the September 30 quarterly dividend, at the rate of 19 cents a share, is paid to 17,505 shareholders, the largest number in the trust's history, who hold 1,126,780 shares. This distribution calls for the disbursement of $212,801. The trustees state that the net income of the trust from interest and dividends for the quarter ending September 30 was in excess of the amount of this distribution.

Stocks—Prices drooped in the afternoon, following an early rally, and the list closed five-tenths of a point lower. Oils metals and alcohols led the advance. Sales totalled 1,643,060 shares.

Bonds—The market displayed some resistance to liquidation and the list colsed one-tenth of a point higher. Rails were popular. Foreign issues gained. Sales increased to $9,887,000.

Curb—Prices worked a little higher, but a dribble of late selling reduced advances. Mining shares were firm. Specialties closed with gains. Sales increased to 245,000 shares.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Little municipal financing is scheduled for next week. The Daily Bond Buyer estimates the amount at $7,850,966, as compared with the weekly average for this year of $13,396,000. The largest item is a $3,760,000 offering of Cuyahoga County, Ohio, 6 per cent refunding bonds, set for Tuesday.

Net income of Northern States Power Co. (Delaware) and subsidiaries for the year ended August 31 was $6,446,024, against $8,068,514 the year before.

Colorado & Southern Railroad had August net operating income of $129,113, compared with $49,761 a year ago.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank today reported shipments of $6,666,700 in gold to France and $274,800 to England, all taken from stocks earmarked for foreign account. A total of 24,331 ounces of fine gold recovered from natural deposits also was reported as an export.

Argentina Oil Output Gains 16 Per Cent

Petroleum output in Argentina in the first half of 1933 was 16 per cent above the totals for the corresponding periods of 1932 and 1931, according to a report from Vice Consul W. C. Trimble, Buenos Aires, made public by the Commerce Department.

Official Argentina statistics just issued show that total petroleum production in the first six months of the current year amounted to 6,857,867 barrels. Of this total, 3,049,499 barrels represented the output of wells operated by the Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales, the petroleum company operated under the direction of the ministry of agriculture.

The Comodoro Rivadavia oil fields supplied 87 per cent of the entire output of the Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales. Of the total production in that region of 5,072,608 barrels, 52 per cent was obtained from the wells of that concern.

In the Province of Salta, where the Standard Oil Co. of Argentina carries on extensive operations, petroleum production increased by 350 per cent in 1933 over the 1931 figures. Of this gain, 90 per cent was produced by private companies.

Although the Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales total production in the Plaza Huincul fields decreased from 38,276 barrels in 1931 to 228,138 barrels in 1933, the production of private companies in that region shows a gain of 24 per cent during the same period. The entire amount of petroleum obtained from this zone remained relatively constant during these two periods—768,940 barrels in 1931 and 771,758 barrels in 1933.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London.—A cheerful trend with numerous good features was evident on the stock exchange today. Rubber shares were better on hopes regarding the international restriction agreement, while home and Argentine rails also advanced. Transatlantic issues firmed owing to favorable Wall street advices, while German bonds were strong and oil shares were active. The market closed firm.

Paris.—More encouraging news from Wall street, London and Brussels caused prices to firm on the bourse. Metal shares advanced, as did international issues, especially the Young plan issues. The closing was steady.

Berlin.—Under the influence of tomorrow's closing of the exchange in connection with the reorganization of admissions of brokers, business on the bourse was quiet, with little trading being done. The market closed cheerful. Of the 469 brokers who are now members of the exchange, 155 are expected to be excluded.

Bonds Resist Liquidation in Final Trading

One-Tenth Gain Recorded as Sales Mount to $9,887,000.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The bond market displayed some resistance to liquidation today and the majority of listed corporation issues finished a trifle above their final levels of yesterday.

Trading activity expanded to sales of $9,887,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced one-tenth of a point.

There was little important news which might have affected loans. Traders and investors seemd to feel, however, that an administrative announcement might be expected soon regarding credit expansion which would not be detrimental to fixed-income securities.

Rails Lead in Popularity.

The rails probably did better than other bond groups. Alleghany Corporation 5s spurted 3¾ points on words that the company had arranged to meet October 1 interest payments.

Canadian Pacific loans gained 1⅝ to 3⅛ points and advances of 1 to around 2 were recorded by issues of Cincinnati Union Terminal, Delaware & Hudson, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, and Southern.

The better utilities and industrials, up fractionally to around a point or more, included loans of American Chain, American & Foreign Power, American Smelting, Chile Copper, Consolidated Gas, International Mercantile Marine, McCrory Stores, North American, Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York, Utilities Power & Light and Warner Bros.

Gold Standard Rallies.

A rally in obligations of some of the gold standard countries was attributed partly to a decline in international dollar rates. French Government 7s and 7½s advanced 3½ and 5½ points, respectively.

French municipal issues were up around 1 to 6 points and some of the Dutch East Indies and Swiss loans gained a point or more. Bonds of Argentina, Norway and Germany firmed.

United States Government securities, especially the Treasurys, were easier.

Steel and Iron Failures Drop 28.6 Per Cent

New York, Sept. 29.—The decrease in failures for the eight months of the current year among iron and steel makers has been pronounced, according to data compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., the number dropping 28.6 per cent and the total of involved liabilities 47.7 per cent below the record for the period of 1932. Among the dealers in iron and steel, however, the showing was not so favorable for the number of failures, which increased 49.6 per cent during that period, but the defaulted indebtedness, on the other hand, was lowered by 39.2 per cent from the corresponding total for the eight months of 1932.

The complete insolvency record of the iron and steel trade since 1927, including the eight months of the current year, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., shows:

Phone Income In August Cut To $732,188

Revenues Drop Below Same Period in 1932; Emmerich Honored.

August operating revenues for Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. were $732,188, or $3,208 under those of the month last year. This was shown yesterday when the company filed its statement for last month with the Public Utilities Commission.

Total revenues were also below the corresponding month of last year by $4,721. Expenses and interest for August this year were $576,437, leaving a balance of $157,189.

For the first eight months of 1933, total revenues amounted to $6,037,170, a decline of $304,500 from the corresponding period of the previous year. Expenses and interest for the first eight months of this year were $4,893,419, leaving a balance of $1,143,751, which was $21,852 less than the balance reported for the period of 1932.

Plant Cost Service.

The cost of telephone plant in service at the end of August was $34,528,644. According to John A. Romon, general manager of the telephone company, the net return for the first eight months, on an annual basis, was 5.87 per cent.

There was a reduction during August of 152 telephones in the District of Columbia. On August 31, the number of telephones in service was 172,675, which is 5,175 less than the number in service on the same date a year ago.

During August, 17,061,000 telephone calls were made, approximately 65,000 more than were made in the same month last year.

Mr. Emmerich was presented with many floral and other gifts to commemorate the occasion. He is widely known in business circles, and is a member of the boards of directors of American Fire Insurance Co., Second National Bank and Home Plate Glass Co., of Washington, D. C. He is active in other enterprises.

He has spent all of his life here, having been born on Capitol Hill. Mr. Emmerich is enjoying perfect health and admitted the honor bestowed on him made one of the happiest days of his life for him.

Patent Leather Sales Boosted In Argentina

Although imports of most types of leather into Argentina during the current year have declined compared with 1932, larger receipts of foreign patent leathers were recorded, according to J. G. Schnitzer, of the Commerce Department's leather, rubber and shoe division.

There is some domestic production of patent leathers in Argentina, but this is largely of the medium and cheaper qualities, while imports generally consist of the medium and better grades.

Patent leathers are quite popular in Argentina, with the largest share of the consumption confined to urban centers. This leather is used in the manufacture of both men's and women's footwear.

Most of the purchases in 1932 were made from European countries, but during the current year larger sales were made in this area by the United States. The lower rate of the dollar on the exchange markets has been of material assistance in increasing the sales of the American product.

United States statistics show that the sales of patent leather to Argentina during the first eight months of the current year increased to 28,580 square feet, valued at $15,905, from 9,200 square feet, valued at $5,081, in the corresponding period of 1932.

American sales have consisted very largely of the better types of patent goat and kid leathers, with some amounts of good quality sides also included. There were no shipments of patent horse and colt from this country to Argentina during either of the two periods mentioned above.

Czech Trade Still Continues In Low Trend

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 29 (AP).—Latest statistics show that the economic decline in Czechoslovakia continues.

Production of pig iron during the month of July amounted to 43,000 tons, as compared to 46,000 tons in June. Steel production from 70,000 tons to 53,000 during the same period. Sales figures of these products during July amounted only to 6,000 tons for pig iron and 31,000 tons for rolled steel.

Czech railroads also are suffering from the unfavorable economic situation. Financial returns for the first six months of the current year show total receipts of 1,184,000,000 Czecho crowns, which is 14 per cent less than the receipts for the corresponding period of last year. Returns from freight service dropped from 968,000,000 last year to 826,000,000 and returns from passenger traffic only amounted to 349,000,000, as compared to 390,000,000 for the first semester of 1932.

The best illustration of the economic and financial situation, however, is derived from tax returns which declined to such extent that the net returns for the first six months of 1933 are reduced by approximately 50 per cent, compared to last year. Hope, however, prevails that the returns for the second half of 1933 will be more favorable.

Advance in Commodity Prices Following Gold, Bankers Say

New York, Sept. 29.—In a discussion of "Commodity Prices and Gold" in their current weekly observations, Hornblower & Weeks state that it is very clear over the past five months' period that the improvement in the price of farm commodities has been in approximately the same ratio as the improvement in the price of gold in the world market.

If the improvement in our agricultural prices is so closely correlated with the improvement in the price of gold, they state, it is clear that the present gold price is no more artificial than the farm commodity prices.

"It is also indicated," they said, "that any break in the price of gold would probably be accomplished by a break in commodity prices. The impetus which such a break in prices would give to the demand for inflation is so real, that it doubtless explains the strength in the mining shares recently.

"Because the Government's action can not safely be anticipated, predictions are hazardous. However, if the general trend of farm commodity prices should continue to stay in the same relation to gold, the inference is that a 50 per cent reduction in the gold content of the dollar, which would carry the price of gold to about $41.34, would, over a period of months, be followed by a similar doubling of commodity prices, as compared to the middle of last April."

Socony-Vacuum Plans To Restore Cut in Pay

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Socony-Vacuum Corporation, effective October 1, will restore the 10 per cent reduction in the pay of salaried workers which took effect around June 1 last, it was learned today.

Beyond admitting the company's purpose to raise the salaries to their former levels officials would not comment.

Allegheny Corporation Will Pay Bond Interest

New York, Sept. 29.—Interest due October 1 on Allegheny Corporation 5 per cent bonds due in 1950 will be paid, the company announced today, according to information received by the Associated Press.

Burlington Road Plans Track Relaying Project

Chicago, Sept. 29.—A $2,000,000 track relaying program for the rest of 1933 and 1934 was announced today by President Ralph Budd of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, according to the Associated Press.

The road will immediately purchase 3,000 tons of rail fastenings to be used in laying 17,000 tons of rail the company has had since early in 1931, and the purchase next year of 25,000 tons of new rail sections and 7,000 tons of fastenings.

Jewel Tea Sales Drop to $780,291

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—Sales by 1,355 stores of the Jewel Tea Co., Inc., for the four-week period ended September 9 amounted to $780,291.83 as compared to a total of $792,209.88 by 1,334 stores for the corresponding period in 1932, the company announced today.

During the first 36 weeks of the current year the company said sales of an average of 1,347 routes were $6,824,425.78 against last year's total of $7,612,325.83 for 1,335 routes for a similar period.

The 84 stores of the Jewel Food Stores, Inc., a subsidiary of the Tea company, reported sales for the four weeks ended September 9, of $285,527.70. For the 36 weeks ended the same date an average of 86 stores did a total business of $2,667,620.70.

New York Bank Stocks Increase $91,145,000

New York, Sept. 29.—The feature of the New York City bank-stock market, according to records compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster, was the sharp rally which developed in the closing days of the week. From the low point touched on Thursday, the aggregate market value of the 16 leading issues which make up the average registered a gain of $91,145,000, or 7.5 per cent, by the close of the week.

The market value, however, was below that of the previous week. The aggregate market value as of the close of the week was $1,312,894,000, compared with a low of $1,221,749,000 on Thursday, and with $1,385,621,000 at the close of the previous week.

Employment Gains Now at Faster Pace

New York, Sept. 29.—Unemployment showed a further reduction in August for the fifth consecutive month, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute's latest figures on the situation.

"The decrease," says the institute, "was much greater than in July. From July to August, the number of persons unemployed was reduced by 892,000, as compared with a decrease of 505,000 from June to July. In August there were 3,215,000 fewer persons unemployed than in March, when unemployment was at the peak. The number of persons unemployed in August, however, was still large, totaling 13,954,000."

Due to the increase in population, the institute points out, the gain in employment was greater than the reduction in unemployment.

Wheat Values Sink Slightly After Rallies

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—Nothwithstanding that wheat prices ruled higher most of the time today, speculative demand lagged at the last, and the market turned downhill.

Big export buying of Canadian wheat, estimated to total 2,500,000 bushels, was a temporary stimulus, but uncertainty over the Washington administration's fiscal plans tended to make traders here show extreme caution as the day drew to an end.

Earlier, the wheat market was helped upward by reports that Washington officials were planning large loans to wheat farmers, a measure that would correspond with loans being made on cotton.

Wheat Closes Easier.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝ lower; corn, unchanged to ⅜ advance; oats, ¼ off to ⅛ up, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents decline.

A climb of nearly 2 cents a bushel was witnessed in wheat, helped by confirmation of intended Government purchases of $75,000,000 worth of domestic foodstuffs for relief purposes. Some notice was also taken of talk that the crop scare period in Argentina was fast approaching, and that good rains were imperatively needed in Australia.

A reduction of 10,000,000 bushels in official estimates of the wheat crop in Spain tended further to give bulls an advantage.

Drop in Speculation.

Curtailment of speculative interest in all grains became pronounced, however, and wheat finished at the day's low point, as traders awaited a clearing-up of the monetary outlook. A disturbing influence was reiterated assertions that President Roosevelt might shortly announce his financial program. Another unsettling factor was notice that wheat prices at Winnipeg have declined almost 10 cents since pegged limits in Canada were removed, and that meanwhile the net change in Chicago has been barely 3 cents.

Construction Contracts Mount to High Mark

New York, Sept. 29.—Stimulated by public works funds, heavy engineering construction contracts awarded in the week ended September 25 totaled $41,206,000, the second highest weekly total this year, says Engineering News-Record. The weekly average for September is $26,669,000, the best for any month since July, 1932, according to the Associated Press.

Year-end stocks of sugar available for the United States market will amount to 580,000 long tons, a decrease of 471,000 tons from December 31 last, reports B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar broker. This figure includes 350,000 tons segregated by decree of the Machado government of Cuba. No allowance has been made for hurricane damage, but "this is believed to have been small," in the firm's opinion.

Court Holds Motorists Can Sue Each Other

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Both parties to an automobile wreck may enter suits against each other, according to a ruling of the West Virginia Supreme Court.

The decision directed Rudd T. Newell, Cabell County magistrate, to reinstate action brought by Baxter Barber against Emmett Hutchinson. It was dismissed because Hutchinson previously had entered suit.

Cotton Turns Easier Under Liquidation

December Closes at 9.87 as General Market Drops 1 to 9 Points.

New York, Sept 29 (AP).—After showing firmness in the early trading today, cotton turned easier under Southern selling and liquidation. December contracts broke from 10.08 to 9.87 in the late trading, or 21 points from the high point of the morning, and closed at the lowest. The general market ended barely steady at net declines of 1 to 9 points.

Initial prices were up 5 to 10 points in response to higher Liverpool cables and the easier tone of dollar exchange.

Moderate Southern selling and realizing were readily absorbed and prices worked up several additional points during the early trading on commission house demand and further trading buying.

Growers Holding Crop.

There were reports that farmers were showing more disposition to hold cotton in the Southwest, but in the face of them increased hedging was reported on the advance and the market eased off during the afternoon under continued selling by the South and liquidation or reselling by early buyers who appeared to be influenced by the reactions in the Wheat and stock markets.

Active months sold off about 15 to 23 points from the high prices of the morning, and closing quotations were at the lowest of the day.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—Declining business today caused the stock exchange administration to reduce the number of jobbers, according to information received by the Associated Press.

The administration pointed out, however, that most of the excluded brokers crept into business during the inflation boom, and, secondly, their knowledge of the trade and their financial backing was none too good.

Nats Always Ahead of Yanks as Giant Players Again Scout Game

Seven-Inning Shift for Whitehill

Southpaw Has One Bad Frame, but Nats Win Out, 8 to 5.

Ruffing Is Pounded for 10 Hits, Including a Homer by Manush.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Earl Whitehill, the Nats' handsome left-hander, can be checked off the list of possible starters in the first game of the world's series, for Joe Cronin let him work seven complete innings against the Yankees today and in six of them he was handsome, indeed.

In fact, if handsome is as handsome does, the Earl of Whitehill was practically an Adonis, for if we are allowed to forget the fifth inning momentarily, he held the hard-hitting Yanks to four scattered hits and even remembering the fifth he gave them only eight and won, 8 to 5.

It was just a tune-up for the Nats and they were not out of tune, except once. In the fifth, three passes and four hits accounted for a quartet of runs. That wasn't even enough to tie the score, as the Nats had hammered in five off Red Ruffing in the third and didn't stop there.

Manush Hits Homer.

A single by Schulte and a double by Kuhel gave them one more in the sixth and a home run by Manush after Goslin had doubled in the seventh added another pair.

Soon after this, Cronin sent his second-stringers out to hold the Yanks, and they did it without any apparent effort. Russell and Berg did the battery work; Harris, Boken and Travis took over the infield duties; Rice relieved Manush, and everybody but Myer, Goslin and Schulte took the subway down town, where the white lights shine.

The Nats made 10 hits off Ruffing, nine of them in the last six innings. Three of them were bunched in the fourth frame, together with a pair of passes and an error, which gave the Nats a five-run lead. They were never overtaken.

The Giants scouted the Nats for the second day in succession, but found very little cheer except in the fifth inning, when the Yankees scored four runs.

Eddie Farrell hit for three bases, with the bags loaded, in that inning, but only one man scored, while Farrell ran from home to first, first to second and back to first again.

Lou Gehrig joined the married men this morning and looked as though he were playing on their team. He couldn't hit the ball out of the infield.

There never was any doubt about where Manush's homer was headed. Babe Ruth didn't even turn his head to watch it land among the cattered customers in the right field circus seats.

Ruth and Goose Goslin have a bet on their batting averages this year and they both started today's game with a mark of .299. The Goose's double sent him into a fractional lead in the seventh, but the Babe caught up again with a triple in the last half of the same session. It was only the third time that the Babe has run out a triple this year.

(Herewith is another of a series of articles comparing the rival positions in the coming 1933 world series.)

ROAMING the wide open spaces in center field at the Polo rounds and Griffith Stadium in the world series will be a pair of outfielders both skilled on the defense, one weak at the bat, and therein lies a substantial advantage for the Nats over the Giants.

The Giants rescued George Davis from the forlorn Phillies last winter, installed him in center field, received brilliant efforts on the defense and little aid on the offense. Davis' batting average of .261 is far below outfielders' par in the big leagues, and only his sure-handedness in the outfield has kept him in the Giants' line-up.

Schulte Better Hitter.

Patrolling the same sector for the Nats will be the redoubtable Fred Schulte equally as accomplished on the defense, and far superior to his Giant rival with the bat. Schulte but recently dropped out of the charmed .300 circle but is now batting a respectable .298.

The presence of the weak hitting Davis has been responsible for Terry's reversible outfield policy, for when the Giants need hitting strength, Terry evacuates Davis from center, moves Mel Ott into that position and installs the cumbersome but dangerous Lefty O'Doul in Ott's place in center.

From the start of the season, Schulte has been the regular center fielder of the Nats, winning the job with a sensational early-season hitting spree that kept him within striking distance of the leaders for three months.

Fans Forgetting West.

Washington fans moaned when the Nats last winter traded Sam West to the Browns in a deal that brought Schulte to Griffith Stadium. And then Schulte proceeded to make Capital fans forget West with his sensational fielding and ground covering.

Particularly adept is Schulte at coming in for low liners and Texas leaguers and so fast does he charge toward second base that he is recognized as a menace to all infielders going back for a possible catch.

Fonseca Hired to Boss White Sox Next Year

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—The White Sox and the Cubs will continue under the same management next season as in 1933. Lew Fonseca will pilot the White Sox and Charlie Grimm, the Cubs, each with a year's contract.

The first manager to stay three seasons since 1923, Fonseca conferred with Lou Comiskey, owner, today, learned the boss didn't blame him for the team's somewhat unsatisfactory showing, and came out with a contract.

Series Fans Turn Eyes To Seats

Giants Watch Senators in Hope of Finding Weak Spots.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (A.P.).—The razzle dazzle of the world series worked around to the box office today as the faithful rested from their efforts to keep a minute-to-minute check on Senators and Giants and concentrated on getting tickets for the conflict, opening in the Polo Grounds Tuesday.

Already experts agree that if the entire 49,000 seats at the Polo Grounds are not sold out, the figures will be closer to full-house proportions than for any major sports attraction here in more than a year.

While the Senators spent the afternoon walloping the Yankees, and the Giants watching them, the office forces concentrated on filling mail-order applications.

Arrangement of Seats.

There are 4,000 box seats, 20,000 in the reserved sections of the grand stands, 20,000 more in unreserved sections and 5,000 in the center field bleachers.

The largest crowd in world series history at the Polo Grounds was the 49,243 that jammed the park for the fourth game of the 1924 series with the Senators. The downward swerve in conditions and the strain of the present system of selling reserved seats only in blocks of three for the first, second and sixth games here, seem to preclude a sell-out.

With his pitchers clustered close around him, Bill Terry and the rest of the Giants sought to pick up a few last-minute pointers on the strength and weakness of the Senators, and saw considerable of both. The Yanks combed Earl Whitehill, while the Senators in turn put on another hitting show.

In two days of watching Terry has seen the Nationals score 17 runs against the Yankees, enough runs in fact to last the Giants through a couple of crucial series.

One-Game Series Seats Go on Sale At Park Today

Seats for single world series games here may be purchased at Griffith Stadium, beginning this morning, Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, announced last night. Fans may continue to buy sets of three, if they so desire, but an exception to the rule requiring the purchase of a full set has been made by Baseball Commissioner Landis because of many requests received by him.

All tickets not already reserved will go on sale this morning and continue on sale at the stadium tomorrow until they are disposed of.

Better Games On Grids Today

V. P. I.-Tennessee Outstanding Attraction on National Card.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP).—With strong men of Eastern gridirons still resting in their tents or skirmishing with minor opponents, the football campaign takes on a major appearance tomorrow in other sections with several conference and intersectional games of wide interest down for decision.

V. P. I.-Tennessee Standout.

In a section boasting such interesting engagements as Rice-Louisiana State, North Carolina State-Georgia, Clemson-Georgia Tech, V. M. I.-Duke and Tulane-Texas A. M., the meeting of V. P. I. and the Volunteers attracts national attention.

Iowa and Northwestern inaugurate the Western Conference "Big Ten" season at Soldier Field, Chicago, while Oklahoma meets the challenge of Vanderbilt at Norman, another leading attraction in the Middle West.

Rudder Lost, Speedboat Hits Ship

El Legarto Takes First Heat; Delphine VII Finishes Second.

SPLIT-SECOND thinking Driver Bill Horn averted tragedy as the Delphine IV crashed into an anchored Army transport during the first heat of the President's Cup Race yesterday, which was won by George Reis' El Legarto.

Passing the official boat, going into the third lap, the Delphine IV was in second position to the El Legarto. Coming down slightly sidewise from one of the usual leaps, the Delphine's rudder and stern were torn off. The craft raced wildly, completely out of control, and headed for the army transport, the General Rucker, at a 55-mile-an-hour clip.

The El Legarto, this year's Gold Cup winner, took and maintained an early lead in the 15-mile heat. The winner's time was 16 minutes 12 seconds—an average speed of 55.555 miles per hour. The fastest lap turned in was the El Legarto's second of 57.692 miles per hour. The Delphine IV raced the second lap at an average speed of 56.250 miles per hour.

The Delphine VII finished second. John Shibe's Ethyl-Ruth III functioned badly at the start, but her motors began working smoothly after a lap or two and she finished an easy third.

The Emancipator II, driven and owned by S. M. Auerbach, leaped into an early lead in the first heat of the 125-inch hydroplane class race and repeated the performance in the final heat. In both heats the

Black Queen, Paying $11.80, Coasts to Victory in Feature at Havre de Grace

Muddy Track Just Suits Coe Filly

Cutie Face Is Second, Three Lengths Back; Redress Third.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 29.—Ridden by unfashionable Jockey H. Knapp, Black Queen romped to an easy victory in The Montpelier, the day's feature race here. Black Queen's relations on both sides were mud-running fools. Pappa Bompey, Mama Black Maria and Grandpa Black Toney all perked up their ears at the first sign of rain.

Cutie Face was first to show in front as Starter Milton sent the field away for the mile and 70 yards struggle. Speedboat and Cathop were then prominent in the running with Black Queen fourth.

Forges Ahead at Turn.

It was not until the far turn that Black Queen began the move that was to take the purse. She swept around on the outside and supplanted Cutie Face at the eighth pole. Knapp had only to keep riding and the filly drew away.

Red Badge graduated from the maiden ranks in the opener, winning from Sun Monk and Willet. Red Badge was in the thick of the battle at the start, drew out to a length lead and had to be ridden out to take care of Sun Monk, with Meade up. Gilbert rode the winner, which paid $8.40.

Bally Bay and Salisbury ran the two-horse race that the public expected but they finished in the opposite order. The favored Bally Bay was forced to accept defeat oy a four-length margin. Because there had to be a third horse, Small Change was it. Tipton had the winning mount. The mutuel was $6.80.

There was an awakening in the fourth race. Hacky H., an old Maryland favorite, moved up on the turn for the stretch to take the lead and then outstay Helen's Alibi and Clear Knight. Charlie K., the odds-on favorite, threw up the sponge after setting the pace for the most part of a mile. Haines' winning mount paid a $21.80 mutuel.

FIRST RACE AT 2:15 P. M.

Dear Al: Havre de Grace Race Track.

Jockey Duke Bellizzi was suspended yesterday for rough riding in the third race. He caused a jam at the clubhouse turn which resulted in half of the field being forced to the outside fence. His case has been referred to the racing commission. He may not be in action for the first few days at Laurel. However, that had nothing to do with the bad day for Bennings horses. But the muddy track is a fair alibi. Mike's ladder scheme to make me change my luck proved a dud. I guess we don't live right. But Mike knows his Bennings. He came in last night and asked, "Well, who you picking to beat Equipoise?" I told him nobody. And he says, "Bill, you're slipping." At that, I don't like to be reminded of it. BILL.

First Race—Jimmy D couldn't handle Fleet Flag here earlier in the meeting, but did a lot of running. The soft track will help. Can't see anything taking him. Kindacorn has been knocking at the door consistently. Lone Hand for the show.

Second Race—Fortification found Pova too tough a nut to crack in that last outing. Today there's no Pova buried in this field, at least from all appearances. Should take it all. Wise Ways is the sleeper, Pharatime to show.

Third Race—Black Target is a pretty fair youngster. Out for a conditioner the other day. Watch him turn on the gas today. Vested Power was well regarded at Rockingham. General Lejeune for the show end.

Fourth Race—Fairbypair had to chase Sation home in his first test at this track. Takes off a gob of weight in this. Character is the one to beat. Fingal, with light impost, might be third on the kind of track.

Fifth Race—Equipoise will find the distance more to his liking here and should turn the tables on Dark Secret. However, there's all kinds of speed in this race. All sharp horses. Indian Runner is my pick for the show.

Sixth Race—Dodgson returned to the races with a winning effort and gets the Bennings call over the speedy Stone Martin. Tuffy G. is the one I fear.

Seventh Race—Soeur Blanche appears to have the edge on anything this field offers. Close up in three tests. En Passant, if sent back, would be dangerous. This filly was caught in a jam yesterday and was a bang-up second, despite the interference. Did She to show.

SUN MONK, away in the first flight and prominent, weakened after making a bold effort when straightened for the final drive. WILLET was hard ridden the entire trip and was best of the others. MISS GLACE showed a good effort after a slow beginning. DOESKIN was well placed and had no excuses. CANTERSENE tired. She had nice speed in the early stages. ADAMITE was held safe. SWINLANE labored in the going.

SALISBURY, restrained while in close attendance of BALLY BAY, went to the front when ready and, kept out in the former footing, came out smoothly nearing the finish. BALLY BAY, hurried to the front, saved ground, but was unable to stay when challenged. SMALL CHANGE was hard urged all the way and was best of the others. ROLLICK finished stoutly on the inside during the final drive. ASKE had no excuses. The others were never factors.

ELECTRIC GAFF, improving his position on the outside after reaching the back stretch, swung wide into the home stretch for the better footing, wore LAST GIFT down midway of the stretch drive and outstayed EN PASSANT. Latter, slow to get into her best stride, worked her way up gradually and came to the outside of the winner late in the final drive. LAST GIFT, wore RHODIUS down when ready, was kept on the inside when in command and faltered fast when kept in the deeper footing. CONSIDERATE tired badly when rushed hard. RHODIUS weakened after seven furlongs. IN INDIA was weakly handled. GADAROUND was never a factor. EN PASSANT, IN INDIA and CONSIDERATE took a very wide course at the first turn.

HACKY H, restrained slightly for the first six furlongs, moved up stoutly to displace CHARLIE K when nearing the home stretch, took a brief lead and, holding on stoutly, just lasted long enough. HELEN'S ALIBI, intermittently punished from the beginning, improved his position on the outside and came with good courage at the end. CLEAR KNIGHT, away with good course at the start, was taken up when CHARLIE K when nearing the home stretch, took a brief lead and, holding on stoutly, just lasted long enough. HELEN'S ALIBI, intermittently punished from the beginning, improved his position on the outside and came with good courage at the end. BLACK QUEEN, going in greatly improved fashion, raced close to the leaders until midway of the back stretch, wore CUTIE FACE down when ready and held sway through the stretch run. CUTIE FACE, dropped back slightly when leaving the back stretch, was hard hustled to regain her lead midway of the turn, but was unable to meet the winner's rush. REDRESS, far out of contention until reaching the final turn, slipped up on the inside of MOMO, bumped the latter repeatedly entering the home stretch and held on stoutly. MOMO was knocked off her stride when moving up strongly at the stretch turn. CATHOP was done after six furlongs. SPEEDBOAT sprawled badly when put to a drive.

UNCLE DONALD, allowed to settle in his best stride after being outrun to the first turn, went to the leaders between his field and, taking command held RESERVIST safe. Latter, on the outside the entire trip, finished gamely. SURETY came around the entire field and closed full of run. BELOW COST raced in spots. HERNANDO was done after six furlongs. KATE had no excuses. PARITY showed a dull effort.

GEORGE JESSEL, moving up strongly in the last half mile, came around his field and, closing fast under punishment, was up in the final strides. PELHAM, steadied until challenged, came again during the stretch drive. CAPTAIN DANGER, under steady restraint early, took command at the final turn, but hung approaching the finish. COME ON raced evenly. EPIDAWN tired.

Green Players Peril Chances Of Terps

St. John's Hard-Boiled Players Hold Edge in Clash Today.

MANNED by a crew of young and tender football players, the good ship Maryland will be launched upon the treacherous waters of the 1933 grid season this afternoon at the College Park base. Loaded to the hull with T. N. T. and admittedly lurking about the premises with evil intent, St. John's, of Annapolis, will indulge in target practice, using the Old Liner's newest craft for its mark. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Six sophomores have been assigned starting roles. The line-up also includes five District youths. The line is predominantly sophomore, with only two upper classmen in it. An eleventh-hour injury kept another soph on the bench.

St. John's boasts a veteran and talented team, led by Joe Sutton, its 195-pound full back. Six juniors, four seniors and a sophomore comprise the starting line-up. Maryland will have a slim edge in weight, but St. John's store of experience more than makes up for this.

Nelson Directs Terrapins.

Dick Nelson, a Washington lad, will direct the Terrapins. Nelson also will do the kicking and passing for his team. Bucky Buscher, a half back; George Sachs, full back; Johnny Simpson, guard, and Tom Webb, center, complete the local contingent.

Cup Presentation Program Mapped

Band Concert to Precede Ball Park Ceremonies.

The schedule of ceremonies honoring Washington's baseball team tomorow afternoon, when the last regular game of the season will be played, was announced yesterday by Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the citizens committee named by the District Commissioners.

A Marine Band concert will open the program in Griffith Stadium at 1:45 o'clock, and an hour later Mr. Hazen will present a 20-inch silver cup to the team in behalf of Washington citizenry. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, will present a miniature gold baseball to each Washington player with his name engraved on it. The cup will bear the names of all members of the club.

Richmond B. Keech, chairman of the finance subcommittee of the citizens committee, said yesterday that donations still are sought to finance other celebrations in honor of the American League champions.

Grid League Meets.

A meeting of the 150-pound division of the National Capital Football League will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Atlas Sport Shop. All franchises will be awarded and fees must be deposited at the confab.

Lou Gehrig Weds Secretly in Home

Clerk Puts Off Filing License Until Ceremony.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP). Henry ("Lou") Gehrig, hard-hitting Yankee first baseman, was married today to Eleanora Grace Twitchell, 27, Chicago.

The ceremony was performed by Mayor Walter G. C. Otto, of New Rochelle, at the home of Gehrig's mother. The license was issued by City Clerk Eugene M. Heiney, who withheld filing it until after the ceremony became known.

Mayor Otto said he was pledged to secrecy. He understood it was because Gehrig wanted to make the announcement at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon.

Van Atta Leads For Pitching Title

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—Russell Van Atta, New York Yankee, took the lead in the race for the American League pitching championship today when a victory was removed from "Lefty" Grove's string and officially given to his teammate, Emmett McKeithan, by President Will Harridge.

The victory was the one Grove was credited with winning over the Senators September 24. McKeithan started the game for Philadelphia, pitched four innings, and was replaced by Grove with the Athletics ahead, 8 to 3. Grove finished the game, won by Philadelphia, 11 to 4.

The official scorer argued no starting pitcher should be credited with a victory unless he had worked five or more innings.

The loss of the game cut Grove's season record to 23 victories and eight defeats for a .742 average. Van Atta's official record was revised to 12 and 4, an average of .750. Earl Whitehill, of the Senators, had a chance to win the title. He has won 22 and lost 8.

Davis-Genaro to Head Alexandria Fight Card

The bait of an attractive main event and reduced prices will be dangled by Alexandria Elks Monday. Roddy Davis and Mickey Genaro will headline the bouts in an eight-rounder.

A six-round semifinal between Glenn Morgan and Mike Scipio and three fours will round out the bill.

Temple Eleven Routs South Carolina, 26-6

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Glenn S. "Pop" Warner made an auspicious debut tonight as coach of Temple University when his Owls defeated South Carolina, 26 to 6, at Temple Stadium.

Marions to Scrimmage.

The Marion A. C. gridders will scrimmage tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock on the Fairlawn field. All players are requested to report in full uniform. "Bottle" Cox is coaching the team.

G. W. Will Fire Big Guns at Catawba

Odds on Choice to Win by Easy Margin; Line in First Test.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S heavy artillery will be wheeled out on the turf at Central High School Stadium at 2:30 p. m. and exploded flugh in the face of a powerful Catawba eleven.

In good physical condition, mentally alert, and on edge for this, its first game of the 1933 season, George Washington is an odds-on choice to win by a comfortable margin. The Colonial coaches are a bit skeptical about the size of the final score, but they expect their charges to keep the fatback at home.

A veteran and well-balanced eleven will be presented by the downtown school. Seven lettermen, aided and abetted by a quartet of promising sophomores, will start. The back field of Baker, quarter back; Capt. Carlin and Finis Parrish, halves, and Bombs, fullback, is one of the best to ever sport the multicolors of the school.

A line boasting two 200-pound tackles, and averaging 192 pounds, is expected to stop the Catawba ball carriers. But Catawba plays an unorthodox game, and if it discovers the futility of hitting the line it undoubtedly will dig down deep into its bag of tricks.

One of the finest passing combinations in the South Atlantic sector, Andy Appanaitis to "Little Caesar" Cesareo, gives the visiting team a real scoring punch. Cesareo, the eel-like lad, who is on the receiving end, gave G. W.'s secondary a merry chase last year with his flashy broken field running.

Hoyas' Chances Held No Better Than Even

JACK HAGERTY enters upon his first full season as head football coach of the Georgetown University team this afternoon, and from the caliber of opposition his charges will be called upon to face it would seem that the gods have conspired to make it a dismal debut. Mount St. Mary's will help the Hoyas open their season on the Western High School field. Hostilities will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Fresh from their mountain fastness, big, strong and fast, Mount St. Mary's is a serious obstacle in Georgetown's path to grid success. Ten of the visitors started the game last year, six being native Washingtonians. A host of seasoned reserves stand ready to step into the breach should the emergency arise.

Teams Rated Even.

Never since the series first began has Mount St. Mary's walked off the field the victor. With Georgetown's forces at their lowest ebb in years, however, the Blue and White realizes it is an even choice to chalk up its first victory.

Hagerty will send a heavy line into the trenches, but the back field will be very light. Capt. Fred Callahan, a good prospect, will be at center, the key position. Dick Murphy and Mike Chappa will start at end, and Bill Downer, and either Lloyd Williamson or George Becker will get the first call at tackles. Mynarski and Cohen at guards complete the forward wall.

Georgetown has shown nothing to boast about in practice. Rather the need of experience and competition has been very apparent.

Probable Lineups.

Pegler Flays Series Stars For "Ghost Written" Earnings

By Westbrook Pegler.

New York, Sept. 29.—The citizens are confronted once more with the annual outbreak of mock literature produced in the names of the world series athletes.

As the citizens should know by now, 99 per cent of this journalism is phoney, in the perpetration of which the "authors" play no part beyond accepting bribes for use of their names.

The rest of it, though genuine, is invariably so terrible that the offense of the athlete or coach who insists on rolling his own is even a little bit worse than that of the cheerful liar who permits himself to be named as the author of pieces which he may never even take the trouble to read.

The ghosted essays are produced by journeymen, which means that they will be at least readable, though never literary. If the "ghost" happens to be a newspaper writer, he is likely to remember—or be reminded by the copy desk—that anyone who is dumb enough to read such matter at all must be too dumb to understand intelligent language.

Insult to Intelligence.

It has been suggested that these world series and football season writings, credited to parties concerned in the games, are an insult to the intelligence of the reader.

That is a mistake, however, for nobody has yet discovered a way to insult the intelligence of the newspaper reader who is dumb enough to pore over the essays printed under such famous names and believe in them.

The football coaches engaged in this sort of fraud are somewhat more contemptible than the world series types.

It is by no means uncommon for a football coach to preach fair play, honesty, honor and the square deal to his charges, while some mischievous hack in a newspaper or syndicate plant is grinding out journalism under his name, for which he will collect pay that otherwise might have gone to a reporter in need of a job.

The practice has always been considered pretty disreputable, even where the party concerned actually performed the writing in his own round, school-boy hand. It was obvious in all such cases that he wasn't selling writing or ideas, but just the use of his name in unfair competition with the members of the writing trade.

The practice has had the sanction of some very noted Americans under the present national administration, but to say that it is any less phony or unfair on that account would be saying altogether too much. These noted Americans, who have become such prolific and prosperous journalists since the election returns were counted last November, can not go back beyond that date to show that they were journalists all the time.

Of course the chief responsibility for such fakery rests with the press itself, and the continuation of the fraud, particularly at a time when so many newspaper people are out of jobs, suggests that the prerogatives and special privileges of a free press are not entirely deserved.

Burl, Schwartz Head Twin City Fight Card

Class will dominate the Twin City fight card Wednesday, with Benny Schwartz and Eddie Burl scheduled for 10 rounds in the top spot. Schwartz boxed out a very nice decision over Burl at Portner's last winter, but since that time Burl has gotten back into his stride and the bout portends a good mixiing of slugging and boxing.

The supporting card will be announced later.

Maryland Open Title Retained By Houghton

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Maybe it was the missed second putt of the ninth green — possibly it was the smothered iron shot from the rough on the eleventh—or it may have been the steady, methodical play of a rival, who made almost no mistakes—in any event, Ralph Beach finished one stroke behind Al Houghton, Kenwood pro, in the play-off for the Maryland open championship at Five Farms today.

A gallery of 100 or more watched the match, and it received its due portion of thrills. The greater part, naturally, rooted for Beach, the home boy, to win, but the score card on its final total showed Houghton's score 73 and Ralph's 1 more.

Houghton thus writes another record into that amazing tournament of 1933, that of successfully defending the crown. Both had scored 140 in the first-day tie on Wednesday to better the old mark of 141 for the 36-hole play, made by Charley Betschler. Houghton had equaled the course record of 69 in the morning, and Beach smashed it with a 65 in the afternoon.

After a ragged start, in which he was 3 over par on as many holes, and trailing Beach by a stroke at the fourth tee, Houghton regained the form which carried him to success in one tournament after another this summer. From the fourth through the eighteenth he was even with par, bagging birdies on the fourth and thirteenth and going one stroke over on the eleventh and eighteenth.

C. U. to Clash Against Swift La Salle 11

Visitors to Use Tricky Aerial Attacks in Combat Today.

THE stage, or rather the gridiron, is set for the 1933 grand football opener out Brookland way between Catholic University and La Salle College, Philadelphia. The game is slated for Brookland Stadium with the kick-off scheduled at 2:30.

Little is known of Marty Brill's Quaker eleven except that the visitors will employ a diversified aerial attack that is certain to cause the Redbirds a very busy afternoon. One other item that will cause the locals no end of trouble is that pony express and captain of the club, Ray Bahr.

Much attention will be centered on C. U.'s two new back-field men, Left Half Back Tom Gearty and Full Back Tom Oliver, as play progresses. Gearty is replacing Tommy Whelan, C. U.'s superstar for the past several years, while Oliver is filling in for the graduated "Ripper" Sheary, also numbered among Catholic University's greatest athletes of recent years.

At the last moment Charley McVean may replace Augusterfer as quarter back.

Football Battles Get Hotter Today

ference race, hopes to continue its football renaissance at the expense of the Stanford Indians, entering their first conference game under the tutelage of "Tiny" Thornhill, successor to Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner.

The two service schools drew strong intersectional opponents for their opening games and may have a busy afternoon. Army will entertain the powerful Mercer College eleven at West Point, while the Navy will play host to William and Mary, a team that turned back the Middies, 6 to 0, in the first game of the 1932 season.

In the East Fordham, Pittsburgh, Cornell and Dartmouth look for only brisk workouts against small college teams in their opening engagements of the season, while Texas, Southern Methodist, Baylor and Arkansas do likewise in the Southwest.

Other games on the national schedule:

Midwest — Drake-Illinois, at Urbana; Miami (Ohio)-Indiana, at Bloomington; Kansas-Creighton, at Omaha; South Dakota-Minnesota, at Minneapolis; Michigan-Grinnell, at East Lansing.

Mrs. Bradbury Wins Golf Club Laurels

Exhibiting a smooth, steady brand of golf, Mrs. F. W. Bradbury yesterday defeated Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, 4 and 3, for the women's championship of the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Tschiffely was a top-heavy favorite to annex the title vacated by Dorothy Nicholson, but Mrs. Bradbury's long driving and accurate putting blocked her from victory.

Columbus Wins Again.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 29 (AP).—Columbus made it three in a row from Buffalo tonight by winning the fourth game of the little world series, 11 to 5. The series will be resumed in Buffalo tomorrow night with Columbus having a 3-to-1 edge.

A Losing Game.

The records of the courts and jails give proof that crime's a losing game, and yet iniquity prevails, and rogues are busy, just the same. The able jurist on the bench has arguments at his command, to prove to erring wight or wench that all such sinners will be canned. The honest peeler on his beat, who thinks of crime the live-long day, can demonstrate to Heck and Pete that crime's a game that doesn't pay. The moralist who looks around for lessons here, and lessons there, can show the intellect's unsound that chooses such a thoroughfare. A thousand reasons may be sprung as proof that crime can never pay, and they may influence the young, and guide their feet in virtue's way. But hardened sinners don't reform until they feel the halter draw; along their vicious course they swarm, and laugh at mention of the law. They know their game's a losing one that seldom makes a sinner rich, and they expect, when all is done, they'll die in jail or in a ditch. But since, they think, they play a game, they'll play with all the cards on deck, although their victory's a shame, and their defeat is total wreck. Defiant, challenging and gay, they journey down the road to doom, and inscribe, "Crime donesn't pay," upon the portals of their tomb.

Radio Waves and Ripples

This was revealed here yesterday by Elliot Stuckel, C. B. S. newscasting executive, who has been in the Virginia seaport arranging for the broadcast.

When the date for the expedition's departure is determined definitely, Columbia's plans will be completed. The admiral originally intended seeing his party off at Norfolk Sunday, October 8, but slowness of the icebreaker Bear in making the Boston to New York run has made probable a delay in the Norfolk start. Byrd will leave the States by plane, joining the expedition at the Canal Zone.

Aside from the aforementioned Stuckel, Engineers William Lodge and A. B. Chamberlain were mulling over blueprints of equipment installations for the new studios—News Broadcast Director Herbert Glover was wanting to know all about world series plans and Treasurer M. R. Runyon was seeing about the radio code.

Chief code controversies are over wages and hours for operators and actors. The radiocasters would like operators to be satisfied with a $20 minimum for a maximum week of 48 hours. The union wants operators to hold out for $40 and 40 hours, while actors feel they are worth $50 a show and the aircasters doubt it.

The code would ban radio lotteries, putting studios under restrictions that have bound the Nation's press for some time.

Announcer Don Lowe starts his first commercial broadcast for WRC Sunday, Jewels at Eventide, at 5:30 p. m. Lowe came to the N. B. C. studios here several weeks ago to fill one of the vacancies made by Fred Shawn's promotion and William Abernathy's resignation.

An electric clock that gives the hour and minute in big black numerals was presented to Arthur Godfrey yesterday with the understanding he uses it when he broadcasts the time to WMAL Breakfast Club members in the morning. Ordinary studio timepieces confuse him sometimes.

Commissioner Landis feels pretty strongly about baseball reporters covering world series games for the radio companies. That's why the McNamee and Husing efforts will be confined to the show angle. The commissioner also has refused to let players and officials broadcast game descriptions.

But no one so far has done anything about limiting predictions to, say, two a game, one for each team. One of these will be microphoned by Babe Ruth for N. B. C. during the Rolfe Dancing Party at 10 tonight.

Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle will try to reach the stratosphere in a balloon from the Chicago Fair again, probably next week. An N. B. C. microphone will be in the gondola. Settle crashed on his first attempt.

Unable to pay $50 fines for possession of whisky, three men received jail sentences in the Marlboro Police Court yesterday.

Walter Hughes, 40, 226 K street southwest; Arthur Jackson, 30, 422 Eleventh street southwest, and Baxton Griffith, 45, Alexandria, Va., all colored, received 60 days. Survey Delays Sewer Election For Arlington

Board Rescinds Action; Works Loan Still Unapproved.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Learning that surveys on proposed sewerage for Arlington County would not be completed within six weeks and its $2,500,000 application still unapproved by the Public Works Administration, the Arlington County board yesterday rescinded its request for an election.

The application was made to Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Arlington County Circuit Court. The action of the board was attacked by Sheriff Howard B. Fields. The board will meet again Friday.

County Auditor Elmer Newell reported that 1932 delinquent taxes totaled $170,658.52. Of this amount $135,982.54 is real estate, $26,713.58 personal property and $7,962 public service corporations.

The appeal of the Rosslyn Gas Light Co. from a decision reducing rates in Arlington County will be opposed by the local public utilities commission.

Transfer of $15,000 from the water department operating funds was authorized to meet current bills.

Expenditures approved amounted to $19,036.24, of which $13,193.17 represents salaries of employes.

The proposed county milk ordinance will be considered at the next meeting, October 14.

The Junior Community Center of Lyon Park meet this afternoon.

The Woman's Society of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church announced a bake sale today at Wilson boulevard and Lawton avenue. Mrs. Oscar Atwood will be in charge.

Fairfax Jail Loan Granted

$13,000 of $50,000 Fund to Be U. S. Gift; Bond Vote Necessary.

The 100-year-old brick jail of Fairfax County, Va., long described as "unsightly, unsanitary, antiquated, dilapidated and entirely inadequate for the purpose designed," at last may be replaced by a modern jail.

On several occasions, prisoners, armed only with pinknives and tweezers, have escaped, and those within its ancient walls during the August storm were kept busy bailing water.

The county's application for $50,000 for the construction of a modern jail was granted yesterday by the Public Works Administration. Of that amount $13,000 is a grant, and the balance a loan which must be secured by 4 per cent general obligation bonds.

County Attorney Wilson M. Farr said last night that the Board of Supervisors would take up the new jail question Wednesday. He predicted Circuit Judge Walter M. McCarthy would be asked to authorize a referendum on the bonds at the general election in November.

County Gas Cut Draws Attack Of Both Sides

Rosslyn Company Wins Injunction as Too High; Appeal Says Too Low.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—A State corporation commission order reducing gas rates 30 cents in Arlington and Fairfax Counties was under double attack here today.

The Rosslyn Gas Co. gained a Federal court order temporarily restraining enforcement of the cut from $1.50 to $1.20 on a claim the cut was too great, confiscatory and unconstitutional.

The Arlington County public utilities commission filed an appeal in the State Supreme Court, claiming the 30-cent reduction was unreasonable and unfair, and asked a reduction of at least 42 cents.

The company threw its case in the Federal court, claiming the State corporation commission's action violated the United States Constitution. E. Randolph Williams and T. Justin Moore represented the company.

The Arlington County commission in appealing claimed the State commission's reduction was based on a property valuation of $505,000, which should have been $430,000; on a depreciation figured at 2.5 per cent, which should have been not more than 1.5 per cent per annum, and on an allowance of 4 cents differential per 1,000 cubic feet for the cost of sale and distribution by the Rosslyn Gas Co. to the Alexandria Gas Co., when "the true and fair differential should not be less than 0.097."

The appeal petition was filed in the name of the county commission and its members, including Edmund D. Campbell, James E. Chinn, A. M. Jones, Calvin I. Kephart and Paul E Schaub.

Gasoline Group To Resist Fight

Northern Virginia Dealers to Combat Richmond Suit October 10.

Northern Virginia Retail Gasoline Dealers Association made plans last night for raising funds to combat the suit filed this week in Richmond, Va., which seeks to have the gasoline rebate law declared unconstitutional.

The recent special session of the General Assembly enacted a law providing refund of 2 cents a gallon of gasoline tax by the State to stations operating adjacent to the District of Columbia.

A committee composeed of F. E. Dove, Clarendon; A. M. Remschel, Alexandria, and J. D. Bell, of Lyon Village, was appointed to arange for legal representation at Richmond, October 10, when the petition of Fredericksburg dealers fighting the act will be heard in circuit court.

If the law is declared unconstitutional it is claimed nearby Virginia gasoline dealers will be forced to assume the full burden of 3 cents a gallon difference in the gasoline taxes to compete with Washington dealers.

Formerly the Washington gasoline wholesalers assumed 2 cents of the difference, but under the NRA oil code they are forbidden to do so.

One-Vote Switch Unseats Official

Johnson Loses Berkeley County Court Place.

The ballot had been counted for Johnson through a count and two recounts. The supreme court ordered it counted for McKown.

A certificate of election previously issued to Johnson was recalled and canceled by the court, sitting as a board of canvassers, and the order directing issuance of the certificate was annulled. Johnson signed the order, with the other two members, as a canvasser. He said orally, before signing, that he was through with further contest. The court made no immediate move to fill the vacancy.

Lieut. H. T. Loper will be in command of the colored contingent of the 250 foresters. The men will be quartered in tents.

Lieut. Col. H. J. Hallett, post surgeon, who has been ordered to Haiti, will delay departure to supervise the hospital work.

As soon as processed, the foresters will be "staggered" to winter camps to replace wood choppers who fail to reenroll for the coming six-month period.

Camp to Continue.

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 29 (Spl.). The Civilian Conservation Corps camps at Old Forge will be maintained at least until spring, W. L. Byers, Mount Alto State forester, announced today. Enlistments of many members, mostly from Philadelphia, will expire in October.

40 Campers to Leave.

Horse Display Has Spotlight In D. C. Today

More than 200 of the finest horses of Washington and environs are entered in the charity horse show of the Montgomery County Social Service League on the Ray estate at East-West Highway and Rock Creek, today.

Advance sale of tickets indicate an attendance of 3,000 persons, County Commissioner John B. Diamond, general chairman said. Accomodations for 5,000 spectators have been made.

The show will start at 10 a. m. with pony classes. A Corinthian class is scheduled, the first in the county this year, in which the riders wear full hunting costume.

Steeplechase and flat races and ring events will combine with the colorful Corinthian to provide a spectacle that rarely is equaled even at the older horse shows. A large sprinkling of Washington, Maryland and Virginia society will be present.

New jumps have been installed and the steeplechase and flat courses have been smoothed. Otto Furr and Louis Leith of Middleburg, Va., show judges, inspected the grounds yesterday and pronounced them among the finest in the country.

Relief Taken Over By Augusta County

Action Shifts Responsibility From Waynesboro.

Waynesboro, Va., Sept. 29 (Spl.). Augusta County Board of Welfare has opened offices here, with Mrs. Mattie Rice in charge. Mrs. M. V. Thacker, former local welfare officer, continues as city probation officer and as administrative officer of the Welfare Alliance, but will not be connected with the new county office.

Opening of the office is the result of an appeal by council to county supervisors to take over relief work direct, since Waynesboro residents pay taxes to the county for such work, and the city felt the burden too great.

Miss Elizabeth Brooke is superintendent of the Augusta board. C. W. Brown, of Swoope, is chairman. Other members include Fay K. Koiner, Waynesboro; Mrs. J. Frank Clemmer, Middlebrook; S. H. Brenaman, Mount Solon; Frank McCue, Rolla; W. T. Bear, Churchville, and W. L. Bashaw, Goshen.

Charlottesville Fights Removal of 2 Trains

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—Further steps toward preventing removal of Chesapeake & Ohio trains, Nos. 16 and 19, have been taken here by the chamber of commerce in a petition from Verbon E. Kemp, secretary, to railway officials.

In the event the railway exercises the privilege granted by the State Corporation Commission, business organizations will endeavor to secure a substitute for mail service.

Penalty Balks Victory by Western

A FIFTEEN-YARD penalty for holding cost Dan Ahearn's red and white jerseyed gridders from Western a chance to capture their opening game of the season from Alexandria at the Western Stadium yesterday afternoon. The score was deadlocked, 6-6.

With but three minutes to play, Jimmy Corcoran intercepted a forward pass on the Alexandria forty-fifth and raced to the twelfth. Summerbell carried it to the fourth on successive plays, then went over the goal line, only to be called back because of a teammate's error of holding.

After a slow start, in which both teams had a bad case of fumblitis, is wasn't until the second period that Hasley, on an off-tackle play, galloped 28 yards for the score. The try for extra point was blocked.

In the same stanza, O'Brien of the Virginians zipped a heave to Fritter from his own 40 to Western's 40 and galloped to the 1-yard, where Shu crashed through to tie up the ball game.

Federal Union Merger Plans Fall Through

National Federation Head Refuses American's Overtures.

A move to merge the two Government unions was born, languished and died within a few hours yesterday.

At noon yesterday, E. C. Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, suggested to Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, a public meeting to discuss the merger. Three hours later Babcock said he had received Steward's answer and it offered no hope of getting together.

Steward's answer to the suggestion was not made public. His office said that Babcock might make it public.

Second Statement.

Babcock's second statement said only:

"We have received Mr. Steward's reply to our overtures. It contains further attack upon the American Federation of Labor. It offers no hope of getting together.

"We will go ahead, honestly and honorably, to present the case for the Government employes to Congress, the administration and the general public."

Public Meeting Proposed.

A public meeting for the discussion of the merger was proposed "in order to avoid the possible implication of secret deals," Babcock wrote. All Government employes were to be invited to hear the executive officers of the two unions discuss:

Value of affiliation with the American Federation of Labor for the Government employe.

Classification question in its relation to the clerical, administrative, scientific, and technical groups on one side and the mechanical groups on the other.

Fair settlement of "all real or imaginary differences between the Federation of Labor and the National Federation."

Proposed basis of agreement upon amalgamation in an organization to be affiliated with the Federation of Labor.

District Nears End of Payless Furlough Plan

Abolished Jobs, Other Step Help Departments Solve Problem.

Virtually no payless furloughs will be necessary in the District government service the next fiscal year, despite the fact the 1935 budget's only appreciable increase over this year is restoration of the 15 per cent cut on all salaries.

District officials said yesterday that all save very few departments already have escaped the furlough by abolishing positions, through retirements, and failure to fill vacancies. Other departments enforcing furloughs of several days are expected to avoid these in 1935 by retirements or abolition of positions this year.

The only two departments now affected by furloughs are the building inspector's office and the municipal architect's office, and the latter has almost solved its problem through dismissals.

Congress cut the appropriation of the building inspector's office with the announced intention of reducing the staff of inspectors. District officials, however, tried to keep releases at a minimum and adopted a furlough of about 25 days, after dismissing a dozen employes.

The District Commissioners will not complete work on the budget until early next week.

Brock Charged With $2,000 School Fraud

Pastor Who Disappeared With Boys Indicted for Extradition.

The Rev. H. Priestly Brock, whose status as a clergyman is questioned by Episcopal Church authorities, was indicted yesterday by the District Grand Jury on a charge of obtaining $2,000 on false pretenses from Miss Edith Carter Emmons, of Washington Grove, Md.

Action by the grand jury came after the supposed clergyman had disappeared from this country with two young sons of Robert P. Vinall, an employe of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. The boys were returned from Wales through action by the State Department and Scotland Yard.

The preacher is alleged to have represented to Miss Emmons that he intended to use the money to erect a new building for a boys' school he conducted in Cockeysville, Md. Money for this purpose, it is alleged, was contributed by Washingtonians.

Witnesses before the grand jury included Bishop James E. Freeman, head of the Washington Episcopal Diocese. Brock is believed to be in Wales. Steps will be taken to have him extradited.

He left Cockeysville March 3, accompanied by Robert and Richard Vinall, 16 and 15 years old, respectively. The boys were next heard from when they sent a post-card to a playmate.

Bratt System Liquor Control Here Opposed

Illinoisan Says Congress to Ban Un-American Proposals.

A warning to those preparing a District liquor control law that "any un-American system which compels the purchase of a meal to get a drink will be rejected by Congress" was sounded yesterday by Representative Fred A. Britten (Republican), Illinois.

Mr. Britten's remarks were occasioned by submission to Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, yesterday, of data on the Bratt control system in effect in Sweden, as well as a plan by Rufus S. Lusk, executive vice commander of the Crusaders. The Lusk plan is based, in part, upon the Bratt system, and would require that liquor be served by hotels and restaurants only with meals.

"A citizen should be permitted to get a drink at a drug store, a department store or any establishment, at a moderate price," said Mr. Britten.

"Corporation Counsel William W. Bride apparently is busying himself with a liquor control law patterned after the Bratt system. Congress will reject this.

"Any system which will make a drink expensive will immediately set up speakeasies. The best evidence that making a drink easy to obtain in proper surroundings will make for real temperance is the fact that beer now can be purchased at 1,600 different places in Washington, and the opportunity is not abused.

"Prohibitionists will not be permitted to write any more liquor laws."

Bride and Senator King were prevented by the latter's illness yesterday from holding a preliminary conference. The corporation counsel provided the Senate District Committee chairman with data and sought to arrange a conference with Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee.

D. C. Milk Code Submitted to Distributors

Proposed milk code for the Washington area, providing increased prices to producers, was submitted to distributors yesterday by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

The code provides increase of 3 cents a gallon for bottled milk and milk used for cream-making. There is no provision for increase in the retail price.

The increase to the producer, it was explained by I. W. Heaps, marketing agent for producers, would offset by an increase in the wholesale price of milk to stores, cutting the stores profit to 1 cent.

Deal Through Council.

Independent producers would be obliged to market through the Washington Dairy Council, and the independent distributors would have to deal through the same channel.

A brokerage of 1 cent would be charged the producer for the service, while the distributor would be required to pay one-tenth of a cent on all sales to the council. This fund would be used for operating costs and to promote milk sales.

New producers who desire to come on the market will have to receive a "certificate of necessity" from the Dairy Council.

The producers' price for milk sold in bottles would be 29 cents, 3 cents higher than the present price. On milk used for cream-making, he would receive 23 cents a gallon.

Plan Further Parleys.

Distributors were invited by Mr. Heaps to study the code, and further conferences will be held. If 75 per cent of the producers are unable to agree on the provisions the distributors and producers will submit separate codes to Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The marketing of milk produced by members of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association will continue as in the past.

Bakers Delay Bread Quiz.

District investigation into the 1-cent price increase on bread is delayed by tardiness or refusal of Washington bakers to furnish requested data on costs of manufacturing, selling, delivering bread and general administration.

Robert E. Lynch, assistant corporation counsel, yesterday said he had requested the information more than two weeks ago, but received no response.

Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, who instituted the inquiry, was reported planning to determine steps to force submission of the cost data.

Lynch said the District has no legal means of compelling the bakers to furnish the information. They have given him figures on costs of ingredients used in baking bread.

'Lung' Sustains Paralyzed Girl

Aided by a breathing machine to conserve her waning strength, Miss Peggy Duncan, 21-year-old daughter of Paul Duncan, 407 Turner street, Chevy Chase, Md., was waging a valiant fight last night against the ravages of infantile paralysis. Her condition is critical, though her physicians reported she appeared to be "holding her own," despite the partial paralysis of her respiratory system.

Stricken at Gainesville, Ga., where she had enrolled at Brenau College, she was rushed home Wednesday. She is now in Children's Hospital.

Physicians hope the relief from the strain of breathing afforded by the respirator will enable her to overcome the paralysis. At present she has strength enough to remain outside of the respirator only a few minutes.

Dr. Hickling Ends 30 Years' Service

District Alienist Retires at 70; Job Abolished.

The position of District alienist disappears today with the retirement of Dr. Percy Hickling at the age of 70 after more than 30 years of District service.

Duties of the office will be performed by Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, chief alienist at Gallinger Hospital, thus effecting a saving of $4,000 a year.

In his annual report yesterday, Dr. Hickling recommended establishment of a lunacy commission to handle insane cases. Commissioner Reichelderfer said the board probably will make such a recommendation to Congress.

Park Savings Losses Grow To $2,000,000

New $400,000 Shrinkage Is Revealed by Receiver.

Park Savings Bank assets have shrunk an additional $400,000, it was revealed in an inventory being directed by John F. Moran, receiver. This brings the difference between assets and liabilities to $2,000,000.

The additional $400,000 shrinkage does not represent a defalcation. It represents, in part, the difference in value of stocks and bonds.

Original Shortage $1,600,000.

The original examination of the books by Department of Justice agents showed a shortage of $1,600,000. Of this sum, the defalcation amounted to $300,000.

The bank is being liquidated. The original shortage was discovered after the suicide of Robert F. Stunz, bank vice president. He confessed responsibility for the shortage.

The legal battle over liquidation, by a depositors' committee, is expected to start soon.

Stockholders Sued.

The suit was brought by a committee headed by Joseph W. Thompson. It involves the Treasury Department, the receiver for the bank, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and every stockholder and director.

Attempts are being made by the depositors to collect their losses from the defendants because the losses are in excess of the bond protection.

Two Services Held in Honor Of Dr. Freeman

Bishop of Washington Lauds Predecessors on Anniversary.

Washington Cathedral walls resent comprehensive churchmanship and a comprehensive vision of Christian citizenship, declared the Right Rev. James E. Freeman at the festival evensong in the great choir and sanctuary of the cathedral yesterday afternoon to commemorate the tenth anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Washington.

Before he began his address Bishop Freeman asked the congregation to stand for a time in silence as a tribute to his two predecessors in the bishopric of the diocese, the Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, first bishop, and the Right Rev. Alfred Harding, second Bishop of Washington.

"This is a day of hallowed memories," said the bishop. "Six and twenty years ago Bishop Satterlee placed the foundation stone of this cathedral. His genius, consecration and far-seeing vision made possible all that we have witnessed on this hill. Few men have shown the statesmanlike qualities of Bishop Satterlee and it is my proud privilege to have brought to some degree of fruition his great dream which was carried so far forward by his immediate successor, the Right Rev. Alfred Harding, second Bishop of Washington."

Special Epiphany Service.

Earlier in the day Bishop Freeman had attended a special service in commemoration of his consecration at the Church of the Epiphany, where he was rector when elected to the episcopate of this diocese. The congregation, which included nearly a hundred clergy, heard the bishop deliver an intimate address to his former parishioners. In it he asserted that in the fellowship of the gospel, the democracy of Christ's brotherhood, there is a tie which binds the church together and preserves it from destruction.

A number of greetings were received from bishops who assisted in Bishop Freeman's consecration in 1923.

After the festival services in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral yesterday afternoon Bishop Freeman held a reception in the bishop's garden to hundreds of friends and well-wishers. Mrs. Freeman, although unable to take her place in the receiving line, observed the reception from the porch of the bishop's house.

Clergy Present.

Among the Cathedral clergy at the reception were: The Dean of Washington and Mrs. G. F. C. Bratenahl, the Canon Chancellor and Mrs. G. Freeland Peter, Canon and Mrs. Raymond L. Wolven, the Canon Precentor, the Rev. William L. DeVries, Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, who returned from Lenox, Mass., to be present, Canon Albert H. Lucas, Headmaster of St. Alban's School, and Canon and Mrs. Joseph Fletcher.

The reception and other events of the day in honor of Bishop Freeman's anniversary were arranged by the standing committee of the diocese under the chairmanship of the Rev. George F. Dudley, rector of St. Stephen and Incarnation parish. The other members of this committee are: The Rev. Joseph Fletcher, the Rev. Calvert E. Buck, the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, Dr. W. Sinclair Bowen, Hugh T. Nelson and Byron S. Adams.

Hanna Elected To Head New Transit Group

As another step toward uniting the two street car lines in Washington, the first meeting of the board of directors of the line, the Capital Transit Co., was called yesterday.

H. D. Crampton was elected secretary-treasurer.

No other business was transacted at this first meeting, although details of reorganization were discussed. The two lines will be unified December 1.

After that, the first big step to be felt by the public will be the inauguration of universal transfers. It means doing away with the present system of paying 1, 2 or 3 cents for transfers at some 20 junction points in the city.

2 Men Indicted In Jones Death

Two Men Alleged to Have Shot Him in Rum Feud.

The Government moved swiftly yesterday to bring to a trial the alleged slayers of Charles Jones, who was shot to death in an alley in the rear of the Government Printing Office September 18.

Men in two cars trapped Jones in the blind alley and sprayed him with revolver fire. Others in the alley narrowly escaped death. A bootleg feud is blamed for the shooting.

Wheat Contracts Slow; 25 Employes Laid Off

About 25 temporary employes in the Contract Recording section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration have been given indefinite furloughs in the last few days, it was learned yesterday, because of decrease in work.

It was originally thought that wheat reduction contracts would follow cotton contracts so closely all the force would be needed, but there has been a gap and further furloughs depend on how soon these wheat contracts come in.
